Raw transcript of interview:

Graham and John Interview Daniel Cinzio for his experience and perspective on homelessness... Published

December 27, 2023 7:03 pm AEST

Hi everyone, Wednesday, the 20th of December, and um, it's our second interview for the day, John. Great to see you back on mate. How are you? Mate? Yeah. It's uh, great to be here and great to be here with Daniel and uh, yeah, looking forward to a great interview. Yeah. Great

Uh, in the southern parts of, uh, the suburbs of Brisbane and, uh, great to have you on, uh, Daniel, as always and, uh, John this morning, we interviewed Barbara O'Neill and that is going to go gangbusters. In fact, people will have seen that already by the time they, uh, they, they catch up with this interview, but, um, incredible stuff and, uh, really looking forward to some results from that one.

Whoa. Yeah. Well, mate, I, I couldn't believe just how many people have commented and, uh, shared just the introduction to, uh, to, to the actual, um, uh, interview. I don't think I've seen, uh, that for quite some time, such a, such interest in, in somebody being, uh, interviewed on Club Grubbery. So yeah, that's just for the poster and only one detractor out of all of them and everyone just saying they love it a bit.

So. You know, it's fascinating with, with her work. Um, as I'm traveling around the different homeless communities, a lot of people have actually started to listen to the short videos that she's putting out on different aspects of health and really appreciating it. Yeah, she's, uh, she's going gangbusters.

There's no doubt about it. The best thing Oprah could have done was, uh, was try to gag her, John. And, and speaking of Oprah, uh, the latest on their reversal, because, um, some people are saying, oh, this is a great victory and everything. And we said last night, let's check into it and make sure because we couldn't say much in it.

But AMPS have come out with a statement today and, uh, you've spoken to Dr. Duncan Symes who's the vice president of AMPS. What have you come up with there, mate? Well, look, essentially what, what appears to have occurred is people will be aware that the APRA, uh, wrote to every practitioner during the, this pandemic and, uh, essentially put them on notice that they were not to say anything outside of the.

Uh, the government narrative on this, otherwise they would face disciplinary, uh, action and proceedings and hence why people like, uh, uh, Dr. Mark Hobart, Dr. Oosthuis, myself and many others, uh, were, were sanctioned and dragged into courts. Uh, but what we've got here really is I, I didn't realise, but what, what they'd actually done, Hoody, was they'd actually put that, uh, a condensed version, I think, of that letter on the actual website, uh, warning practitioners, uh, not to speak out or say anything adverse about the, uh, the vaccines and they've removed that.

So I suppose in some respects, it's a bit like the Berlin wall coming down, isn't it? Yeah, it is and it is a kind of they're thinking now that the dust is settling on all of this and everyone's moving on and they've forgotten about it. I don't know. But a lot of effort has been put into to really putting a spotlight on ARPA by so many people.

You know, William Bay's case and also AMPS have been doing great work there. And, uh, you've been hammering them for quite a while too, because you're severely affected by their, uh, archaic restrictions. I mean, there's no doubt about it. These people, these people, as you say, couldn't run a hot path. So sad, isn't it?

I mean, and, and people, uh, like Mel McCann are obviously running class actions. Uh, so there's, there's a lot happening, you know, Tony Nikolic's, uh, looking at, at running class actions as well. It's, it, this is going to be, uh, an ongoing feast. It really is and we say what we've been saying at the beginning all week that, um, uh, we are happy for anyone to come onto the program and debate with any of our experts, not necessarily with us because we're not experts, we're just passing on information, but we will happily facilitate that.

In fact, we're hoping to be able to do that very soon. And for politicians and bureaucrats who are planning to gag even further and censor social media, the only reason you're dealing with all of this stuff is because you are not transparent. And the saying I came up with the other day is that conspiracy theories thrive when governments lack transparency.

So you guys tell the truth, you show the people who elected you what you're doing and all this stuff goes away and we can go back to our lives. So in the meantime, a lot of people are suffering. Now information in the aviation circles, John, a thousand percent increase in, uh, in medical issues with, uh, with pilots around the world.

What have you got there? Yeah, Foxy, uh, uh, sent me something this afternoon, Hoody. Uh, this is from, um, uh, uh, an economics firm that's now running a story, uh, based on, on the data that we did provide last week from the U. S. defense doctor, uh, Ted Macy, um, tried to, to see whether we can get in contact with him to get an interview.

And anyway, we'll, we'll keep chasing that up. But, uh, heart failure, uh, and heart conditions up a thousand percent. Uh, they're, they're, they're essentially murdering people. Look, I don't know how else you put it. I mean, what more, what more do you need? I mean, those figures are astronomical, uh, in, in anyone's terms.

It's, it's murder. Well, your military pilots, uh, especially in a critical time in Earth's history that we're in at the moment, America's facing two wars and it's not looking like it's going to improve any time soon. It could escalate on a, on a, on a pinhead. Um, and they're, uh, fighting aviators are struggling to, uh, in some cases stay alive.

I mean, it's just, it's unbelievable. Absolutely unbelievable. But anyhow, there's a lot of stuff that's unbelievable going on at the moment. And right at the front line of that is our guest tonight, Daniel Cinzia. Uh, Daniel was a former pastor with the Seventh day Adventist Church in the Logan area, uh, has been out of that organization for some time and has been devoting his attention to setting up his charity organization, Beyond Barriers.

Now, Beyond Barriers is a not for profit, it's registered as a tax deductible entity and he's doing everything right and I can tell you he's doing everything on the ground right. Some incredible things going on around, uh, Daniel and his ministry. Uh, he's been a good friend of mine and Michelle's for, uh, of ours for, I don't know, 15, 16 years, Daniel.

And, uh, you've been through some rough trots, uh, your own personal life has been, uh, would make a movie, absolutely would make a movie. And despite all the trauma that you've been through, you still put other people ahead of yourself. We tip our hat to you, mate. We thank you for coming on. Thanks, mate. Yeah, you're a champion.

Now, uh, we are looking forward to, Michelle and I and a couple of our volunteers are looking forward to joining you, um, to be with some of the homeless people you're working with on Christmas day. You're taking them to a bush camp, uh, to the south of Brisbane, just south of Bow Desert. And, uh, we're going to have a, uh, a Christmas lunch and bush picnic and do some activities with some homeless people.

And, um, there's so many stories you can tell us, but, The one thing that really touched my heart when we were talking about, you know, who was going to be there and Michelle said, do you want us to bring some presents for the kids? You said there probably isn't going to be any kids there. Why, Daniel? Um, we basically don't see children out on the road.

Um, when people become homeless, the Department of Child Services takes the children. So there's an awful lot of pain going on in this community.

So, who's looking after these kids on Christmas Day?

Well, from the expose that I've had, a lot of kids are out in foster care, um, some are with grandparents, but they're not with their parents and that's a great tragedy and a great pain and a great horror. What's a standout reason that most of the people you're helping, and it's gotta be numbering in the hundreds, what's a standout reason that they're homeless?

I think

there's a small percentage of people that are out there because they've had personal trauma and loss in their lives and they're just wanderers. But there's a lot of people who are out there because they've lost housing, uh, due to the rental increases. There's also a number of people that I'm in touch with who have lost their jobs due to the COVID situation and have depression.

They've had all sorts of loss, all sorts of horror over that, lost their houses, had to sell their house or had them taken away. Um, there's people out there from sickness, but the standout one is the whole housing crisis situation. And with the cost of living going through the roof, it's not going to get any better either.

I can't even think that far ahead because the numbers are growing on the ground and I can't see the end product yet, except that we'll keep doing whatever we can and other organizations also, I'm sure, to not only physically and practically support, but also encourage and bring hope and encourage and challenge people as well to, to still, you know, look into the lucky country aspects that we still have and be grateful for what we have and put everything forward.

Johnny. Well, I don't know what you say, honestly, it's, uh, it just, it just beggars belief that these grubs, uh, uh, building infrastructure to jail people who are unvaccinated. These camps are sitting there with, with beds and hot showers and kitchens, commercial kitchens, uh, there, there would be endless, endless amount of infrastructure that's not being used within government ranks.

Uh, Nurses homes, uh, attached to hospitals and the like that, uh, they're not using because they built new facilities. They, these places exist all over Australia. Uh, it just defies belief, doesn't it? That this Albanese idiot is in control of a government that is allowing people to sleep. Uh, under, under bridges out in the weather and have their children removed when they could be putting them into an, a setting, although not ideal, at least it's safe.

And at least they've got the children with them, but that's got to be an absolute priority. I don't know how they can spend all this money on this COVID BS is fraud. That was COVID the, the testing, the. You know, we heard, uh, rightly, um, reports of people lining up for eight hours in their cars. I mean, I forgot about all that.

How ridiculous. They were in control of all that, weren't they? They were, and the 400 million and change for the referendum. Yeah. Which was an absolute fast from the beginning. Um, and here we are. We've got people like Daniel who are giving voluntarily of their time. And it's, it's not just, you know, I'll you do five or six hours, voluntary work a week.

Daniel, how much work are you doing? I don't know, mate. I'm going for about eight in the morning. So about 11, 12 at night. Every day, every day. Well, unlikely we've had some, some positive stories. I think three guys in the six different communities that I say I've got houses. So we've been running. Run a flood out this last week, getting furniture from the native people around the place and getting them, getting them set up, which is great.

But yeah, the needs are great and it's, uh, it's exciting and rewarding doing what we're doing, but it's also very daunting and yeah, there's, there's a lot of, just so much need.

You're living in a caravan, yeah, but that's your home. You had to leave the, the, uh, the land that you were on before because, um, you had to move on. Uh, now you've, uh, you've got your caravan parked at the back of a industrial facility, I think, for until February? That's correct, yes. And then you're going to be looking for somewhere in the Logan Shire where you can at least, uh, park your caravan with some permanency?

There's a whole bunch of other stuff you need as well and we're going to talk about that shortly but some of the good news this afternoon, you spent um an hour or two going to pick up a pallet of camping equipment that was given to you for the people by Drifter Camping and Four Wheel Drive. Luke Sutton has come to the fore and he's packed a pallet as you said you couldn't get anything else on it.

It's got tarps and chairs and you name it. Do you know what's on it? I know that there's tables, chairs, there's boxes that say some electrical. Connectors. Um, there's some big long things sticking out the side. I don't, I haven't unpacked anything yet, but I know that it's coming from Luke's heart, so it's going to be good.

It's going to be good. And it's going to be good quality as well. And Luke Sutton, you're just a champion. I would love to get you on this show one day, but you just, you'll happily have your, your, your Monica all over the desert, you know, talking to people about pitching tents and driving over sand dunes, but you won't come on with your mates on the club.

Grubbery. I've got to have a really severe. But I'll tell you what, your heart is incredible. Now, Roland Crystal, our, uh, our mate, Senior Councilor Roland Crystal, uh, resigned or sacked, uh, in New South Wales, uh, did a wonderful video the other day and I, I had sent it to you, but I think it's got lost in the system somewhere, uh, encouraging people as he was packing that pallet to go to you because he works for Drifter now, encouraging other businesses.

to load up and send their gear to you to get to these people who are homeless. It is really, really wonderful. We also know that, uh, you've been given 10, 000 worth of children's books to be given out at Christmas time, brand new books, um, great stuff. And I hope that it's not some of this rubbish that's appearing in the Logan city library.

Um, I'm sure it isn't. Um, I haven't seen it yet, but I'm looking forward to seeing that one. Oh, you know, and you'll spend all night reading them. I'm too busy responding to messages all over Facebook, mate. I know, look, it's, it's all going to happen for you. There's no doubt about it. What, what has been the most standout, heartbreaking story that you've, that's brought you to tears?

I know you cry a lot. Um, and who wouldn't? I mean, you've got to have a release. You know, in this whole debacle that you're working in, what's the biggest standout story that's brought you to tears?

I don't know if I can label one. I probably have to go with a couple, man. Yeah, go for it. So one of my friends was a nurse, married guy, and he lost his job during COVID, um, had to sell his house, just got his house sold in time before the bank snabbled it on him, so he got a little bit back from that, but the stress of that, um, really knocked him around terribly.

And so he's. He's had, you know, in sharing with me, he's had a really tough time growing up. Some of the worst stuff you can imagine, um, that has taken place in our world has happened to him and it's just triggered this and he's, he's just basically lost everything. So he now lives in the car and, uh, with his wife and he's, he's traveling around and it's a real battle to get back on top of that guy.

We've done a lot of care and time supporting him and we'll continue to do so as we're able to. Um, there's another family that, um. They've come together to have 10 children and their six year old recently, recently, I think about six months ago, died in custody, custody, sorry, died in foster care. And the reasons they gave for that were very, were a bit spurious to me.

When I think about the statistics around abuse and foster care and the children going out there, just, I've cried a lot of tears over that one, what those guys have had to go through. Um, there's, there's just, you know, it's just hard. It's painful and it's tough. Guys are living in the front seat of cars for years.

I've got a mate helping me right now, Dave. He's been in his car for, for eight months, living in the front seat. And, uh, he's just got a house, got a little flat. And, uh, that's been wonderful, but it's tough stuff. Anastasia Palaszczuk was in tears when she resigned the other day because she says how wonderful it's been to serve the people of Queensland. Anastasia, if you want to cry real tears, go and spend the day with Daniel and have a look at the damage that's been caused by your government.

Go and have a look. Yeah. Yes, exactly. Last weekend we got a big storm came through the uh, Archerfield Aerodrome. I think they had 180 kilowatt hour winds knocking planes over, all sorts of stuff. You imagine the guys out in the tents. So camper trailers were trashed, tents were trashed, tarps are gone, you know, and these guys don't have money like, you know, middle class people, they're battling.

And so when they lose a shade shelter, that's it for, I don't know how many weeks till they can save up to get another one. And so under that shade shelter is all their stuff. It's been trashed with water. Um, you know, it's just, it's really tough stuff. And it'll be lovely for people to be able to have a flat roof, flat bed and a roof.

So we, we've received so far three donated, uh, caravans and two camper trailers. Never thought we'd be doing that sort of stuff, but people have given them, so we're, we're getting them out. Wow. That's amazing. And things like tents. People are wanting tents and sleeping bags and I've got one more story for you.

Yeah. There's a family who, um, we're experiencing some pretty tough stuff, staying in a show grounds. Uh, violence, alcohol, as they expressed it to me. And so they moved in their tent out into the bush. They went away, the wife has cancer and they're living with their son and husband. They went away to a hospital appointment, they came back and their tent was trashed.

So I went home, grabbed another tent that we had here that had been donated, took it up, set it up for them, beautiful. Lived in it for a few days, the rain came, it leaked like a sieve. We went to visit them, everything was wet and they were in absolute horror. So, I came home, we had a caravan here that needed a bit more work, so we, we worked into the night till about nine o'clock on that caravan to get it mobile and operational.

We drove an hour and a half to where they are, uh, picked them up, they looked like drowned rats, and they were just saying, this is just so bad, Daniel. And I'd be phoning around every church, friends in the area, all sorts of stuff, trying to find somewhere to put this caravan for them. Eventually a guy called me, ironically on the way, said, Dan, they're welcome to come to my place.

I understand this predicament. Bring him in. So at 11. 30 we got to his place. I got around the back of his place and bogged the car in the caravan. So we spent three hours with the winch getting it out. So by about three o'clock in the morning we got them to bed. But they now have a solid roof, flatbed, aircon, and a loving family to be with.

As they negotiate. This life threatening illness and all the brokenness around that. So I'm really grateful for the beautiful people who donated a caravan and the resources to be able to do what we've been able to do for them as well.

This is our country, John, the lucky country. There's a buddy. I just can't, um, you know, just makes me so cranky. I mean, I just feel like going out to the car now and driving down to Canberra and just sitting on the front lawn there until these morons, uh, start to repair this country. Uh, and, and vacate Albanese and all the rest of you grubs, vacate parliament house to people that can actually do the job.

I mean, in any other country, this would be considered a national emergency, what Daniel is describing here. I mean, we've sent, we've sent entire defense teams overseas for probably for less to assist other nations. Where is the army? Where's the chief of bloody defense? Why are they not down? Providing shelter, food, and medical attention to these people.

This is Australia! We can't even help our own? We can set up a tent city in half an hour for Africa, or Indonesia. You can send pallets of whatever, billions of dollars overseas, you idiot Albo. You got people that are, that are potentially dying. Living, living like, uh, uh, third, third world people. And stripped of their children.

And stripped of their children in the process. Christ!

Yeah, well said John, uh, I've been trying to get in touch with my local mayor, um, one of our, there's a guy who helps him with some admin, he's been chasing it down for us for three months now, a bit longer, because in the parks, a number of parks, they have a three day rule, so how many people can stay in that park for three days within a month, then they have to move on, so that's pretty horrible.

There are places where people are allowed to stay longer, and there's some Cleary guys are working out there's some fancy laws around public land. So, it's a community growing in one of the areas I serve, uh, under a train bridge and under the highway. And there's more people coming to that place, um, you know, if people go into someone's backyard within council legislation, they also can only be there for a short amount of time legally.

Yep. So, the biggest pressure and issue that a lot of guys are facing is safety and where I'm going to be. Yep. Um, I was listening to one of the guys sharing about his experience on the ground, that's a guy on the, on the, around the railway tents, and he was saying that. There's a whole army of mums with children traveling around this ghetto with their kids. And they come in at night after the rangers have, you know, they feel they're safe from the rangers and they leave early in the morning.

So that they can keep their kids with them, but they're continually on the run. And, uh. That's not good. Because they're scared if they stay put, the docks will come and take their kids off them. Yeah. That's, that's what was shared with me by one of the guys on the ground, sorry.

Woody, where's the Governor General? They, they sacked a Prime Minister, who I would put to the public far less than what we're seeing here. This is just complete dereliction of duty of the Prime Minister to ignore this. People, uh, people are suffering, people are dying, people, uh. Family units are just being absolutely destroyed.

Cost of living has gone through the roof to the point where poor old Daniel is virtually working 24 hours days as a volunteer to assist with, with those that he can muster up. People are having to give donations. Uh, they're out in the elements. They're out in the elements, fending for themselves. They, they're too scared to even keep their children with them by day for fear that docs will come in and take them.

I mean,

while we've been touring, Michelle and I, we noticed along the roadside at truck stops and places like that, a whole bunch of tarps all set up around cars. And we were, we were driving between Ballarat and Bendigo and we saw an entire house load of furniture under a tarp alongside the highway. And these people had obviously been kicked out of their house and all their belongings are under a tarp being blown and rained on.

And they're sleeping with their, with their goods and chattels under a tarp at a truck stop alongside a busy highway. They look like they've been there six months. It's everywhere. There's a couple who have just turned up beside a bridge and we're going to visit them every week now. And they left a rental place.

They, the house was sold out from under them and they left and they were supposed to have another rental. Was all sure, but it didn't happen. For whatever reason, the real estate decided someone else. What do they do?

They're in tents now, on the side of the road. And there's a growing army of retired people as well, who just simply cannot afford to live.

And I've met a number of those guys. At most of the sites I go around and meet everyone, every time I go there. Because I've done a lot of reading and research and understand personally, um, the difficulties that you face with isolation. And there's some pretty cool research. There's a guy, Jonathan Harry, called Chasing the Scream.

He's written a book and he said that the, the opposite of addiction and this horrible brokenness that we're experiencing is community. And so when we go, we always go around and we say hello and we catch up with people and we invite people to come over. But in, in doing so, yeah, there's a lot of, a growing number of retired people who just cannot afford to live.

So they just bought a caravan and they just got their stuff and their little dog and they're just living from park to park. Yeah, we've got a beautiful couple staying in a caravan on our place in just that situation and uh, they've, they've uh, put their annex pegs into the ground and as far as we're concerned, they can stay firmly concreted into the ground.

Um, you know, for goodness sake. Decent, beautiful people. It's just, it's beyond the pale. It is absolutely beyond the pale. And we get called cookers. I put, you know, suggestions out into into the. The public in our area. I've had people offer to build shower units. I've had people offer to build, you know, mobile showers, all sorts of stuff.

But, um, I can't even get through to my counselor to get permission to do this stuff. So, hoping to be able to break into that, that world and start to, you know, be your voice. But it's not easy. Um, I know that these guys, they've been very supportive of us in the past and I know they're very busy, but I sure hope and pray that soon that You know, we can start to dialogue about this stuff and get some, some more practical help.

That's why the military need to come in, Daniel. Look, they need to cut through that at a, at a, at a federal level. You shouldn't be dealing with local councils. It needs to be declared an emergency and they need to come in and they've got the equipment, they've got the gear, they've got the expertise, uh, that they, they could do it in, in, in under a week, set it all up.

It'd be perfect. There's not an issue. It's just the will to do it. I mean, there's so many barriers to these people living normal lives. I mean, I'm sure 95 percent of them have never had to rent a house. I mean, some of these people would have, would have had their own house, you know, they've never rented.

They've got no rental history. Uh, so they, they find it very difficult. And then what do you do? Albanese is bringing in thousands and thousands of people each, each day from overseas. Where are they going to go? There's a guy on the Sunshine Coast in the hinterland with a large piece of land and he's gone and bought.

A whole heap of secondhand tents on Marketplace, old canvas, primus tents and that sort of thing. And he's got them set up all over his property and he's charging 250 a week just for people to come and stay in the tent. He's making a mozza. That's profiteering. That's profiteering. You know, I don't know what sanitary conditions he's giving them or whether they've 250 a week for a tent.

I know people who are paying 750 a week for a single bedroom.

How can you, how can we sustain that in this country and bring it? Clearly is a national crisis. Clearly is a national crisis. I was talking to people who were travelling up and down the coastline. Because you know, we get tourists there as well. Yeah. And they said it's even thicker and worse up the Sunshine Coast.

And it's just everywhere.

Lucky country. Yeah. Well, unfortunately, as much as you know, what you, what you're doing, Daniel is a magnificent and people are drifted donating stuff is magnificent. I mean, you plug one hole and a bigger one just appears, you know, it's, it's, it's never gonna, it's gonna be a fix. What's happening. Is it? The tide is still going out right now, but, um, I can do what I can do and we can do what we can do.

And we'll keep doing what we can do. And the more people that do what they can do, the more lives that we can save, the more support we can give, the more turnarounds we can have. And until our government wakes up and does the right thing by our people, at least there's, there's something going on. Where are these corporates, Hoodie?

The ones that wanted to support the yes vote. Where are they? Where are the Bunnings? Qantas? Where are you people? This is all going on. Not in my backyard. Unbelievable. And Daniel, let's, let's focus on some solutions here. You, um, uh, you have a lot of nuggets. Can I interrupt just for one second? Yep. And just tell you a couple of good stories.

Uh, four out of the last five weeks, our fruit and vegetables have been paid for miraculously. One week I came because we've been putting money into, into cars and caravans and getting stuff sorted. And we, we survive off the nose. So we run really low. I had two thirds the amount of money to buy fruit and veggies.

So I thought, alright, God, that's what you're supplying this week, that's what we're doing. And I got the last box in the truck, turned around and my mate was there. And he said, he looked a bit funny, he said, Dan, have you got everything in the truck that you need? I didn't know what he was asking really, he said, yep.

He said, have you paid for it? I said, no. He said, good, because God sent me to pay for it. Now he was driving past on the highway, he didn't know I was there. And, uh, God said, go and pay for Daniel's food. Ollie's and pay for his food. So he went out the back, found me, and he paid for it. How cool is that? So even amidst all the horror, there's some pretty cool stuff.

Oh, there's some great stuff. Next week, we had, next week we had zilch. Um, half an hour before I said, Alright, God, I'll pay for it myself. I can't sustain it very long, but I'll pay for it this week. And you just tell me, you know, what the future's gonna hold. We got called out half an hour before we picked up to go and pick up some stuff.

There's a beautiful little lady in a retirement village. Who collects stuff from the local people and calls me up, but she's got a stash on one of her double beds. So I went and collected there and she had an envelope with some money. She said, this is what we've collected, this is for your petrol. She gave us 190 that she collected from the locals for our petrol.

And a couple of minutes later, I got a phone call from a friend. He said, Dan, God's impressed me. I've got to pay for your fruit and veggies this week. How much do you need? So I told him, and he went and put it in my caravan, it was there ready. How's that? And the last two weeks we've been to Ollie's, uh, the fruit shop that we go to.

The guys, the staff have been very excited and helpful and we've got it together and they said, oh, someone's phoned up and paid for it this week. So you don't have to pay. And that's brought me to tears too, the way that I've touched his heart and providing, you know. But people who don't know Ollie's, Ollie's is a bit of a, uh, it's, it's a go to place in the Logan Shire to get good, uh, cheap fruit and veggies and all that sort of stuff.

And, uh. Yeah, it's a bit of an icon in the, uh, in that area on the Mount Lindsay Highway out of, uh, on the way to Bow Desert. So, um, good on the crew there too. Now, um, so as we said, your caravan's parked temporarily in the back of an industrial facility. Um, you need somewhere where you can, you need to be able to rest and say, I don't have to worry about where I'm going to live in three weeks time.

Um, because effectively you're nomadic too. So we need somebody in the Logan Shire or in the Bow Desert area, uh, to support Daniel with at least that. We also need, you desperately need some kind of a large shed or a warehouse because when this stuff gets out there, Daniel, uh, Beyond barriers. org. com. au not for profit tax deductible entity.

Uh, please check them out. Um, you're going to get, you're going to get swamped with donations. Now drifters started the ball rolling with a pallet load of camping gear, and I'm sure that's not the last. The call's gone out to other corporates and Australian businesses, John, who get, who get shafted from one end of state and federal government to the other.

They're like people like Luke Sutton. He gets absolutely hammered by state and federal governments. Uh, the red tape, he's employing, you know, probably upwards to 150, 200 people and he's got to fight for everything, uh, to get through this government. And he's turning up, uh, to support the Australian people all over the joint.

And he's helping out Daniel now. You have no idea how encouraging that was, mate. Just to ask a few questions. 30 years. Yeah. Good bloke. I know he's genuine. Well, he, he, I'll tell you what, he was more excited than you were to be doing it because he told me and it was just great. Now, um. People say you're more blessed when you give than when you take, you know?

That's right. But you also need good volunteers, uh, you need people you can rely on and you, you desperately need admin because you're one of the hardest blokes to get in touch with, I know, and that's because you're flat out, you don't stop, you haven't got time to look at your phone. And if you do in Queensland, when you're driving your truck, you'll probably get booked by 800 different cameras.

So, um, you know, there needs, you need to be surrounded by good people to have a place where you can, where you can store your goods and you need volunteers and some admin people to help you. And I'm sure that will come. I'm sure that will come. But, uh, there'll be a lot of people out there really touched by this interview tonight who are going to want to support you and so do we.

What, what's your, what's your weekly, um, uh, fruit and veg bill anyway? How much is it normally? Um, it's about 650, 700 on fruit and veggies over the two days. So we do four sites on Saturday and then another two sites on Monday. Yep. And then we've got petrol on top of that, diesel on top of that for the trucks.

We have one gifted truck that we own ourselves. Yep. And, and, the guy I'm living with, he has almost identical truck that he uses, and he basically loans that to me full time now, for going out and picking up and delivering, because our, our, our distribution truck is loaded with all the clothes boxes, and all the non perishable stuff, and all the donated gear, so we just keep stocking that up during the week, and then we head out.

We've got three places that we store stuff currently, a backyard shed at Archerfield, My mate here, he stores it in between his three phase machinery, and then he also has a shed at home in which he stores a bit of stuff. But, um, we could certainly, you know, food wise, we support seven other charities whenever we get bulk donations, but they've been dropping off lately.

But, I know that there's a lot of huge transport companies, food processing companies that could If they were given reliable transport and reliable communication, would be willing to give more. So if we had a storage facility, um, I would be going out and approaching those, those companies and seeing what we could do.

And we could have, you know, almost food for nothing for a lot more people, which would be really valuable. We could also take the donations of furniture and have them ready when people, um, you know, get housing to go straight out. We don't charge anything for what we do. It's tough enough as it is. And we want people to have a, a, a blessing and joy and hope.

I know when I was down, when someone just gave me stuff, it just knocked my socks off hope wise. And so we wanna do the same for other people. Yeah. Uh, what about if you had a, uh, a storage facility at ya? Would that work?

I think, I think it would. Yeah. So we're about, yeah, that'd be great. I know somebody you might be able to help. I just thought of it and, um. He's a great guy who does, uh, who does, who feeds the homeless himself. Uh, does a, a, a, like a soup kitchen breakfast on, uh, every Saturday morning. Street church in Woodridge.

I'll have a yak to him, but, um, he's got a massive shed. There might be some space there that you could put some stuff in. I don't know. I won't preempt it too much, but he's a really good guy. And he's into the same things as you are, um, anyway, let's, uh, let's put that aside. So come on Australia, it's time if you're out there and you've, um, you've been touched by this story and you can help, um, help the, help the little guys out, help the small charities that are doing the best they can on a shoestring, um, because the big corporate charities have let us all down in times gone by.

Uh, they made life difficult. I mean, a lot of people, John, have donated to the Red Shield Appeal all their lives. And when they lost their jobs because of mandates and they needed a helping hand, they were turned away because they weren't vaccinated from Salvation Army franchises. Uh, and that, that stunned me too.

Apparently a lot of these, uh, op shops, Salvation Army, I think St. Vinny's, I'm not too sure. I'll stand a bit. St. Vinny's. No, no. That's 100 percent correct. They're franchises. I was physically kicked out of a Vinny's store during that time. And we ran a food bank and a drop shop the whole time. And we never enforced anything.

We just, we were just, just real with the people.

Michelle went into St. Vincent de Paul's in St. Vinny's in uh, Kyogle during that time and was kicked out of the shop and she went in another time and was, was so embarrassed by the way she was treated. She had a mask exemption and the way they treated her was abominable. Absolutely abominable. Me too. Yep.

So, you know, we're, we're knowing what this is all about. There's an awful lot of fear and an awful lot of horror going on with that. Yep. Now how best can people contact you through the website? Through the website, through email. I'm absolutely swamped right now. I need someone to be able to help with, with communication.

I just physically don't have enough time to get back to everyone. And there's some people who have made some, some beautiful, sincere offers and been touched by what's going on. And I will get back to them, but I just, I just can't get back to them instantly, which is what I'd like to be. So that's one of our great needs.

Alright, if you're someone somewhere not far from where Daniel lives and you can support with admin. for tuning in. Um, I'm sure a lot of people would. We've had a lot of people offer us support in doing that for Hoodies Heroes. Uh, and maybe there's a Hoodies Heroes group in that area of southeast Queensland that can get alongside you too.

We'll put the call out there on this video. I'll be seen on the Hoodies Heroes network. So, you know, you've got to get the admin before you can start dealing with everything else, but please desperately need a shed. And if we're going to have a shed, a forklift would be handy, I guess. We've, we've got a little electric forklift.

So we've got, we've got to start. We've got a foot in, uh, beyond barriers, beyond barriers. com. au and, uh, members of the Australian and state governments, you ought to hang your heads in shame. You need to hang your heads in shame. So Daniel, I look, I look forward to, and Michelle and I are looking forward to spending Christmas day with you and your crew in a bush picnic for the homeless and, uh, really looking forward to being there and, uh, looking forward to a big hug too, mate.

They'll be cool. Yeah, it's I've never done that before but we're getting people out in the bush. We're going to have a swim in a rock hole. We're going to play some Aussie cricket with a bin. No stumps. Um, we're going to do some adventure therapy. We've got some good grub on the ground so we should have a lovely day together.

That should be good fun. Don't ask me to play cricket mate. I've never played it in my life and I'd rather watch paint dry. I couldn't agree more. When there's no Crazy dry cricket going on. You can have some fun. Exactly right. Exactly right. Respecting the six right after the koalas from you, right?

Exactly right. Um, all right, Daniel, anything else you'd like to say to our viewers? Well, I'd like to say thank you to those that, that have been supporting and are supporting. And, you know, if there's guys that feel that this is something that you can do in your own area, please be in touch. There's no rocket science to what we're doing.

Um, we've just, there's a lot of kind hearted people that. Just need to be asked or, or shown a way forward to be able to give and that could mean a local businessman who person who has a truck that they could loan you, um, maybe a few days that they could store stuff and you could start to receive donations.

You start to get it out. There's a lot of places that do food and some personal hygiene products. But, um, I think there's a real place because of the financial crisis. There's a real place for practical help. So I take tents, sleeping bags, swags, camp kitchens, all sorts of stuff out every week and it goes and people really appreciate it and it means that they can use their Amiga finances for, you know, other more valuable things for medications, for, or whatever.

Some guys are so battling to just keep a car on the road. I mean, I know how scary it is to own a car. when you have almost nothing in your life. Um, just the maintenance side of it is frightening. We've had people blow their cars up because they just haven't had their heads placed to think or the finance to, um, you know, service them.

And they've lost their car. That's a tragedy. Guys don't have addresses. They don't have addresses. They can't get insurance, some guys. And they have an accident. What are they going to do? They've lost their car.

I'm sure too, uh, if anyone out there wants to donate a sleeping bag or or any Uh, item that's available on the Drifter website that, uh, if they went on to the, um, online ordering and they just put in there, uh, for Daniel, uh, or, uh, beyond, uh, what's, what's, what is it called again? Beyond barriers. Beyond barriers.

If you leave that in the notes that you want it donated, uh, you know, Luke will make sure that, uh, uh, Daniel gets that and I'm sure he'll get more than just whatever's donated as well. So. Thanks We just received a donated car last week, a little Ford Laser. A guy's not able to drive anymore, he said, I want him to be used to help people.

So we've just received that, just needs a little bit of front end work, but it's a, it's a lovely little thing. So we're going to just have that to loan to people. We've got a young lady who's, you know, battling with domestic violence at the moment and she needs reliable transport. Once she has that, she can go to a shelter and get some good help.

So we'll have that to her shortly. And yeah, we'll just make use of whatever, whatever people are able to, to share anything to do with flat beds we love and roofs we love. Well, I suppose that's why it's nice to, uh, I mean, we saw this in, uh, Corakai, didn't we Hoodie? I mean, uh, people can get a bit over, uh, uh, overexcited about donating stuff.

You know, we end up with half bottles of shampoo and all this sort of, you know, it can just get a bit silly sometimes and that's why. Uh, having it done in a controlled way. I mean, if you, if you want to donate a sleeping bag, uh, you know, you could go to drifters website, you could buy the sleeping bag for them.

They get a brand new sleeping bag. Uh, and that's the way to do it. And I'm sure we'll throw stuff in as well, uh, on top of it. There's no doubt about that. I mean, he's got a heart to serve. There's no, no doubt about it. There's plenty of people out there that are willing to, willing to help. We just need to coordinate it properly.

Until such time as somebody locked the. Defense force can actually come in and, uh, and actually do something instead of all this stuff, just sitting in warehouses all over Australia, uh, doing nothing. And that's what it does. I tend not to agree about the defense force thing. I think people are so shell shocked with what's gone on the last three years.

If the army turned up, they'd probably freak out. Um, why things are, but you know, the look, the government's got the money, they've got the resources, the, the government's got the resources, they've got the money, as you says. They say they can send a, a c 17 across to Indonesia or Africa or somewhere. Um, you know, and, and they keep donating aid to, uh, the Ukraine for goodness sake.

Um, I mean, they can, they can send a C 17 with the, uh, defense minister to watch the bloody cricket hoodie. I say very little about politics guys. Um, the whole political values things need to stop in Australia and get back to being fair dinkum. Because our people are suffering so badly and the priorities that I see from my angle are not reflecting caring for our people.

And, and that's what we greatly need. And if we put resources and time into caring for our crew, things would change and the engine of failure would come alive again. Absolutely. And grinding to a halt. As it stands, the people are afraid of the government. It should be the other way around. The government should be afraid of the people.

Um, the whole thing's got to turn around somewhere along the line. Um, Dan, I you're a man of faith. The sign on the wall behind you, the picture on the wall behind you says it all. Last time we had you on, you prayed it out. Would you like to do it again tonight for me? Yes, I'd love to. Thanks. Thanks, mate. Go ahead.

Father, thank you that we can talk to you at any time. Thank you that your phone's never flat or out of service. And because of that father, we're never alone. Father, you look upon what's going down on this planet and in our country and in our regions and it breaks your heart just like it breaks our heart.

I thank you for the good things and the way that you are moving. But father, from our perspective, we'd love, we'd love to see so much more. So I continue to pray that you'll speak to the hearts and minds of those who have the opportunity to make a difference in people's lives, whether those are people that you've blessed with finance and other resources.

Whether those are people in positions of leadership. Father, we can't wait to see you. I know it's not going to be long. Please make it sooner than soon. And until then, we thank you for your presence, for your providence, and your goodness. We love you, Father. In Jesus name, Amen. Amen. Thank you so much, Mike.

Said at every interview this week, it's a very sad time of the year for a lot of people who are lonely and have been disenfranchised from family and society. If you love somebody and you know they're in that situation and you haven't told them for a while, maybe it's time you did. You might just save their life.

Yes. What you did yesterday got you to today. Just do this one day at a time. Um, Daniel, I can't wait to see you on Christmas day. We're really looking forward to that. Yeah, it'd be cool. And, uh, yeah, so. I'm looking forward to it. Johnny, you've often been heard to say, you just couldn't make this stuff up.

You couldn't make this stuff up. Anastasia, do yourself a favor. Go and contact Daniel. I know you're not in office anymore, but if you really want something to cry about, instead of the crocodile tears you showed when you resigned, um, go and have a look at what, uh, what your government's contributed to.

I'd be honoured and love to have anyone come with me. Yep. Anyone. Albo. Even Albo. All right. Get out of your Airbus elbow and go and go and see what's really going on in this country. Anyhow, enough said. Stay out of the trees, everybody. We are approaching Christmas. We've got some more interviews. They're piling up on us there.

They're coming out. We're trying to get out three a week. Um, we're getting, we have been getting out too many, uh, sort of every night, Monday to Friday has been hard work, but also a lot of them get lost. A lot of great interviews are being overrun by the one that comes the next day. So we're looking to Monday, Wednesday and Friday for interviews coming out from now on.

Please support us at www. clubgrubbery. com. au. We only get by because you help us out. And, uh, everybody needs a bit of a helping hand and, um, I even feel sad asking, uh, making that comment after we've just heard what you said, Daniel, but, uh, anyway, we've got to keep this truth going out and it doesn't happen easily.

So your help is really appreciated. We thank all those people through the year who have supported us in that, uh, buying our t shirts and, and hats and all those things. It all helps to pay the bills and keep us going. God bless you, Australia. You are an amazing country. It's just a shame that you're run by morons.

Um, so it's good night from him. Good night from him. Thanks for the kind words. Keep the faith, mate. Yeah, you too, brother. Okay, and it's good night from Club Grubbery. Coming back with another amazing interview. We've got some crackers coming up. We'll see you next time on Club Grubbery. Bye for now. Good night.

Mhm. Mhm.
