Well, G'day everyone, and, uh, 4th of January, 4th of January, we are recording this, uh, interview with, uh, Jason Miles and Jodie Lowe, who's. Uh, really smacking the airwaves at the moment with a great idea and initiative that he's brought forward. And we're going to hear all about that tonight. Um, two for one, and I liked the concept, I liked the whole idea and it's just so good to see people trying whatever they can to bring truth and, uh, and reality to the situation we find ourselves in.

Good to see you, Johnny. Mate, always good to be here and, uh, yeah, I think a lot of people are looking forward to some great interviews coming, uh, in the next few weeks. Oh yeah, yeah. We're keeping our fingers crossed for a couple of them, that's for sure. And uh, we look forward to bringing those to you.

We'll let you know when and if they come off. Uh, and in the meantime, the latest news I'm getting is that, uh, two 52 year old male British Airways flight attendants have died in the last, uh, 24 hours. Uh, one dropped dead serving meals in the cabin of an aircraft on a flight and the other one was found dead in his hotel room, died of mysterious circumstances, both of them.

So the drama continues, um, a Qantas captain on the A330 who has spent, uh, a great deal of time, I think in, um, in China somewhere, I can't remember. Uh, had a stroke, uh, three or four months ago and has been hospitalised in Asia ever since. Was flown home three days before Christmas. Uh, he's been in a critical condition.

Uh, but nothing to see here, of course, John, nothing to see here and, uh, the dramas continue. Well, this is, yeah, it's unfortunate, Woody, but, uh, they're, they're, uh, they're still peddling this BS about long COVID and people. Uh, still coming into the shop and, uh, speaking about, uh, the, you know, the, how long COVID is causing all these problems.

Yeah. Yeah. Well, you know, what we're, what we're witnessing, of course, is systematic of a, of a global governance system that is completely in tatters and, um, and it's just bolted out of the starting blocks. It's just doing whatever it wants to do, regardless of what the people have, the populations of all the countries around the world, democratic and otherwise.

Uh, wanting, uh, nobody has a say and, um, both our guests tonight have been quite vocal about that forever. Uh, Jason Miles, you've been, you've been, uh, at the forefront of this. You ran as a Senate candidate in Queensland for the Great Australia Party. Um, you've got a great following mate. You've had, um, you've had a really good following for a long time and people really respect you.

You're upfront, you're honest, and we really thank you for being on. Uh, thanks. Thanks, Cody. And thanks, John. Good to see you both, mate. Just a question for you, Graeme, if I may. Um, how long were you flying with Qantas? Uh, I was with Qantas a captain for 32 years and I've flown total 53 years. How many people died on the job?

How many people died on the job? Well, we lost a couple of, in that period, I've had two people die on the aeroplane. No, one, sorry. One. One died on the aeroplane. Uh, a passenger. I've never in all that time seen any crew member or heard of any crew member being defibrillated in flight. Not on any of my flights, 36, 000 hours of flying, 12 million miles travel.

And I've never heard of it on any other Qantas flight. I've never heard of a crew member being defibrillated and yet that seems to be common practice and has been. Mate, we just, uh, this, this has gone nuts. And we, we know from medical evidence from DAEN over in, uh, in the USA, um, the Navy flight surgeon, uh, Macy has come out and just, just reported on the data over there, almost a thousand percent increase in cardiac arrest amongst military pilots.

It's just obscene, absolutely obscene. Well, we've got to keep doing what we're doing in that regard, and I think to your point about global governments as well, I mean, they'll, they'll take any angle or any leverage they can, and, uh, they're doing it now with the Gaza, they're, you know, unity signing 1B agreement, like, they're trying to get this front about being a globalised, unified front, but of course, those, those of us who can see through that thin veil of lies, because we kind of have done our own homework, and listen, we understand what's actually going on over there, but it's, it They will continue to make themselves relevant, whilst we continue to try to make them irrelevant and to hold them to account for what they've done, mate.

Absolutely. Now, Jody Lowe, uh, you've been a busy boy today or yesterday, I think you only just got home. Are you, um, you a fly in, fly out worker? Uh, no, I drive in and it's only been an hour and 20 from home, but I drive, I drive to work. Okay, mate, but you've been up on your roof. That was, that was me thing this morning.

I, um, I worked nine days out of the last, um, eleven, just covering for all of the leave, um, that was going on at the mine, and, um, obviously for the coin. Um, everybody likes that for the time being. Um, yeah, and then there's, there's so many people sort of reaching out that just can't quite, you know, get to an event, uh, for two for one, and they can't, um, you know, they're short of ideas, and they're, and they're wondering how they can be effective with smaller groups.

So, I, I promised them that I would show them what one bloke in a tin of paint could do. Um, and, um, just trying, I've got another one for tomorrow, so I got out there, got out there this morning and just painted it up on the roof. Yeah, so what you painted up was, uh, tell us what you painted on your roof. Uh, that one was exit the wef.

Uh, so that, sorry, that was exit the who. Uh, the World Health Organization. So, um, yeah, we've got, um, we've got a couple of them floating around that we've been sort of running with the hashtags that they sort of, they're not our hashtags, they're, they're the ones that I sort of picked up were most popular on social media.

Um, Yeah, and, um, you, you were, you were making comment, I watched your video showing your roof shot, you're wondering how high, uh, it would be seen from, and I could tell you I reckon around 20,000 feet that would be, that would be visible. So it's in pretty big letters, so well done. So anyone flying on Qlink in a Dash 8 or anything, what sort of general area do you live in?

Amarill, mate, we're right under a flight path, just about everything that goes from Sydney to Brisbane to Townsville area, it goes straight over the top of us. Yeah, been to Emerald heaps of times myself. Anyway, now, before we go into what you've started to do, and I think it's brilliant, give us a rundown on what's brought you to this situation where you just feel you need to do something, mate.

So I, I woke up a few years before, um, COVID, um, and I don't want to say woke up. I was, I was going through some pretty serious mental health issues on my own and I hadn't really, really had no reason to, I mean, I had everybody's normal reason to, but I, so I started doing some homework, um, into. Uh, mental health and brain health and, you know, looking at the science and stuff and data behind it.

And I was down the rabbit hole of, um, fat versus sugar and the lies that sort of came out with the science behind that, the money behind that in the 70s and 80s. And, um, while I was doing that, um, I was sort of trying to research my own brain health and that sort of stuff. And then, um, all of a sudden, um, I found out, you know, about Big Pharma and the backstories and I was down that rabbit hole when they came along and said, Hey, if you don't get this, um, experimental stuff, um, you're going to be risking the safety of your workforce at work.

And now I pride myself on my, um, you know, I had over a hundred, um, over a hundred people working under me where I was in my mind. And we had, um, you know, 700 days, about 550,000 hours, um, you know, long term injury, um, or potential incident free under me. That's, that's what I pride myself. And to have someone say that to me, um, it's pretty upsetting.

So I started doing some research pretty quickly as the deadline loomed. I got lucky and ran into, you know, a few of the key players early in the day, the Robert, Robert Malone's, um, you know, the back on the back of that was John, uh, John Abrahamson, a lead medical litigator against Big Pharma in the last 10 years.

On to, um, uh, Peter McCullough, obviously, um, you know, most published heart cardiologists in the, in the world. Um, and so yeah, I just sort of, um, started pushing back from there. So I was sort of still playing around with my mental health company. Um, I had just rolled out a very expensive app and website for reconnecting the community, um, with a sporting app.

It's one of the best things I've ever seen. And, uh, it was as I was telling everybody to. Get outside, get healthy, get some sunlight. Uh, they were saying everybody get inside and stay away from your friends and, and, um, don't do anything other than go to the bottle, I go to the chemist and then go directly home.

So, um, it was almost like they were reading my manuscript of how to make a successful business. So, um, I lost my job, um, left, left because of the mandate, um, lost my mental health company, um, uh, and then ended up over another one that mandated they moved me on. So I was sort of just while wiring online a lot, um, didn't have a lot of information.

I was, uh, I, um Definitely grew up, uh, uh, well, I had turned into a capitalist atheist. Didn't believe in anything other than myself and my own will to, um, buy everything and, and just look after my own flock. Um, and then along came Jason Miles on a, on a, um, on a tour of the smaller places and he's, um, that, that he really had no, no right to be out here, but so grateful that he was.

Um, and he actually stayed there as my wife reached out to him and offered him if you want to park his van at our acreage and he did. Good conversation, um, led for me to sort of get a bit more involved. So last couple of years I've just slowly but surely been telling all versions of, um, information that's out there.

And last year was just a year of dates, mate. It was just Endless dates of, um, oh, this has come in here and this has come in here and that's coming there. And the division just got further and further apart. So I put my foot down in December and just said, all right, you want to spend the next year just waiting for somebody else to come and save you, knock yourselves out.

I'm going to start making me own dates. I'm going to start holding myself accountable to those dates. I'm going to start, stop worrying about this divisive bullshit and start saying, I don't care what you stand for, whether it's grandmother law, common law, whether it's constitutional change, whether it's biblical or spiritual, you know, foundations.

We all have a common goal and we all have a common enemy and and the less chat about what we disagree about and more chat about what we agree on was what what sort of came up with that and I'm a gimmick guy. So, um, 24th of the first was two for one because the Black Friday sale was. Everything's a sale these days.

And I had enough. And I said, you want to know what a sale is? Our rights and our freedoms are for sale and they're on a two for one bloody sale. So let's get down to the guts of it. And so we need to work our asses off to make sure that we can buy them back. We shouldn't have to, but, um, you know, we'll, uh, so yeah, that was the, uh, that was the formation of two for one with some conversations.

Um, Jason was the first one to. Reach out and have a conversation with me about, uh, Anastasia when she, um, called the pin, um, and then it's had a knock on effect from there from that conversation. So it's been good.

Well, I heard from, uh, a lot of people we sort of have to do with over in Bunbury in WA and there they said, are you coming?

Are you going to be in WA? Me being, uh, that is in WA because, uh, we're on the 24th of January because we're having this big two for one event. So mate, it's taken off. It's, um, and so it should, you know, I mean, you know, we should get behind anyone who wants to have a go, Johnny, don't you reckon? 100 percent Hootie.

Uh, we've got to back people that, uh, wanting to, to help and, and what you're doing is fantastic. And it's essentially Australian, isn't it? Yeah, right. Um, yeah, that was it for me. Um, yeah, you can. I can sit on here all day long and talk. Um, I haven't been much for rallies. I'm not a big fan of humans as it generally comes.

Um, you know, I'm like red wine. I'm, I'm, I'm acceptable in small doses, but if you have enough of me, you'll get a headache. So, um, so that's, you know, I just stay, stay me course, do me own thing. Um, you know, I do usually when I'm speaking, you're hearing the words out of my mouth at the same time as I am. So, um, I can be, you know, I can't offend people quickly.

So, I try and keep it. measured and tapered to, um, for the greater good. And I've really been on a spiritual journey, realistically, to the appeal of my own trauma, looking after my own issues at the same time as, um, making sure that everything, um, that I say and do is with the intent, um, of what I want to do.

So being the observer of myself more than, more than just being the, um, perpetuator of a separate, of a different narrative, you know what I mean? Like, uh, you know, just my own version of a propagandist on, on, on the side of what I believe is the truth. So, yeah, that's the difference. So you've obviously done some pretty heavy work on yourself, mate, over the years.

Yeah, yeah, I have. I've certainly had plenty of questions and, and look, I guess atheism or growing up with no connection to anything left me a clean slate, which has probably made, it's probably made my growth a lot easier in this part. There was no, there was no painting to write over. There was no, there was no pre conceived history in my family.

We just, we just got together. Um, I bought my mum a little, um, house on the back of the acreage here. I've got my wife and my youngest daughter with me. My oldest three have all grown up and moved out. Um, so it was pretty easy for us to sort of bunker down and say, what, what do we believe? What, what are we going to do?

And, and sort of stuck to our, stuck to our principles of what the Lowe family means to us. Um, you know, uh, soil to the earth type, uh, Australians, I guess we're, we're central Queensland, um, born out, born out near Longreach. Um, so, you know, my, my granddad's house was, um, he was pretty proud probably 20 years after he got back from the war to put a cork floor in it.

It was dirt up until that timber, corrugated iron walls, cut out with a, you know, cut out with a saw and push out, push out windows in 50 degree days. So, um, Yeah, they didn't grow up on the, um, the Silver Spoon side of the family, that's, uh, outside of their world, I mean, so yeah. Yeah. Um, Woody, may I just, uh, make a comment, mate, if that's alright?

Yeah, yeah. I think, um, with Jodie, like, I first came across him, as you mentioned, when I was touring Queensland, and, uh, his wife Leah, great lady too, and part of Jodie's journey. And, in fact, Leah, I did a lot of work on my lower back when I was struggling with that. But I think what, what Jody brings to the table and what inspired, what, what, uh, inspired is not the word.

What impressed me about Jody was the fact that he took a position because we know for the last four years for most of us that our point of attention has been whatever they've thrown at us, right? It's it, they just want to get your attention and your new headline is this, you know, coalition of joint statements with Albanese and a bunch of other countries.

That's all they ever want to do. That's it. And I think what Jody's done and done it so well, he's picked Queensland. I think if you looked at the Queensland vote for the voice in regional Queensland, it was probably like 80%. So he's got himself into a place where people are going, hang on, I've had a gut full of the overreach of government, the lies of government, um, all the garbage that they've been throwing out.

And he's really taken this initiative and he's had a few along the way, but he's taken this one and it's my, he's made it his point of attention and what he's done, he's strengthened his position in that. And I think the more you do it. The better you build, the better you get. And the more it rolls out throughout the nation.

And this guy's come from, you know, he's basically been on the canvas. And he's come up and he's just, forget about the profile, but it's the people he's impacting. It's the people that probably we couldn't all reach through our audience. So it's another person who's come along and created more awareness at a time where we so needed it.

Couldn't, uh, couldn't agree with you more, mate. So, um, Jodie, tell us what Two for One's all about. What are you planning? Well, it, basically, it was just a get together. Um, so, they love, I love turning their shit against them, right? So, you know, the Trusted News Initiative had made sure that right across the Western border, the Five Eyes, that we, um, we only see the same shit over and over again.

And if you've seen a few of those clips out there where they start with one news presenter and then they slowly sort of filter out to 160 of them on the screen saying exactly the same thing. Basically what I wanted to do was, um, more, more of a silent protest where we got as many people as we could together at locations and made human signs, um, you know, either in the sand or with cars, you know, with bark, whatever you got available to you, but basically to the skies, um, and get those drones up there, get the photos of it and just sort of make that a common, um, picture of hashtag, um, Uh, exit the who, uh, hashtag, um, I, I write, um, uh, defund the UN and there, and there's a, um, a fuck the wef out there, but we don't, we, we went away from it because we're just trying to keep it sort of clean.

So excuse me, French, but, um, but yeah, we, um, we, we basically just want to make sure that they know that we know, um, that, that this is not a politician's game anymore. We're not interested in the puppet set up. That are swapping from left to right here in this, in this country. We, we've got to remove their grips and their money out of our country before we'll ever get politics back to, back to good politicians.

Um, you know, we, we need to make sure that the next wave of people that take over the leadership of this country, um, know that we know. Um, and that we're not, and that we're, you know, we're going to unite on this cause. So, it was a silent protest, no big speeches, no people like me waffling on for half an hour into the echo chamber of everything that everybody knows.

It was more about just showing up, having a hug, getting together, and then that, that being the first day of, um, you know, provoking people to have the strength and the courage to stand up and come up with your own ideas because, you know, we've already, we've locked in, um, well, we're going to the Canberra rally in the 6th for the farmers, but then, uh, I think the 20, 21st and 22nd is Julian Assange's case, and then the 23rd in New Zealand is, um, Barry Young's case.

So, um, three, uh, three days to pretty, um, now high profile. Obviously, Assange is huge for high profile, but Barry Young's the whistleblower for the, um, COVID information in New Zealand. So, um, that, that's whistleblower week. So we've sort of locked down February with the, with the call for the month of whistleblower week.

And we're going to, you know, just sort of start rolling on that. Um, I originally was getting, you know, inundated with people sort of saying, what can one person do? So I made a, I made a club called fight back club, um, so hashtag fight back club, um, and it had 17 rules of all of the people that I had listened to from all of the disciplines, um, you know, of what they thought was necessary to get our society back to what needed to be.

So it was actually sort of the underpinning driver of all this. So it's the core of it. And basically, you know, we start uniting people with common goals and then educating people on those 17 situations. So. Stop shopping at the major chains if you can. And then the conversation piece that I've been adding off the back of that is because, you know, they're, they're wholly and solely owned by international, uh, bodies.

And, and so we don't want to shop and send our money internationally overseas if we can stay with the IGAs or the local fresh fruit grocers or, you know, direct from farm. So to make the conversation smaller than, you know, people running out there sort of scaring the shit out of people saying, you know, Klaus Schwab's a leader of an international globalist, you know, rah, rah, rah, and the people just, you know, the normies turn off.

I can't. They can't jump to that level that quickly. Yeah, that's true. That's very, very true, mate. And, and, uh, you know, I've talked it over with many people, John, and I remember having a chat with Monica Smith a couple of years ago. I think it would have been, it'd be great if people just turned up, say everyone dressed in white, no slogans, uh, no speeches, no sound stages.

No banners, no nothing, just a mass turn up of people. Um, you take the sound stages away, you take the egos away, you take the speeches away, and people just turn up in silence because silence can be absolutely deafening. Absolutely deafening. And um, and silence can be frightening too, especially if you're a politician.

And there's, there are millions of people standing outside saying nothing. But just standing there, I mean, man, it's worked around the world in other, in other situations. The Philippines, for example, they all wore yellow. That's all I did. They just turned up in the streets wearing yellow. And uh, and yeah, then, you know, you do that, you eliminate sound stages, you eliminate the egos, you eliminate a lot of the division and people just get on with it because what this is about is trying to save this country.

And we've all got to play a part in that because it's no use saying, why don't they do something? Because the they is us, Jason. Uh, mate, without question, I was just thinking as you were talking there, Hoody, the amount of rallies that I've been to, and kudos to Tricky, you know, he's organized some crackers, but the border also, where I met you a few times, and the likes of John Farris and Trevor Hendy got there and spoke, that had a purpose, that at the time, and probably to, to your point about asylum processing, that is, at its time, inspired people, because it gave them hope that people that had a profile, especially John and And, uh, Trevor Handy that they were seeing this for what it is.

I think, um, I think rallies are great. I still, I'm a big supporter of them coming together. I think the approach we do moving forward will be different. Whether we choose an order, whether we're forced down that path, because the next wave of whatever it is, is always going to be at our doorstep and we need to keep.

Redefining how we move forward to try and change the world the way we want to see it and it's happening. I'll say this, it is, and I listen to you and Graham, uh, sorry, you and John all the time. Like Dave Allen, a mate of mine, sends me all yours, doesn't need to because I, you know, I'm club rubbery anyway, but, um, the one thing I'm noticing is one conversation at a time.

Now, I used to have longish hair. I didn't mean to get a cut this short, but the apprentice did a pretty bad job so that, you The senior had to come back and do it up. But this hairdresser, I got it. I was chatting with her. It's the second time I've been to her. She was dead set asleep to the world. She is now vocal about it.

And one thing hairdressers do is they love to talk. So one conversation there at a multiplying effect that whatever that might be is another way. We get awareness out there and awareness does create change. We've seen it time and time again. Absolutely. Absolutely. Johnny. Well, I, I think we've also gotta start attacking these symbols of, of these other organizations.

Like we talk about the World Economic Forum and all these other large entities, but realistically, uh, you know, these momentums, these symbols like, are you okay? These mental health things, they're, they're, they're, they're no better. Uh, they, they are just something for these corporates to latch onto to make themselves feel good.

Uh, pretend that they're doing something. It's all just BS. Uh, and we need to start calling these people out. Uh, you know, I think of the Royal Flying Doctor Service. Uh, there's people out there that are, that are, uh, going across Australia, raising money, whether it be a dollar or 5, uh, with, um, behind camels.

And then I hear of. Medical airplanes being taken offline so that people in suits can go to a conference. Oh, I mean, this, this, this sort of stuff's just madness. And it's going on in corporate Australia and all over the world, uh, every day of the week. And we need to start calling it out. These people are, these people are grubs and they're taking advantage of us.

There is absolutely no And we need to do whatever we can to support people like Barry Young over there in New Zealand, whether that means getting on a plane and going over there and just being there. I mean, it's so important that these people have got support and that the world can see that we're not going to put up with this nonsense.

Yeah, well, you know, Qantas with all their RUOK and their anti discrimination, uh, policies and their anti bullying policies, the greatest offenders on all of those cases. In all of those circumstances, we're the senior management and the board of the company. Um, yeah, they're disgusting the way they bully people.

It just, you know, it just, none of it makes any sense. It's just corporate box ticking. And that, that's got to stop. But getting back to 24th of January, what's going to happen? We know there's a lot of people going to be gathering at beaches and they're going to be writing slogans in the sand. I've heard a lot of people talking about that, Jodie.

What other What other inspirational thoughts have you, uh, you heard from people who are going to do something on the day? Yeah, so the, so the Canberra mob we're talking about, um, bringing, uh, giveaway clothes, uh, donatable clothes. They were gonna, they were gonna make their sign outta Donatable clothes and then, um, you know, hand 'em over to the charities or the homeless centers and stuff like that.

There's, um, you know, there's a few different sorts of things there. The farmers obviously are being sort of, we're trying to involve with the farmers, and the farmers are there. So that, you know, talking about the similar things that you see in the, in the, in Europe at the moment is using farmers and, you know, farm trucks and tractors to.

You know, send as big a sign as you possibly can. I mean, that sign I put on the roof today is 25 meters. And if you're saying that it's a decent size sign, then what we're, what we're trying to get is five by five. So each letter to be five by five. So it worked out something, something like, um, I don't know, 75 people or something that we needed.

Um, and, and about 70, 70 odd meters. Um, for each of those signs, we've got, the goal is 75 people, but yeah, we've sort of put it out there. I've got, um, you know, I've got plastered on my car, so plenty of people have started putting it out there with their, all over their cars. There's people all over the country that have asked for stickers, so I've got a heap of stickers to give out, but they've, basically, we've made high resolution, um, uh, copies of everything, and we've just sent out, we've sent out the high res copy to everybody so that they can make their own merch.

Um, you know, there's too many, too many opportunities for shilling. Um, shilling sort of division in taking money or mucking around with money. So I gave them what they needed to do on my teach them how to fish rather than give them a fish kind of thing. Um, yeah, so, so I don't, I don't know that they, you know, they've got to get the creative juices flying a little bit to, to try and do something a little bit different, but you know, at the end of the day, the goal is to get them there, um, and, and sort of, you know, just.

Keep the, keep the, um, I, I, I get contacted by every day by someone saying, oh, we want to go there for fight for the fathers and we wanna go there for fight for the fallen. And I, I'm all for all of all of it, but I just said, look, at the end of the day, I don't wanna be standing there. They said, this is what we do and this is what they love.

They love fear. They feed off the energy of fear. They feel feed off the energy of argumentative fear. They love just, um, gaslighting the division. And there's nothing worse than standing there, you know, saying pro choice, pro life, and then beside you, someone else is saying something, and they look at each other, and they're like, Hey, what about this?

And you know, all of a sudden, they're looking at each other more than the guys at the front. They're looking out their castle windows, and they're like, dickheads. You know, and just go back about their business. So, you know, it's more, it's more about, um, just concentrating on that common enemy. Yeah, it can be, yeah.

Yeah, so right. And look, I mean, what did you see with the voice, you know, they reached out to their big business partners and stuck it over the side of the airplanes, you know, the little, um, the little grub, um, Joyce and that sort of stuff, you know, they used, you know, they used anything they could to paint that shit everywhere you went, you know, every time we went to the bloody toilet in the public, in the toilets, it was in your face.

So that's what I said to these people. Don't break any rules, don't, don't do, you know, any tactics that they, they would do. We're not them. You know, we'll, we'll win this by, by being good, good humans, good, good citizens, or should I say, good Australians. You know, like we'll, we'll win the, we'll win without having to go to their disgusting sort of tactics that they are.

Um, but just on that point about the That's where I was with the, um, mental health stuff. That's why I sort of stay in the background, let you, you big hitters sort of work on the big stuff to get in the, you know, the big changes and working with people in the background because. The reason why these things aren't working is because they're so easily triggered because so many people have suffered so much trauma during this process that they're really easily triggered and that, and so they're always on, on, on edge, they're always, you know, they're just, just about at breaking point and it doesn't take much just to, just to light their little fire and then they're often saying things that they don't necessarily mean.

So, you know, I work more on trying to get people to realize that if we can heal ourselves, forgive. Forgive what's happened in our past, not these pricks, but forgive what's happened in the past to set us up to be coercible. Um, you know, that, that, that to me, because they are the definition of narcissists.

They, they feed us and manipulate us into the situations that cause us to have the mental health issues in this country. And then they bring out the, are you okay? Well, they're the champions of helping you after they've wrecked you. And that's the, that's narcissism 101, you know. Gee, you're starting to sound more like a Christian every day, mate.

You better be careful.

Jason. Well, I think unity there. So the key takeouts for me always have been unity. And, uh, one of the biggest things I've been focusing on for at least eight months solid is calling out the actions of government, because what I saw in the voice with the people listening and reading all the comments in the blogs you see online, um, was all around.

The lack of trust in government and you know, government is not the only seat on the bus. It's one seat on the bus. There's many other ways to skin a cat. So I'm not, I'm never going to sit here and say, we just need to get rid of the government, our problem solved. We've got to fix human. Sorry guys. We got to fix human beings because they have been so misled by these very people.

So what, uh, for such a long time through programming. So my focus always is to take their actions. Take their actions and feed off that and just feed that straight back to the people and say This is what you're, not what they say, that's what they do. And I think the more we do that, the more we unify, the more we bring it in.

I've had so many friends who ditched, absolutely ditched me at the beginning of this, who are now starting to see the light, if I can say that. And I'll give you an example, I had um, uh, I won't go, it's a family member of my wife, cousin, but, and he's senior in mines, and he actually, we had a conversation over Christmas, he's from Narrabri.

About the shot. And he was saying, you know, so he didn't know my perspective on it at all. But he was saying that, you know, I, you know, I took it. I wanted to say grandma. I said, I'll say your grandma's really important to you. And he said, absolutely. And I said, Oh, did grandma take your grandma take the shot?

And he said, yeah, no, totally three. I said, how's grandma going? And I don't think she is anymore, just for the record. But, uh, I said, um, so remind me why you took the shot. And he said, to say her, I said, but she took the shot. And I said, what you're saying to me is akin to me taking a headache tablet for your headache.

He got it. He literally got it. Oh, he's gone. And he had nowhere to go with it. So it was around unity and it was about using the government's words, the government's actions to bring people like him in. Now he is totally flipped, totally flipped. And if we're seeing that happen all over the place at the moment, I mean, you've only got to go back to the government saying stats, 85 percent of the people who got the first two shots are refusing to get any more 85%.

That's a lot of people who have a smell of rat in the cheese factory for whatever reason or another. Well, John Lada would probably know what's how many shots you need to be vaccinated these days. I think, uh, according to a target, you'd be up to six. There's a lot of unvaccinated people out there, John.

Absolutely. Absolutely. All right, Jodie. Well, listen, um, tell us how people can get in touch and find out what, what events are being planned and, uh, have you got a website or a, what's the story, bud? Yeah, we went with a, um, a Facebook group. It's just the number two, four, one and day locations. So they can jump on there.

I'm not sure whether we're getting played around with. It's very difficult to see what what technology is doing at the moment. It's, you know, they're locking out people and groups and groups of some groups and group commenting and group joining is one of the things that seems to be heavily targeted for when they get when they put you on these light restrictions.

So the two for one day locations is the name of the group. At the top of that is that the featured section. Um, if you scroll sideways across that as you come into that group, uh, you'll have all of the information of how to make the flyers, how to contact me, what we're looking to do, where the events are held.

In the top right, top right of every group, you'll see, um, a button that opens up all of the chats. So everywhere that has a location that's trying to get going at the moment will have its own chat. So find the nearest, uh, chat location to you or location that you can join that chat. And, and, uh, we're working on each of them having.

Some form of leadership that will pin to the top of it once they have locked down through polls. So I've been working in there with them today to get polls to say, you know, Bunbury obviously was, uh, that area I think has gone is triggered. So once they're locked down where they're going, uh, what time they're going, uh, because this can happen any time of the day because obviously it's a work day.

We didn't want to be split up for, um, you know, we didn't want to let them gaslight us on Australia Day. We want to roll this into Australia Day weekend celebration. Um, so a couple of days before it, but yeah, it can be any time that day. Um, it can be any type of sign. If you're one man in a paint tin, you can do what I did on the rift today for all that really matters.

As long as you show your unity in some fashion, take the photos and pump them out to social media. So two for one day locations. Um, obviously I'm the main sort of, you get most of the information on my Facebook page. Um, just Jody Lowe as it's spelled on the screen here. Um, and then, yeah, jump into those chats, have a look where they're doing it, what beach, what time, what to bring.

Um, and then, yeah, you'll see the flyers come out from that. Top stuff, Johnny. Any final comments, Matt? Well, just thinking, Hoody, that, uh, perhaps, uh, as Club Grubbery, we need to, um, to see whether somebody can put an 832 sign out there, uh, somewhere. And, uh, the largest 832, or the most innovative, uh, will send a, uh, Club Grubbery package with a hoodie bag and some, uh, merchandise from Drifter.

So, uh, get out there, get that 832, uh, happening, and we'll, uh, We'll, we'll send the pictures off and, uh, yeah, we'll, we'll get some, get that out. Great. Is the 832 stuff still going? Like, is there still, because I heard that it was going to have days, like I was talking about, Michael was saying that there was going to be days that they were going to have like this sort of thing, a peaceful sort of gathering rather than a, um, you know, a mission statement, but is that still rolling or has that started or?

Yeah, 832 has been rolling on for a long time, mate. It's, uh, catching on all over the world actually, so. Yeah, we just haven't, I reached out to a few people earlier in the day to say that, you know, we were happy to run some stuff up here, you know, you know, we're, we're North Queensland sort of where we, um, we pay for you, he likes to have good rides to go to your events.

Maybe Brad at the Cali needs to get the paintbrush out. Oh, that's a good idea, mate. The Cali, yeah, that'd look amazing next to that red end sign. Yeah, I think that's where I got, that's where I got most of that sort of idea from. I remember how much, uh, you know, remember how much publicity you got for that back in the day, so.

Yeah, council will be real happy. Come on, Brad. Come on, mate. I'm sure he will. He'll be up there. I hope he doesn't fall off that roof. He spends a lot of time up there. He does. All right, uh, Jase, can I put you on the spot and, and probably put Jodie on the spot and ask you to pray it out? You know what? I'm very happy to, but given you've got an atheist in the corner, I'd love to hear a few words from Jodie.

Now, I mean, I am a Christian, so you know that, um, I speak, um, I speak the truth. Uh, I speak of God. I'm a massive, um, uh, how do I say this? I try to live my life accordingly every day. Um, not with that great success, but I'd love to hear it from, from the lips of Jodie. What do you got Jodie? Well, that's what the 17 rules really sort of tied back in.

And that's why I said the further I went down this journey, the more I came back to what baseline Christianity probably started out as, um, you know, um, everything that I've sort of given, given thanks for is the, um, four principles of. Um, spirituality, um, physical, intellectual, financial, and emotional.

They've been the things that I've seen echoed across all religions, um, and spiritual sort of movements across the world, where we're basically looking after fellow humans. And whoever you believe is your leader that puts you in the position that you're in today to, um, to have the strength to be in this fight, um, that's good enough for me.

I don't need to say, you know, who it is or why. I just give thanks for the fact that I can and I am. Yeah, I got to tell you, I've said it a million times. I'm not a fan of religion, but I love God. That's, um, I think religion has done a lot of harm to a lot of people. And, and I think it's done a lot of harm to the God, the creator that it's meant to serve.

And, um, so, you know, Jason, John and I, we're just about relationships. That's it. Absolutely. And I'm massive, uh, for wisdom for me, it's, you know, I'd give me wisdom every day to make the right decisions to discernment knowledge, you know, but it's okay to have that. But for me, it's a bit like Solomon really, you know, it's like, um, getting that wisdom because it's the one thing you can really use to tune into that spirit within you, you know, call it Holy Spirit, call it what you want.

But for me, it's Holy Spirit. And once you have that wisdom in you, and that's what you're asking for, you're not asking for all this superficial garbage out there. You're looking for that very thing to connect you to the very thing that created you. And I reckon that's one of the most important lessons I've learned in my life.

And I give thanks for that every day. Well, the big, the big thing for me is just the first part of a serenity prayer, which is God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can and the wisdom to know the difference. And that's what this has been all about.

This whole conversation has been about that. Uh, we've got to have the courage to do something that we can, we can affect a change around. We've got to push to the curb that stuff that we just can't do anything about because it's just a waste of our time and energy and focus on what we can do and just gaining wisdom to be able to make decisions like that on a daily basis.

So I want to thank you both for coming on, um, Johnny, it's been a, it's been a good one. We'll get this one out very quickly. Um, we want to hear from you later on as well, Jodie, if you need to come back on and, um, and talk about anything, I'd love to hear from you after the event as well. To see how you thought it went and, uh, more power to you, buddy.

Thanks so much for having a backbone.

Thanks for having me on. I mean, I don't have much problems with speaking. So anytime you want to do it, let's do it. And tell us what, what are you holding in your hand? That's a tiger's eye crystal. It's, um, it helps me, it helps me when I, when I get a little bit nervy on these. On these, uh, big, big platforms, mate.

I still, I still suffer a little bit with the anxiety. So as much as I love speaking, I'm, I'm always working on making sure that I can keep myself grounded. Um, making sure that the intent of what I'm doing is. Not overawed by the moment and, um, you know, that I can, that I can speak from the heart. There's something to be overawed about on this particular show, mate, where I've got my, uh, laptop sitting on a, sitting on a, uh, box of tissues at the moment to give me a bit of light.

Ah, Jesus. Anytime, anytime you spend any time talking about this sort of stuff on these computers, they, boy, oh boy, they, they tune into you. So. This is, this is more about the people that are watching from places that we don't know that they're watching than it is from the people that are watching from your viewers.

Yeah, but you would, you'd rather do, sorry, you'd rather be doing this, Jodie, than doing nothing, mate. Let me tell you, there's not a more important time in your life than right now. That's it. And let me tell you, and also to all the boys and girls at the Australian Signals Directorate, who we know are listening and watching us.

We know because our IT people have found your footprints all over our stuff. We hope you deal with the Indonesians and the Chinese a little bit more surreptitiously than you do with us, but this must be boring the daylight out of you guys listening to us prattle on every night. But we do appreciate, we, um, we love having a little bit of extra audience.

And if it's the Australian Signals Directorate and Australian Intelligence, good on you. And, um, we hope you stay tuned as often as you can. Johnny, you've often been heard to say, you just couldn't make this stuff up. You couldn't make this stuff up. God bless everyone. Stay out of the trees. Don't forget what you did yesterday.

Got you to today. What you did last year, got you to this year. We still live in a fantastic country, there's some great people, we're all out there doing the best we can. Let's cut each other a whole heap of slack, and all this divisive stuff, and just get on with being Australian, as we approach Australia Day as well.

Good luck on the 24th of January, Jodie and Jason, lovely to catch up mate, I'd love to chat soon as well, buddy. No worries, mate. Thanks, boys. So thanks for watching Club Grubbery and we'll be back very soon, uh, probably next week with a whole chain of interviews and we're looking forward to announcing a big one very soon.

God bless you and see you later. Bye for now.
