2024-12-14 Graham and John speak with Dr William Bay and the court decision against AHPRA...

Well, G'day everyone and it's Saturday the 14th of December and it's eight o'clock here in Sydney time and what a great program this is. We don't normally record on a weekend, but we are in this case because there has been a momentous decision made and we have of course on the screen someone who needs no introduction He is no longer the suspended Dr.

William Bay. He is Dr. William Bay. Welcome to the show, William. Thanks, Woody. How you doing, Johnny? Good, mate. Good. Well done. Thank you. Well done. And look, this is, this has given a much needed, uh, injection of, uh, of hope into the, into the lives of so many of us. And we want to, first of all, unpack, uh, briefly how all this came about and what happened.

We want to talk about the judgment and we want to also discuss with you, How this affects the future for doctors in the same space that you're in and others who are thinking about coming out and how best to apply that, uh, given the circumstances of the judgment. So without further ado, uh, Dr. William Bay, welcome to, uh, you're back to your profession and um, where have you been in the last few months?

The last we heard you were in Bali. Tell us a little bit about where you've been.

Uh, you know, I've been living in Brisbane, uh, for the last few months. It's been a difficult time for me to find somewhere to live, uh, because, well, I had no job and without a job, uh, not only is it difficult to pay rent, um, but it's difficult to secure a place to rent because the landlords don't want to rent to somebody who doesn't have a job.

And I couldn't not just get a job as a doctor, I couldn't get a job anywhere. It seems, um, not only because Opera had issued me with a letter. stating that, um, I wasn't allowed to work in any job whatsoever related in any way possibility to healthcare, uh, which the judge also found was, um, an illegal letter and opera withdrew during the trial.

But I also couldn't get a job because it seems like my name has been defamed across the internet entirely, uh, until yesterday, completely blacklisted. So I praise God and I praise Jesus for finally getting me into this place. It took me a year. Because, of course, my, my marriage broke down during the, the stresses of this, uh, attack by ARPA, attack by the medical board.

And so I, um, been out of the family home for about a year now. I'm separated going through a divorce, but I love Jesus still very much. And I'm very pleased to found, um, a new partner in life. I'm hoping to get back on my feet with, with employment and maybe small business again. And I'm just so grateful to Jesus, to God for giving me victory in the Supreme Court matter yesterday, because not only was it a victory, it was a complete victory.

In my opinion, the judge gave me everything I wanted and more. I'm just, I'm just so happy to be relieved of this burden that opera illegally put on me right from the very beginning as justice Bradley found yesterday.

Yeah, so true, Johnny, the biggest issue I think Australia has had with the medical profession has been a complete lack of trust as a result of, uh, APRA's interference with what doctors can say.

I remember three GPs, uh, discussing the situation with me prior to my decision to be vaccinated or not saying, look, if, if it were, if they were me, they wouldn't rush into it, but don't tell anyone I told you. Why not tell anyone you told me? Because APRA and the government have been interfering with the relationship between the doctor and the patient.

And that is sacrosanct. That must never be interfered with, John.

No, that's 100 percent right, Woody. And, uh, it's, it's not just APRA as we know it. It's, uh, the, the TGA as well, which, uh, Jared Renick has been exposing. Uh, I mean, you know, these people are so, uh, so up themselves and, uh, they've got a God complex.

They, they think that they can overrule the coroner. on postmortems. Uh, I mean, this is how mad these people are. Uh, but it goes on and, uh, lives are wrecked. Uh, people die, people are murdered and, uh, nothing to see here. Exactly. And Billy, thanks for sending me a copy of the judgment. It's, it's what, almost 30 pages, I think.

And it's been, uh, it's, it's, uh, it's, it's an incredible document to read. I mean, how you keep up with it. I know. And you know, a lot of us are looking for, uh, you know, what the judge has actually said, what is he allowing to happen now? So give us your, um, your, um, understanding of what that judgment means now going forward.

I mean, it hasn't come out and said, The COVID vaccines are wrong, uh, that they should be banned or anything like that. It's not supporting anything like that. It's supporting more of the procedural right. Doctors have to conduct themselves with their patients. Am I right? Or have I misread that somewhere?

Yeah, no, I agree with you. Um, on the whole in regards to that, um, no, this case was not about whether the vaccines were right or not, I was, um, fighting for a more important and fundamental right, in my opinion, which was the right for doctors to speak freely. about whether the vaccine was good or not.

That's all I ever wanted. That's all we've all ever wanted. Isn't it just the freedom to speak our minds, our truth. And indeed that was what was given to doctors prior to 2021, prior to the pandemic. Nobody ever questioned the right of doctors and nurses and paramedics and psychologists to speak freely about their own patients conditions, right?

So this idea that doctors and paramedics have to be afraid Of what they say, they have to be cautious of what they say to others and whisper in corners, uh, and speak carefully about what they say is a Abomination on healthcare. And it is something that hopefully has been overturned now by the decision of justice Bradley in the Supreme court of Queensland, because not only did the justice give me victory in this matter on Friday as a self represented applicant, but he gave me victory in a profound way because he ordered costs to me and he ordered costs, um, to me for any other incidental costs, I may need to pay Queensland.

And he ordered opera to pay for that. And the, and the, um, three other judgments he made was that my suspension was overturned or set aside and not just set aside, but backdated from the very first day, Johnny, that it happened on the 17th of August, 2022. That means all that criminality is now washed away by ARPRA, uh, and opens up the door for mass compensation for me to take it from the medical board and ARPRA and every other person who has wronged me in the medical community in this country.

Also, the justice overturned the investigation decision, um, and overturned it retrospectively as well from the 17th of August, uh, to say that the investigation into me basically should never have happened at all. There was no foundation. There was no foundation to investigate me because there were no patient complaints against me.

Uh, it was purely about political speech and social media posts and interactions with Michael Griffith and others. Even a dog, they had impugned a dog barking during one of my Queensland People's Protests. So, the judge was astonished and profoundly disappointed, I think, some of the words he used in the way that APRA conducted themselves.

He was so disgusted with their corrupt behaviour, um, he found that they had acted with bias And they had acted with procedural unfairness and they had covered that up for many, many months, thus wasting the court's time, thus wasting the justice's time, thus wasting the taxpayer's money, let alone, you know, keeping me out of employment for two and a half years.

And so because of that, He, he also quashed the entire tribunal proceeding in QCAT in the Queensland Civil and Administrative Tribunal here in Queensland, where APRA still to that day, yesterday was trying to deregister me because of suspension wasn't enough, Johnny, they wanted to deregister me for professional misconduct for speaking about political events in this country.

So he quashed that, that abomination of a trial in QCAT as well. So That's why I say it's a complete victory. And what does it mean for doctors and nurses around this country? In my opinion, I'm not a lawyer, but in my opinion, it means that people can speak freely once again, because if I can get away with, um, you know, storming into a, an AMA national conference and yelling at everybody, then your doctor in your clinical room can speak confidently to you about the risks of the vaccines.

So hopefully, um, by me taking on opera and winning, people just simply don't need to be afraid anymore and we can get back to normality in this country, which is about telling people the truth.

Wow. Johnny.

Do you think, um, uh, Billy, that they will still come after, uh, everyone else? Do you, do you think that they'll strike this up as, I mean, cause the judge in his, uh, in his judgment basically said that they.

Had, uh, they'd acted incorrectly, uh, they, they, they were basically, uh, sitting in hope that, uh, that you would go away, that, you know, they would get it quashed. And the activities that they engaged in, uh, would, would not come to light. Um, I mean, that's in respect to your particular case, but do you think on balance that, that this is going to open up the door for everyone else?

Or is it just a case that, that they ballsed it up with you?

Well, they certainly did balls it up with me. However, um, I think they've been ballsing up with the entire country. And if any doctor or paramedic has a close look at their procedures and get some of the documents that opera has been using against them to suspend them or put conditions on them or threatened them, they might find that there are a lot of procedural irregularities with, with their case too.

So I think at the very least it's going to make opera Um, or bring accountability to opera to act within the law. And that's all we want. Isn't it just our government agencies acting within the law, respecting the law. And so I think that is a benefit for doctors and nurses around the country that opera now has to act properly and within the law.

And also, um, the judge referred in the judgment to how I had not broken the code of conduct. So that vindicates me as a doctor, not being vaccinated. And working as a doctor being unvaccinated that also vindicates me as a doctor being able to speak freely to come on shows like this, to post on social media, to speak loudly at protests around the country.

He declared that there was no basis of foundation for me breaching the code of conduct on that. And why? Because as the justice asked the King's council for opera, What has William done to patience? Can anybody tell me what he's done? Where is the harm? He was begging the council, the barrister to describe for him what William had actually done and the barrister could come up with nothing.

Oprah hadn't, when it came time for the cards to be shown in the court case, they had nothing in their hands. They had nothing to show except that my statements had impugned the confidence of the, in the government and had impugned the confidence in the vaccines. But as a judge said, so what, that's not harmed anybody.

So I think that my case, although, um, my win has been grounded in procedural unfairness and bias, I think that that can be applied to many people's cases. And it shows that the code of conduct, uh, will support doctors speaking out in benefit of the public. and, and warning of their patients. Not, um, it's not a bad thing.

It may even be a good thing. And certainly the evidence has now showed that these vaccines weren't very good at all.

Well, one hopes that, uh, I mean, this ends up just being a, a balance of ideas, you know, and, and, and people being able to talk freely so that people can make an informed decision about what, what they do with their bodies.

I mean, because what we've been through is essentially Opera, the TGA and all these other bureaucrats telling us how the, how, how it's going to be. And nobody else has got any right to question it. Uh, well, I think what this demonstrates is that, uh, uh, you can speak up. Uh, you can say that I think this is a red flag and raise your hand up.

Uh, and, and end of the day, you, as you rightly point out, Billy, the judges identified that that wasn't hurting anyone. In fact, You could argue that it's actually protecting the community because it's, it's opening up a conversation around these very important topics.

Yes. Yeah. And so the more people that join with me to speak freely about the vaccines or whatever they may be, will be protected for the entire medical community, because the more people who exercise this right to freedom, the stronger it will become and the less likely ARPA is to attack anybody.

So unity is strength. So I encourage all doctors and paramedics and nurses and everybody to stand with me now and speak clearly. And freely and confidently about the vaccines and anything else that comes our ways and together, you know, we will win.

Absolutely. And, and what I, what I love about this, uh, this decision by Justice Bradley is it's restored our faith in the fact that not everyone in the judiciary seems to want to go along with the narrative.

Thank you, Justice Bradley. We've been looking for that for a long time, but Johnny, you'll be happy with this because ARPA has been in our sights for three years and, and these guys have. have changed the course of medical discourse in Australia between patients and doctors, and doctors and doctors and nurses and doctors.

And they have exposed, this judgment has exposed the soft underbelly of a corrupt organization. I'm not saying necessarily corrupt financially, or they're on the take. It's corrupt in the way it operates. It's corrupted in its thinking. It's corrupt. It's its policies are corrupted. And the fact that, um, Two professors were named in the judgment, Billy, as having acted in a biased way, uh, in these charges leveled against you, shows that just because someone's got a professor in front of their name doesn't mean that we should value everything that they say.

Professor Crabb, from the, uh, from the, um, What Institute, Johnny, the Burnett Institute, the Burnett Institute. Well, one of those professors, uh, was the head of the medical board of Australia, the body responsible for suspending me for exercising my free speech about the vaccines and surprise, surprise, uh, less than a couple of weeks ago, just prior to the release of this judgment, what did she do?

Dr. Anne Tonkin, she resigned. But she's gone. She's out of there. We've already got accountability now. The head of the medical board is gone, Johnny.

Well, what did they say? It's like rats, uh, jumping off the sinking ship. But, uh, well, you can't say much more about it. Can you? I mean, that, that, that just says it all.

I mean, the fact that they're departing. Departing like that tells you everything. Uh, it's very, very sad.

Just like they were departing in the AMA conference of July, 2022. I think when the light is shone on people's actions, um, if they've been doing wrong, they don't really want to face up to it and, you know, it's just.

That is what the justice found is that opera knew they had been acting wrongfully towards me, and they covered it up to the very last moment. They even covered it up during the trials only after the trial as the judge wrote. Did they concede that they had acted with bias? They had acted with procedural unfairness, and so that's why really the judge had no other choice basically, but to Destroy them, which he did.

And that's great because they do need a rap on the knuckles because they have acted illegally. And I will be taking this further to make sure they get more accountability. Well, the board's gotta go, isn't it? The entire board, surely you would think so. You would absolutely think so. And that's Jill Callister, PSM, who's the head of a pra

Well, and, uh, we know, uh, Martin Fletcher's on the way out.

But, uh, yep. Whoever's acting as the interim, CEOI mean, they should be ruled out, uh, for, uh, any, uh, tap on the shoulder to take over. Uh, this, this organization needs to be. Uh, if not disbanded, uh, it needs to have a complete overhaul because what's going on here? Uh, I mean, as identified by Justice Bradley Bias.

I mean, these, these are things that you talk about at corruption commissions, you know, ICAC and the like. I mean, this, this stuff's not just, uh, you know, when Supreme Court judges are, are abandoning around those sort of words about a government organization in charge of medical oversight for Australia.

Come on.

Well, yeah, the, and the reason why the justice, um, was so, uh, uh, uh, critical of a PR was because when a finally released the complaint against me, see, they'd been hiding it from me for two and a half years, even though I'd been asking for it. They finally, I finally prided out their, their hands on the last day of the trial when it was finally revealed the complaint.

Who did it turn out to be who complained against me, but the state manager of APRA, Woody. So APRA, the state manager, APRA complained about me and Queensland people's protest, protesting APRA outside of APRA on a weekend. Nobody got hurt. It was a peaceful protest. No big deal. Uh, we're just exercising our implied right of political communication as guaranteed by the constitution.

They complained about that to the office of the health ombudsman, and in their complaint, they suggested or directed that that complaint should be considered by APRA jointly with the office of the health ombudsman, then referred back to APRA, who would then refer it onto the medical board so it could be suspended.

That's what was revealed in that was written the very complaint by the state manager of opera. So the judge was quite livid about that. And the other piece of, uh, um, inappropriate behavior was from Professor Dr, uh, and Tonkin, the former chair of the medical board who colluded with the complainant. In the AMA conference protest, she colluded with him to craft the complaint, submit the complaint to APRA, where then she then sat on the judge and jury panel, the suspension committee that decided whether to suspend me or not.

So it was a complete conflict of interest. And that covered that all up. Remember? So when that all came out, yes, the judge was saying, um, many harsh words to opera and opera really didn't have the leg to stand on, but yet they still persisted. And even on the last day of the trial, they said to me and to the court that Dr.

Bay had been acting illegally. As a doctor, he'd been working illegally, being unvaccinated. And the judge said, you don't have any evidence of that. And ARPRA's Kings Council said, we don't need it. And the judge said, what are you talking about? In Australia, we have innocence before guilt. And ARPRA's barrister said, no, we don't need that.

He's guilty. We don't need evidence. And that really, I think, annoyed the judge completely. And probably led to this very powerful judgment against ARPRA.

Well, you know what, that's, um, once again, the soft underbelly of so many different inst excuse me, institutions has been exposed here. Even the judiciary has been exposed.

Judge Bradley has exposed the, uh, ineptness of the judiciary, John, even in your trials.

Well, Hoody, look, I mean, how does a King's counsellor say in a Supreme Court in Australia that, that you don't need evidence? I mean, surely, surely if you're gonna, if you're gonna come up with these trumped up Uh, inquiries into Billy, myself, Mark Hobart, Paul Oosthuis, all these other people, I mean.

How do you not have an inquiry into a, a, a King's council that thinks you don't need evidence in a court?

Exactly. Exactly. I mean, that this King's Council had to admit Yeah, go on. He had to admit, um, less than two weeks later in a written document to the court, he had to concede that, um, not only was he wrong and that I had been practicing legally, um, and properly as a doctor, and there was no evidence against me about that.

But the opposite was in fact, true that opera had known for more than a year that they had. My, all my records, all my Medicare documents, all my vaccination record on hand the whole time. And they knew for more than a year that there was nothing wrong with anything I'd done. So he conceded that he didn't apologize, by the way, he conceded that he was wrong, but you know, mistakes were made.

Mistakes were made. We can look, we could write thousands of pages on the mistakes that were made at the expense of innocent people. You know, we, we've been, we've been, it's not just, it's not just the, the William Bays of the world that have had their careers buggered, I mean, by them not being allowed to speak out and, and, and, you know, Facebook, uh, you know, putting the shadow banning and, you know, banning people for 30 days and a million days and whatever else, I mean, this is the sort of stuff that has led to people taking vaccines like the MRNA, right?

that is never safe or effective. Uh, and look what's happened.

Yeah, absolutely. The consequences of censorship is poor health outcomes. That's why it's so important that doctors and nurses and everybody else are allowed to speak freely. We cannot have health in this country unless we have empowered, sensible, competent clinicians.

Unbelievable. John, no doubt this decision will be giving you pause for thought. Now, um, no doubt you'll be examining the judgment and probably getting, uh, others in the legal fraternity to look at it. Uh, do you see that this may provide a precedent that may assist you in some way?

Well, look, Woody, uh, it's difficult. Look, I suppose everyone's circumstances are different and, uh, But look, the premise is the same. I mean, you know, they, they attacked me. They suspended me for, for talking about the vaccines. Uh, they've done it, um, softly to so many other people as well. I mean, you and I know nurses, doctors and the like that have been suspended or reprimanded by your area health services just for liking a post on, on Facebook.

I mean, this is the sort of, uh, where all the tentacles have gone from this opera. I mean, the, the, the It, it, they, they are, I, I just wanna see them overhaul or, or disbanded and, uh, you know, and an organization take over that, that has the Australia's health, uh, in its interests. Uh, because this, this mob clearly does not, in my view, uh, that their, their remit should be.

Um, to, to assist, uh, clinicians and, and to, to get good health outcomes in this country. And, and they, they've supported no, neither, you know, we've ended up with, with a worse system and, uh, bad health outcomes because of the tyranny that's been imposed from these grubs.

Yeah, in the judgment at paragraph 17, uh, the judge wrote that APRA had given the excuse that the reason they acted so, uh, unfairly towards me and made baseless accusations and suspended me, et cetera, was because it was an extraordinary period of history.

It was, it was a difficult time in Australia's life for the pandemic and they should be excused for such behavior. And the judge rejected that outright. And he said that none of the measures, uh, implemented in Australia during the. pandemic and I quote none authorized the board to deny Dr. Bay procedural fairness.

None extended the board's regulatory role to include protection of the government and APRA from political criticism. That's a fantastic statement from the judiciary. So, yeah, that's so typically that, that, that, uh, the, the judge is saying opera is being used to protect the government and taking out paramedics and doctors who, who step out of line.

It's so, uh, I think that, you know, again, I'm not a lawyer, but that could be used in other people's cases to show that opera's powers do not extend lawfully to political censorship, which sort of makes sense, right? It. They really went beyond their powers. And that is why I think, um, I won my case purely by exposing it.

And the way I did it, um, when he was by going to the Supreme court, you see, because if I'd gone to the tribunal where opera had wanted me to go, none of this actually would have come out. None, none of it at all, because in the tribunal, They, they start afresh. It's called a de novo decision. They do it new.

And I don't know if they did that for you, Johnny, they took you to tribunal first, but once you're in the tribunal, you're basically already cooked because they just, they look at everything on a merits decision making basis again, and none of the actions of opera or the medical board are examined, but in the Supreme court where I went, where you're doing in judicial review and you are.

Reviewing all the actions of the administrative decision maker, all these little irregularities and procedures come to light and surprise, surprise for an organization been getting away for it for over a decade. They had their hands deep into the cookie jar, two chocolate bars thick.

And the other problem is like NCAT, QCAT, whatever your kit cap, whatever they are, whoever you want to call them.

Look at the end of the day, these people are not the judiciary. They're not judges. I mean, you've got a panel member who's probably a solicitor or, you know, Uh, a senior counsel, uh, but the panel members, uh, they could be candlestick makers. Uh, and I mean, this is the madness of it all, uh, and they come into it with biases.

I mean, you're essentially, they're, uh, playing in a theater to them, you know, uh, do they like you? Don't they like you? You know, what you say, does it, does it resonate with their personal opinions, with their point of view? Uh, you know, it's not being based on, on merit or, uh, or, or, or law or, or, um, the way the judiciary would look at things in my opinion.

Um, so it, it, it, it does need to be in a Supreme Court for sure. You know, the pandemic response, they were extraordinary circumstances, but let me put my spin on the extraordinary circumstances. Years before the pan, the so called pandemic. The government sat down with ministers across all states and health bureaucrats across all states and they formulated a pandemic action plan.

And it looked good. And you know what we've learned since, gentlemen, is that if that plan had been enacted when the pandemic was declared, we wouldn't be in this mess now. But they formulated their plan and then they stepped outside of it and acted in accordance with the directions of somebody else.

Thank you very much. Yes. Somebody else has corrupted the health system in this country. And you can, you can, you can point at the WHO, you can point at a whole lot of other actors, the big funding suppliers in Bill Gates and, and the Garvey Institute and all these other players in this. This is what's showing the soft underbelly of the corruption in the health bureaucracies in this country.

Infected bloods. People suffering from infected bloods are dealing with this after 30 years. The people who struggle with the aftereffects of thalidomide, those who are struggling with the pelvic mesh scandal, all of these scandals are happening too close together. And we have big pharmaceutical companies have been granted exemption from prosecution.

What could possibly go wrong? We have to stand against this medical tyranny. Yes. And Billy, you had the temerity, and that's what upset ARPRA and the medical board, you had the temerity and the testimonials to go to the AMA conference. And tell them what for, how dare you? So, uh, so yeah, we're sorry, everyone.

We just got cut off. Um, internet dropped out, but Billy, it clearly, you offended the establishment because you had the temerity and the testimonials to go to that AMA conference. I think it was in Brisbane. And I still remember the video of you standing up. And saying the things that you said, challenging the board, how dare you do that?

And noticing the doctors at other tables nearby getting up and walking away from you. That was a pivotal moment. And that really upset the hierarchy. They don't like it when their boats rocked and good on you.

Yeah, thank you. No, they don't like it at all. And look, all I was really doing was, um, exposing what many people were thinking and that, uh, there were problems with the vaccines and we needed to talk about it.

Uh, I, I was at the conference legally. I paid for my ticket. I wanted to speak, but as I got up to speak, uh, they shut down questions, but you know, I felt it was an important moment to speak. It was a conference about the COVID 19 pandemic. And so I, um, told them what I thought of when they cut off my microphone, I just had to, to shout a little bit louder, you know, one shot, two shots, three shots, four, how many shots before, you know, you hit the floor.

So, uh, It was so important because I felt so many people were relying on me to do something, you know, I had so many supporters and injured patients begging me to, to get the message out. And if I didn't get it out that way, maybe I couldn't have got it out any other way. So I know I offended some people with that messaging, but at the end of the day, I'm glad I did.

Anything, I did something because it was the crime of the century. This whole pandemic and scandemic and forced vaccines and lockdowns has injured and killed so many people. It's just a, a, a tragedy of immense proportions and more accountability is required.

Absolutely. And Um, I was on the phone, uh, just a little while ago to, to, uh, Dr.

Chris Neal, the president of AMPS. Um, and, and, uh, for other reasons, we've been praying for his four year old son who fell off a ladder about 10 days ago and, and, um, and has been in intensive care with head, with head injuries. Thankfully, we can report that he's on the mend. Thank God for that. I think he's been in an induced coma.

But even amidst all that turmoil, Chris Neal has, has, um, is excited about this judgment and, um, he sees great potential in it. But obviously it, it, the judgment needs to be examined by not only doctors, but by lawyers to see if there are any, uh, hidden, hidden, uh, potentials. Traps in there. If there's a soft underbelly in that judgment that could come back to bite people.

So it's going to be discussed at length in offices and boardrooms around the country on both sides of the fence. And that is a wonderful outcome that is actually going to be examined to that level. And to that end, we will be getting, um, some people from, uh, the legal fraternity and from Amps and other, uh, medical establishments to come on and discuss it.

They're all very excited about it. They want to examine it. They want to examine the ramifications. Uh, we'll hopefully be talking to Dr. Julie Sladden, uh, and, uh, and perhaps Katie Ashby Coppins as well. So this Billy, this, this has happened because you had, as I said, the temerity and the testimonials to stand up.

You didn't care what anyone thought about you. You didn't care. How you came across, you gave the glory to God the whole way through, and I'm so grateful you did that. And, um, many people have raised their eyebrows about some of the things you've done in the past, Billy, and, and, um, I'm one of them. There are some times I've thought, Billy, what are you doing that for?

But at the end of the day, when it counted. You went in there and you stuck to your guns. You did it. You did it pretty much on your own. You, yes, you had a lot of supporters there with you. Uh, and the nurses from the spotlight group have been messaging me saying how grateful they are. And they're all hoping that now this will, this precedent will, will open up the conversation a whole lot more that needs to be open.

So my question to you following that little Blurb is where to for you now professionally. What are you, you probably haven't even had time to think about that, but what are your thoughts?

Yeah. Um, first I just want to say that you're absolutely right. That my victory is owed to God, to Jesus Christ. Um, without him, none of this would have been possible in any shape or form.

And, uh, I praise him for everything he's given me in this fight. And I'm just so grateful to be a part of his, his greater plan. And in regards to where to from here, I don't know. Yeah, the future is bright. The future is hopeful and the future is great. Um, fighting for the truth, standing for justice, standing for Jesus has enabled me now to have whatever life I want, I think.

Um, I'm not sure exactly where it's going to take me, but I would love to get involved in administration of the medical system to make this more just and fair and equitable for everybody. And to that regard, I must say that I went to a very intelligent man's, uh, speech or conference today. That is Senator Jared Renick.

Uh, a man who's also been fighting for vaccine, uh, and, and ethical justice in this country for many years. And I heard him speak at the launch of his party today, people first and boy, was I impressed. So I'm going to be joining his party and if it's in my future to help in any way, I would love to, to bring justice back to this country because reform is needed and reform is what we're going to get.

One way or another.

That's it. Brilliant stuff. And there's a lot going to be happening next year. Next year is a pivotal year in nurse history. There's no doubt about it. Um, it sounds like there could be an opening up for, uh, Billy as the chairman of ARPA.

Yeah. I was just about to say, I can see a new medical board with Billy as the chair and you heading up the paramedics.

The paramedics. Wouldn't that be great? Oh, yeah. That would be great. And, uh, and after Friday's judgment, look, it can happen. Anything can happen. I'm, I'm as surprised as anybody to the extent of my victory on Friday. I'm so amazed and grateful. And if that can happen, that a self represented doctor can be 10 lawyers and the best, uh, administrative counsel in the country, then we can get a new opera, a fresh opera, and we can have Johnny on top and tell everybody to go speak their minds and we can all be.

Happy again, and, and God fearing, God loving, free citizens once again.

Yeah, you know, but, but, you know, there's an old head on my shoulders. I hate to admit it because I don't like having an old head because it means I'm old. And the grey hair testifies to that. But I, I, I am, I am very, very skeptical and cautious for this reason, the Supreme Court in Queensland ruled in favour of the human rights of paramedics and police officers in that state that they were trampled on.

Queensland Police Service to their credit have acted in accordance with that ruling. Queensland Ambulance Service, the paramedics, They're still unemployed and there are still nurses in Queensland who are being dicked around by the Queensland Health Ministry and not employing them because they don't meet the professional standards.

And these are nurses with 30 and 40 years experience, and we're importing nurses from overseas. So I'm wearing an AFA t shirt, which represents 30 plus par uh, not paramedics, firefighters in Victoria, who at this moment are still fighting for justice from the fire and rescue Victoria and getting their jobs back.

Men who are facing their fourth Christmas without an income. This has That's disgraceful. That, look, there is enough judgment out there now to say that this kind of reprehensible behaviour. By these organizations is nothing more than blatant getting square. It's vengeance on people who dared to question, who dared to doubt them.

And you don't run a frontline organization where those at the top can't be questioned from those underneath. That's a recipe for disaster. You need people with integrity back on the job. Absolutely.

And, and indeed that level of, uh, ferocious, uh, attack on me occurred in my matter. Even the justice recognized that he said that there was a certain level of animus.

That opera strangely displayed towards me and why I think you, you mentioned before these, because they were just so embarrassed by a little GP, a GP registrar standing up to the establishment, but, uh, Goliath has been slayed today. Oh, yes, I was David. And if God self shall grant it again, I'd love to take them down again and again and again, until their legacy is completely cleared from this continent.

And we've got a fresh and clean and lawful medical regulator once again.

Well, the course has been set for you, Billy, and you're going to surround yourself with the best people and God bless you and do that. And Johnny Lada, um, you have to be reinstated. This, this, um, this isn't over until you get your job back as far as I'm concerned.

Or at least be properly compensated for your losses. Um, this, this needs to be I think we're going to be in a grave before that happens, Hoddy, but regardless.

Ah, well.

I don't see any, uh, I don't see any way forward, uh, with, with, uh, the use of WISE Ambulance. Look, Dominic Morgan, uh, there's no way in the world they're going to allow me to return to work.

They would, they would rather have ambulances running around with no one in them and have me in there. That, that would just. undermine their, uh, their position totally. And they, they won't stand for it. I mean, this is a type of people you, you're dealing with. They're not interested in the people. They're not interested in the organization.

They're not interested in the community. They're just interested in, uh, in saving face. And, uh, and, and, and this is what they'll do. And I look, I really hope I, I. I mean, I'm not a lawyer. I, I, having read the judgment, um, I just hope that, that, uh, it's interpreted, um, that this, this is a, is a real win. I, I, I mean, I'm not trying to be negative Billy, but I just hope that, you know, it's not a case of, uh, you know, this is just a, uh, an error at law and there wasn't really any merit to, to, to the decision.

It was, it was all based around. The dreadful behavior of APRA and APRA will, uh, you know, likely just say, well, we'll get rid of a few people internally because they were bad. Very bad, and they acted inappropriately, and we'll get rid of them, and then they'll come out even harder against everyone else. Um, I hope that's not the case, uh, but I'm fearful that they will, uh, that, that, that's what they'll do, because this is, this is the juggernaut, this is the octopus, uh, that this organisation is, and I, I just don't see any of these organisations changing their culture in a hurry.

Well, I hope they, they learn from this, uh, that a single man can, can fight them and can win. And if more people stand up and fight back, then we will totally dominate them. So if they want to carry on with, with garbage and, and suppress freedom of speech and clinical autonomy, again, I hope and believe that more doctors and nurses will join with me this time by fighting back.

And again, the way to do that is not in the tribunals. It's in the courts because the judiciary has, has saved me. And they can possibly save you as well. Don't be afraid of them. Please have courage. We can, and we will win.

I think they're great words, Billy. I mean, this has got to be a unity ticket now. I mean, we we've been in a situation up till now where people haven't been willing to stand up.

Uh, it has been very few. Uh, there's been some brave ones, but there's, there's very few, there's a lot of, a lot of people sitting on the sidelines and they haven't, they haven't, uh, you know, they haven't dived in. Well, they need to, and they need to get behind Billy. They need to get behind everyone and break the damn wall open because, uh, if, if we stand together now, now's the time to really put the pressure on these mongrels.

Absolutely.

Absolutely. And you know, I'm, I'm encouraged by the fact that, uh, that we can, the harder we push, the more, the more reaction we get. And it's, you know, people have different ideas of pushing, you know, there's been a lot of argy bargy about, oh, you know, we've got to man the ramparts. True. But there are a lot of people fighting this cause from different ways.

Billy's been fighting it his way through the courts. Uh, we fight it in ways that we know best, John, that, that we feel most comfortable with using that. The talents that we may have been given to do that. And other people are fighting it in different ways. We've just got to accept the fact that we're after the same destination.

My destination is probably very libertarian. I want small government. I'm sick and tired of being manipulated by government in every facet of my life. Yeah, it's time for any elected representative now. To man up, whether you be in local government, state or federal, to man up and say the things that need to be said for the benefit of your constituents.

And we had that conversation with Professor Reuben Rose the other night, John, about the Portland Initiative, and he said, he indicated that, look, it's really hard because it's not in our remit. But health is in the remit of local government. And I'm sick and tired of, of, uh, of people saying about local government, they're all about, and the premier of WA said this, they're all about, uh, you know, collecting rubbish and making footpaths.

Well, why are they interfering in the lives of our children by allowing books in their libraries that are unhealthy? Why are they allowing drag queen story time and supporting woke agendas? Why are they socially engineering? Why are they interfering in every aspect of what we can do on our own property?

We're sick and tired of this and this is, has to be amplified. And Billy, you've helped to do that a lot today. You've given, you've given a lot of people some spirit. Good. And that's, that's how we do it. That's really how we do it. So, uh, we'll, we will be hopefully talking to some people who are going to be examining this judgment.

The people I've spoken to who will be joining us to discuss that are very excited about the potential. So. But we also, we've also got to make sure good strategy demands that we understand where the traps are set and we play this game very strategically, we have to be mission focused. And I said that to a guy in the freedom movement the other day, I said, um, you know, if, if you believe your target is to bring down the medical tyranny, then focus on the medical tyranny.

Don't get drafted off onto renewable energy and all this other stuff. We've got to focus on where the weak link in the armor is. And I think we're on it. I really think we're on it. A lot of people got to be pretty nervous in the medical fraternity and in the health fraternity around the country. Don't you agree guys?

Absolutely.

Well, I think the one thing that you can say about this whole, uh, episode, uh, is that it's a spiritual win.

Yes. Yes. That's right. That's, and you know what, that's maybe, that's, that's enough. Because if good can win, then that's great. That's what we're all here for. And that's what we're all fighting for in the end.

Well, all it takes for evil to thrive is for people of goodwill to do nothing. So that's it. I think, look, there's going to be more on this, Billy. Um, we'll, we'll convene a panel in the coming weeks. I know Christmas is upon us and that slows everybody down, but we're, we're relentless. Uh, we have been relentless at Club Grubbery.

Michael has been relentless with Cafe Locked Out. Um, you know, there's a podcast over in, in WA called Relentless and they've been relentless. We've got to be relentless. We've got to keep the pressure on and we've got to make sure that we do it with grace and compassion. and with the wisdom of Jesus. And that for me is the driving factor.

And I know it is for you. So any final question, Johnny?

No, look, I'm just, uh, I'm excited by what's happened, but, uh, I think it would be good just to, um, you know, get a legal, um, Get a number of legal minds to have a look at it and just see what it means going forward because, uh, that's, that's, that's essentially, um, the million dollar question here.

Uh, does this open up the door for, uh, Prosecutions. Does this open up the door for people for compensation for reinstatement? I mean, you know, why the Miley and the Mark Hobart, et cetera, having to go through what they're going through now in light of what Billy's, uh, uh, being able to achieve in Queensland.

I mean, all that should be dropped. Um, so let's just hope that, uh, that this is, uh, you know, more encompassing than, than, um, than, than just a solid main. Yeah, win for Billy. I mean, this needs to be hopefully able doing encapsulate a whole, uh, a whole heap of things for everyone. Well, when the right, when the right people get together and discuss the strategies from here, this is a major, a major, uh, defensive or offensive weapon has been handed, uh, to the whole movement with this decision today.

Uh, and. Calm minds need to sit down and think because we don't want people jumping out and say, right now I can say what we want and ending up getting into more trouble and they can take a stick at it. And I think caution is always advised when we have the time and we do have, we still have time to make a difference.

And, uh, and so strategies are really, really important. Anyway, I'm just.

Yeah, I just wanted to say, Hootie, what a great time it is to be alive. I know that so many people, uh, like ourself have suffered a lot, but, you know, that some of that suffering is nothing compared to what our forefathers and foremothers have been through like in the Second World War, World War and the First World War.

et cetera, et cetera. And, um, it's just great to, to get in the fight, have a go fight for Jesus, fight for truth, fight for justice. And sometimes you just never know the cards will stack up rightly for you and you will win. So thank you for having me on. And thank you for letting me share this, this victory.

I hope there's some greater good will come out of it for everybody. But at the end of the day, I've, I've done my best. I've served God. And that's all I think anybody can ask of me.

And that's all we're all doing, Billy. We're all in the same trench. So God bless you. And on that note, I think you should pray this one out.

Absolutely. Dear father, Lord Jesus in heaven above me, looking down upon us across this great country. Thank you so much great Lord for empowering me to the victory in the Supreme court of Queensland on Friday, the 13th of December, 2024. I praise you Lord. For making the victory for granting the victory for crafting the decision by justice Bradley to show that the judiciary is not as corrupt as we thought, that there is still goodness in people's hearts.

There is still freedom to be one and we can grab more. Thank you dear Lord for guiding me as always and guiding my brothers and sisters in this battle. I love you so much and dearly forever your friend forever and ever. Amen.

Amen. Thank you, Billy. Johnny, you've often been heard to say. You just couldn't make this stuff up.

Friday the 13th, who would have thought, hey, and uh, Justice Bradley, you're a champion and you're a very decent human being, uh, and thank you for unpoliticizing the judicial system.

Thank you. Amen to that. Stay out of the trees, everyone. If you love somebody and you haven't told them, don't forget, give them a call.

There's a lot of very distressed people out there. Keep the faith. And what we talked about today is just another, another proof of that. What we did yesterday got us to today. And we've gotten to another day and another stage in the fight when we're being relentless and Robin from um, Courage is a Cure over there in Perth, the name Relentless is brilliant.

I wish I'd thought of it before you did. Uh, but God bless you all. I think Michael Gray Griffiths actually claimed that, no? I think he's, I think he's had a go at Robin for, uh, for saying, Hey, that I use that term relentless. But Hey, it's in the dictionary. He cares. He uses it everywhere. Michael. Yeah. He uses it everywhere.

So God bless you all. Have great time with Michael tomorrow night. We know you're going to be on the program and, uh, it'll be a good one and God bless you, Billy. And we'll get you back on. And hopefully it'd be nice to get people to discuss, uh, the various aspects of the ruling. It would be really good to get that happening.

Absolutely. Entertaining. Entertaining. Good on you. And thanks everyone. We'll see you next week on Club Grubbery. Bye for now.
