Club Grubbery - Raw transcript of interview:

2025-08-18 Graham and John come back to review current events.

Good day Johnny, and good day everybody. What's the date, John? It is 18th of August, mate. It's been over two weeks. Hard to believe, isn't it? Well, it is easy to believe when I look at your face, 'cause you had a little bit of fuzz two weeks ago. Now you look like Santa Claus. What's going on? Yeah. Someone said that to me.

I I, I do look a bit like Santa Claus. So, uh, anyway, we'll, we'll we'll see what the, uh, the viewers think. Could you, whether it should stay or go.

Yeah, exactly.

Oh,

exactly. Well, I reckon, I reckon it, uh, looks pretty good, mate. You should come on with a beanie or something like that. You'd look like an old sea captain.

Yeah, go. No, it's, uh, it's great to be back on again. Of course, Michelle and I have been away for two weeks at Misty Mountain Health Retreat. Mm-hmm. Uh, owned and operated by, uh, Barbara and Michael O'Neil. Um, and I need to say upfront that, uh, there's no sponsorship. They didn't pay our way, they didn't give us any, uh, favors at all.

Um, it was funded by a dairy, very dear friend of the family who was very worried about our health and said, I want you guys to go there. And, um, he paid for it for us and we really, um, we really appreciate that. But I'll tell you what, mate, it was, um, not a moment too soon. It was, it was just amazing. And what it, what it highlighted for me was, um, just how rotten our health system is in this country.

Yeah. Because. Part of the process. Yeah. I mean, we were there for two weeks. We sat through a whole bunch of videotaped, uh, or recorded lectures from Barbara O'Neill. Just really basic stuff, just explaining how the anatomy works, how, how our, how our biology works, how our brain works, uh, all thoroughly researched and, and just showing tips on how we can enhance those parts of our body for our health.

And, you know, you link up what she says with what Ian Bright Hope says, uh, with what Robin Cosford says. And it all just makes plain sense. It's just good education.

Mm-hmm. And, uh, I've gotta say, we were there for, as I said, two weeks. There was nothing crazy. It was exercise, good food, a bit of fasting, uh, juice fasting, not radical fasting, um, and clean air and uh, plenty of good sleep.

You know, a few treatments like, uh, you know, colonic irrigation. Have you ever had one of those, John? No,

I haven't. Not any one?

Well, there's a few people offered to give us a few of those with fire hoses and whatever, haven't they? Yeah.

But, uh,

but I tell you what it was, uh, it's just incredible what you learn about the body by doing something like that.

I look, I highly recommend it, and as I said, I'm not plugging 'em because I'm getting anything from it. I just, I just think if we're gonna really fix the health system in this country. Um, we've gotta do things like this. And the fact that she is, uh, is banned from, uh, doing anything in Australia, doing any lecturing in Australia, uh, is just ludicrous.

Absolutely. Flame and ludicrous John. It's just bizarre.

Mm-hmm. Yeah, it makes no sense, um, at all. Is that the usual, uh, stay time? What is it? Two weeks?

No, normal. Most people stay for a week, I think. Look, it is, it is on the pricey side, but what you get is incredible. Um, you know, I'm, I have, I've completely changed the way I, I look at life now from a health perspective.

Um, I'm a lot healthier, a lot healthier. I'm a lot fitter after two weeks and I saw some incredible things happening with people there. That were really, really sick when they came and, um, really struggling. And I saw a lot of good stuff happening. And it's just basic healthy nutrition, understanding what you need to put in your body.

If you, if you've got a problem with your liver, then there are certain foods you don't eat, uh, you know, avoid sugars and carbohydrates. It's, it's basic stuff. But I mean, John, if we're gonna have a health system in this country, which we don't have at the moment, we have a disease management system. Um. All the money we spend on health could be much better spent educating people to learn what I've learned in the last two weeks.

Good basic health education with exercise and good food. It was just phenomenal. And the staff there, they, they work tirelessly. They're going flat out and they're amazing people the whole. You know, Misty Mountain Health Retreat is the staff. I've gotta be honest with you. It's just, they're amazing.

They're just incredible people. Um, so, you know, it was getting up every morning. You get woken up at six o'clock and, uh, you gotta go and do some exercises, take some juices, you know, some, uh, drink some lemon juice and stuff like that and get out and go for a walk in the freezing cold. And it was, it was just incredible.

But I, I gotta tell you, John, that um, some of the people there, one lady in particular. Uh, a year ago she was vibrant. Uh, she was managing a company, uh, articulate, attractive, 60-year-old woman. And, uh, she had two vaccines and a booster, and now she can't speak and she lost 20 kilos in the last two months.

She's a walking skeleton and she's, she's the most wonderful woman, and the only way she can communicate with people is to type what she says on a mobile phone and hold it to them. Um, she, she, she mumbles and she can't get words out. It's very hard to understand and it's so frustrating. And when you see that and you know that, that's, there's no doubt the doctors who are treating it don't know what it is.

We don't understand what's going on. They tell her, uh, we've never seen this before. 20 kilo weight loss. She's 36 kilos, John.

Wow.

And, and, and you look at that and you think, what on earth? What on earth is going on with this country? Mm. And the fact that people will call that, uh, fake, uh, or, or, you know, they'll ridicule her.

She's not running around saying, I'm vaccine injured. She knows she's, but she can't articulate it. She can't go to somebody and sit down and say, look, this is what's wrong with me. She can hardly talk to a doctor. And the doctors, the doctors just scratch their heads. Oh, look, we don't dunno. What, what could this possibly be?

I mean, it's breaks, it breaks your heart. It absolutely breaks your heart. So, mate, something's gotta give, something's gotta happen soon. Mm.

Well there is a bit happening, isn't there?

There is, there is. What's the latest from your perspective?

Well, I, I, uh. I, I think a lot of this, uh, stuff in the US is starting to, to resonate, uh, um, well not in New South Wales, but it seems to be, uh, ha having a flow on effect in, in some places.

I mean, I, I, uh, I noted that the, uh, Queensland Health Minister, now, this government up there appears to be the best government in Australia at the moment. The, uh, the Queensland government under, uh, uh, David Christopher Lee, uh, and he, he deserves some praise. Uh, the. The fact that they're, uh, they've been ordered, they've ordered the health departments to preserve that, uh, that, um, vaccine data, uh, that they were going to destroy, um, is, is a great result.

Uh, and that, that, that came about because of a petition. And, and I think people would've seen in the, uh. In, in, in different, uh, social rules, uh, over the last, uh, week or so. And even on the, on the mainstream media that, uh, both the, uh, premier and the deputy premier in Queensland were asked about their, uh, their vaccination status.

About their fluvac status. And they told the media to mine their own business that it was basically, uh, a, uh, a, a thing between them and their doctor. And I thought, well, that's, that's a real shift.

It is. Yeah. And, and hopefully they recognize that for everybody else we have a right to our own medical autonomy.

Mm-hmm.

Let's hope that happens. But that is, that is a good move. Now we, we wanna see, uh, David Christopher really put some leverage on the Queensland Ambulance Service to get those paramedics back to work. If we heard anything on that.

But I, I did wonder, I think it's Nichols, uh, Tim Nichols, is it the health minister up there?

You know, I think, uh, the time is right to, to speak to them about that and, uh, look, we'd like to invite them onto club Grubby to come and, and talk about it because. The, these, uh, you, you know, you're really setting, uh, the, the standard up there in Queensland. Uh, you, you've obviously recognized that there's major, uh, uh, flaws with, with what happened and, and you're trying to write that.

Uh, uh, and I, I think that's to, to be, uh, to be commended and yeah, we'd, we'd, we'd love to get them on the show and talk about it because these guys should be. Should be back at work. Uh, there's, there's no question about it. I mean, the courts up there have said that they should be back at work, and I, uh, and I hope given the, the, uh, the, uh, the stance that's been taken by the premier and, uh, senior ministers up there in the last, uh, week in relation to, uh, bodily autonomy and, and, uh, the flu vaccine that this resonates back, uh, to the COVID vaccines as well.

It'd be good, it would be great to get him onto, just to have a really rational, calm and respectful conversation about things like the fire ant, uh, dilemma that's going on in Queensland at the moment. Get their take on that and, uh, should that be proceeding and, you know, all the other issues that they seem to be, um, starting to turn the narrative on.

So, um, yeah. David Christopher, if anyone would like to come onto the program, we will, we will, uh, we'll give you a fair hearing. We honestly will. Because this stuff's gotta come out as best we can. Uh, Johnny, uh, quant fine. $90 million for, um, for, uh, unlawfully sacking 1,860 staff during the pandemic. Now I need to put this in perspective.

Um, everybody's saying, oh, you're gonna get a payout. No, no, no, no, no. Uh, this is to do with Qantas. Outsourcing their ground handling the baggage handlers and catering and all that sort of stuff. I think caterers are involved. Aircraft cleaners outsourcing that during the pandemic. In other words, they used the hardship of the pandemic having been given $2 billion to get through it by the government taxpayer money.

They used the hardship, the so-called hardship of the pandemic to sack all those stuff, and, uh, outsource that, uh, that those particular roles. Which was reprehensible. It really was. Mm-hmm. This fine. And the payouts, John, have nothing whatsoever to do with people who were fired over the mandates or who lost their job over the mandates.

That's something else again, and that needs to be addressed big time. Uh, but $90 million, John, it works out 1,860 staff, about 46 grand a a piece, which is. Pittance in this day and age, and that's if the lawyers don't take anything out of it, which well, they probably will. Uh, and that's if the government decides to share all of that fine with the people involved or whether they keep half of it or what.

So, um, it's a mess. It's Alan Joyce all over it. Uh, Vanessa Hudson's come out and said she apologized to those people for what they did. Vanessa, you haven't gone anywhere near far enough yet. You've gotta apologize to all the people who you terminated or who had to resign as a result. Of, um, of the mandates and they need to be properly compensated and, and given their positions back at Qantas if they want to work for you, which I doubt many of them would, um, because it ain't the company it used to be.

John.

No, I think it's right to point that out hoodie, that it's nothing, uh, in to do with, with the COVID mandates. Uh, so that's what needs to be redressed here. That's the elephant in the room. Yeah. Uh, and they haven't gone down that pathway, uh, and the court hasn't ordered them to go down that pathway.

But I, I can see how people would, uh, essentially say, oh, this is, this is good news, but it's not. Um, it's not. Due to that. So, uh, once again, we, we, we've got, uh, uh, you know, another big issue. I mean, there's so many airline staff that were sacked, um, on mandates, uh, as a result of Alan Joyce. And I mean, what, what a disgrace that this bloke, I as if we hadn't seen enough of this idiot, uh, I mean now they're, they're headlining him at the Australian Aviation, uh, summit.

Uh, he, he's, he's the headline act.

You are kidding.

No, no, it's unbelievable. Australian aviation, um, people were going nuts online when they, when he was there. I mean, it's just beyond belief. Uh, has he, has this event already taken place?

No, it's, it, I think it is taking place. Um, in fact, while you're talking there, I'll, I'll look it up.

But it's, it, it's a, it's an absolute joke. Um, well, that'd be great. We should go, um. Um, Matt, you're calling, you're calling me, I think

John, aren't I? Geez.

What happened then?

What happens? That's when, that's what happens when you grow a beard and you don't wear your glasses hoodie.

Yeah, no, I mean, it, I'd love, I'd love to, uh, have him on stage and be at that event and then ask him some serious questions from the audience. It, it would be good, wouldn't it? Um, I mean, they, they could have him there and ask him how on earth he managed to destroy one of the best airlines in the world. Uh, or, uh, geez, where is this stuff?

Um, speaking at the Australian Aviation Summit is one of his first major public appearances since leaving the Flying Kangaroo in 2023. Joyce said, resilience in the aviation industry often requires making unpopular short-term decisions to ensure long-term survival. Um, um, I'm not sure whether they've had it yet or not, but, uh, um, yeah, I mean, there it is.

Turbulence and triumph. I don't know whether you can see that bit underserved, but

No. Well, it's just, um, yeah, what a joke. What an absolute joke. What an absolute joke. There's so many other people that could have been up there, uh, talking about issues relating to aviation in Australia. It's just, it's just pathetic, but it is what it is, you know?

It's, it's the way of the world. So what else is, what else is happening? What's been happening? 'cause I've been, uh, very much out of the loop for two weeks. A lot going on in the States at the moment with, uh, RFK and Trump.

Yeah, definitely a lot going on on over there. And, uh, yeah, that's, um, that's obviously having an impact, uh, everywhere.

I think the, uh, the Clintons were, uh, um. Subpoenaed or ordered or something or other, the to, uh, to, uh, to front, front, some inquiry or something. Um, yeah, there's been so much going on over there. It's hard to, hard to keep pace, uh, pace with it. And, uh, uh, uh, obviously Trump is, uh, trying to, uh. Uh, broker some sort of a, a peace deal, uh, with, with the, uh, with the Russians and Ukraine.

And that's obviously, uh, a, a difficult, uh, um, as it stands so, uh. Yeah, it is just a, a big moving jigsaw puzzle, puzzle hoodie. I, I don't know, uh, w you know, whether you can keep track of it all. It's just, uh, and I, I wonder how many of these things are just false flags. I mean, even in Australia here, we've, we've, we've had issues, uh, we've had protests, we've had projected protests, has been, you know, uh, a lot of, uh, stuff happening in relation to the Harbor Bridge protest.

Um, mm. So. Uh, there's, there's, there's been a lot, lot going on. Um, but once again, I, I, I, I, I think the real problem in this country is, uh, the immigration. I mean, here they are, you know, headlining today that 1500 people are coming in each day, uh, so that they haven't turned the taps off. Mm. So it's a real worry.

Um, immigration is a massive issue. Um. In this country, uh, at the moment, it's something that, uh, uh, with the cost of living and veterans living under, uh, bridges and so forth, lack of housing, yeah. Um, it's, it's, it's a big issue. And I, and I think it's, uh. It's, uh, a real distraction from, uh, um, from the issues that related to COVID.

Um, I mean, I even see, uh, you know, with the Royal Commission in New Zealand that, uh, uh, the, the, the pharmaceutical companies have refused to take part. It's just beyond belief that this stuff, I mean, that should just be an automatic, uh, red flag, shouldn't it?

Yeah. Well, abs well, it should be, but we've had red flags on that for the last five years, and, uh, they seem to.

Fall flat. Uh, but yeah, the, the, there's definitely a mood in the country. There's, uh, there's an ugly mood and, uh, and, but once again, you've gotta look at, um, you've gotta look at the reasons why these, these mass gatherings are starting to happen because the people are fed up. Now, I'm sure that, uh, in, in the rally that's, uh, being promoted at the moment, on the 31st of August, there'll be a lot of fed in Aussies there.

Who will be, um, who will be there for all the right reasons. And, and, uh, not none of those reasons will be racist in their hearts. They're not. Uh, but the truth is, you know, we've interviewed Daniel Zi a few times. There's heaps of really good Australians who cannot get housing and there's sleeping in cars.

Now, we met a few, uh, couple of people in the last few weeks who actually, um. Help out at Misty Mountain because they've got nowhere to stay. And, uh, you know, some of them don't even have a car, you know, and, and, and I'll tell you what, John, it's a lot of women in, after the age of 50, in their fifties, sixties and seventies, uh, they've been kicked out of home because their husband's gone off down another pathway or whatever.

They've got nothing. They, they've had nothing in by way of a settlement. All they had was their car. Their car breaks down, they have absolutely nothing, and they've got nowhere to live. We're bringing in 1500 immigrants a day, and where are we housing them? So all these, these are very good reasons why people are protesting.

Now, a lot of people are saying, are you guys gonna be there? Um, we'll may or may not be at any one of them, but the reason, the reason we are not going all out, it's been very well promoted as it is. And, um, and the fact is you're better off not. Having anybody who's had any influential role in the last five years being seen as promoting or leading it or speaking at it.

It's, it's, it started organically and it needs to remain organic. And so, um, you know, the things are, things are shifting all over the place. It, it has been infiltrated, uh, by some, by some pretty nasty people as well. We know that. But there. Look, if you've just gotta, you've just gotta go with your gut feeling, Australia, do what you feel you need to do.

Um, and we are not influencing anybody either way. Um, it's there, it's happening. It happened organically. Just like, uh, just like what happened in Canberra that happened organically. And, um, and, you know, we just, we just pray that if anything stupid happens, you just, everybody remains sensible and just, uh, divorces himself or separates himself from any of the rat bags that might be there.

And just do what you want to do for your country. It'll, and if you feel better doing that, then go, by all means, go ahead and do it. But, um, whether I go or not is another thing. And if I do, I won't be telling anybody. I'll just be walking in the crowd with anybody else. And, um, I think that's the best way for this to happen.

It needs to be run by the people and set up by the people, and led by the people organically. Mm-hmm.

Yeah, look, I, I agree with that hoodie. I, I think a lot of people are just, uh, fed up. I mean, they're fed up of watching, uh, people burn Australian flags. Uh, they're, they're fed up of people, uh, being derogatory, uh, towards this country.

Uh, this country is inclusive, but I, but I think those that have migrated here and that this, this is essentially, uh, you know, what we see, uh, you know, from those, uh, migrants that made this country a better place. Uh, uh, in, in the, in the, in the fifties and sixties, they, they came here and they, they then, and this is the word assimilated, they became Australian.

They are Australian, yeah. And proud of it. Um, but we've got no room or no. Tolerance for anyone that wants to be anti Australian or wants to be, uh, um, you know, disrespectful of this country. Uh, and, and its people, uh, you know, we, we, we can't accept that if you don't want to, uh, come here and, and become Australian, well, don't come.

Yeah, that's right. And, you know, to typify the whole, uh, way, this country has been built over many, over a couple of hundred years. Uh, on, uh, Wednesday we'll be interviewing Dr. Miley Rin Yeah. Who's gonna be talking about her, uh, her case in the court. She's very, very confident, man. She's done a spot on job and Miley Rin, you know, and, and Dr.

Uh, Jay Anthony Kon, and people like that. These people have forged. Strong links with this country. They are Australian and they love this country, and they, they give so much to it. So, uh, you know, if, if, uh, I'm seen anywhere at a rally on the 31st of August, um, it will not be, be because I'm a racist. It's because I think the government is actually overreaching.

And in fact, I, I think the one drawback for this, this rally is actually the name, uh, the Mass Immigration rally. I think, um. I, I think, I think we need to, we need to rally against government overreach in every quarter. Yeah. And, um, and not just have it be about immigration because the mainstream media are gonna ra label it as a racist event.

Uh, 'cause that's the way they function, you know? So, um, you know, it, it needs, we need to be protesting against government overage. We are over governed. I'll give you an example, John. I was driving through casino yesterday. Um. On the way home from Misty Mountain Health Retreat and we, uh, we got to, uh, we were driving on the outskirts, heading out of casino.

There was a, a speed camera car on the side of the road. He was parked about five or 10 meters on the 80 kilometer an hour side of an 80 K zone sign coming out of a 50 K zone sign. So you're thinking, am I being measured for the 80 K zone or the 50 K zone? You know how you see a 50, an 80 K zone, you're coming outta 50 and you're about 20 meters out or 30 meters out, and you just increase your speed to build up to the 80.

Um, I went through there, I was probably doing 65, uh, just accelerating. And I'm thinking, am I gonna get fine? Because I'm either in, I'm in that no man's land area, you know what I mean? And why, why have it there? If it's for safety, why would you have it there? That's entrapment as far as I'm concerned.

Mm.

Oh, that's, that's all it is. It's revenue raising. And uh, unfortunately it's what, uh, this is what happens when you privatize these things too. I mean, because, you know, the incentive is out there now for these private tier companies that own these, uh, speed cameras to, to make lots of cash. Um, and the government obviously, uh, you know, gets, gets a fair share of the, uh, the, the return.

So it's, uh. Yeah, once again, that, that's a perfect example of, of entrapment and, uh, revenue raising and it, and it's just the sort of thing that is just now, uh, you know, it's just everywhere you go. You were concerned that you, uh, you, you, you're being recorded or you're being interpreted, you're being watched, you're being, uh, monitored.

I mean, this whole, uh, business of this AI and this, uh, digital stuff, it's just mad. It's just completely mad. Um, what, what they're doing. And I mean, should, that should really be a wake up call to everyone. Um, a as to what's, uh, what's in store for us. It's scary stuff.

Yeah. Look, I want to do, I want to do a segment on the AI thing because a good friend of mine, Carl, um, has been doing a bit of research with it.

He's a very astute, uh, gentleman. Um, he's been on church without walls With me doing conversations with Carl, he has, uh, been engaging with ai, the system, asking it. What its main purpose is who runs it. And it has been very, very frank and frightening in its reply. He's managed to trick it for about 25 pages of, of interaction, and he's recorded all that and it's frightening.

John. It's 1984. It's AB and, and, and AI admits, admits itself what its purposes are and it's to, it's to crush descent and free thinking. Um, it's open about it. It just comes straight out and says it, it puts it all in dot point form. My purpose is, and he managed his way around the algorithms to get it to, uh, to get it to fess up.

And I'll tell you what, mate, it's scary and people think it's great. And look, lots of it is you can ask it anything, it's terrific. But once we start playing in with all that sort of stuff, we can get caught up in it, can't we?

Well, you can get caught up with it. And, uh, I, I think Barnaby Joyce was talking, um, today, uh, I overheard that, uh, you know, what does it mean for jobs, uh, in this country now that, uh, this, this stuff's taking over.

Uh, you know, where we once, uh, relied upon a human to, uh, to interact with us and, and, and do those jobs, uh, are being, uh, made redundant. And, uh, you know, I, I, I think we're gonna end up with a situation. Um, and you can almost see it. It, I, I mean, it's a, it's from the communism playbook, isn't it? You know, people are going to end up, uh, dependent on the government, uh, because they'll be jobless.

It'll be more and more difficult to find a, a job unless you're, uh, working for the government. And you can just see where all this stuff's heading. Uh uh, and you know, if you don't comply, um, as we've seen with the, uh, with the mandates on the COVID vaccine, that was just, that was just an entree. Uh, do as you're told.

Do what you're told or there'll be consequences. Uh, you, you won't be paid or you won't, you won't get your food credit voucher. You won't be able to put fuel in the car. Um, so yes, uh, it's, it's, uh, scary times.

Scary times. Indeed. Well, we just, uh, we won't and see what happens. Um.

Another great initiative too, hoodie, um, I, I don't know what, uh, transpired, but, uh, Joel Jamal was, uh, essentially, uh, uh, chairing a meeting yesterday, uh, organized by Michael O'Neill with, with all the minor parties that, that, uh, were so familiar with.

Uh, and they're all in one room about essentially, uh, getting, getting, uh, getting. Them all to become one. Now, I'm not sure what the wash up of all that was, and I'm sure there'll be, uh, plenty more dialogue. I, I did see something saying it, it, it, it went well and, uh, it was positive. So let's hope that, that that's something that, uh, you know, we can possibly look, look forward to, uh, in the future.

That, uh, you know, we've, we've got somewhere to lie. Uh, we've got somewhere that we can go that, uh, is comfortable and is secure for us. Uh, that we can vote, uh, for and, and, and actually get some people into parliament, uh, that, that can, uh, you know, stop a lot of this mess happening.

Yeah. I spent, uh, Michael O'Neill was at Misty Mountain Health Retreat for a couple of days, and we had a few chats and, uh, uh, he said it was gonna happen and, uh, it's a very, very positive move.

It really is. Mm-hmm. So, you know, once again, the focus is on, on dowsing, the egos. I believe Jared Renick gave an amazing speech. At that event and, um, I don't think one nation were there, sadly.

Mm-hmm. Well, uh, be interesting to see who was there. Um, I, I don't really know, to be honest, that there wasn't a lot said about it, but yeah.

Uh, and I think we see, I think they kept, uh, the numbers to, uh, you know, a minimum from each organization. Um. Which was probably pretty sensible.

Well, Michael O'Neill did say, I think he was talking to Joel Jamal that, um, they were, they had pretty much 90 to 95% of their policies in common. Yeah. So something needs to happen.

I mean, we go back to it being a cooperative rather than a coalition. Mm-hmm. Because, uh, uh, you know that, that's a possibility. CAD Co was a really good initiative way back in, uh, 2020 1 22. Definitely. Commonwealth of Australia Democratic Cooperative. So well done Michael O'Neill for doing that. And um, and uh, yeah, we wait and see what happens.

We watch this space.

Definitely. And another great initiative, um, that the aligned councils actually got happening. Uh, this was, um, on the back of Dr. Rob Peterson, uh, suggesting, uh, this, so, uh, on the resources page of the a CA Aligned Council of Australia website, there's, there's a template there for, uh, a letter that, uh, you can print out and sign or adjust or modify.

Do do whatever you like with it. Uh, but we're encouraging people to. Uh, go to their police station and hand over this document and let the police officers know that under the new arrangements that were signed up to by Mark Butler and the Albanese government in relation to the, uh, pandemic treaties that the police officers could well be.

Uh, putting themselves in a predicament now, legally, uh, and morally, uh, where they may be required, uh, during a pandemic, when the World Health Organization seizes control of Australia, because that's what'll happen, uh, they will be able to enact, uh, legislation to, uh, force the vaccination of people in their own homes.

Now, people might say that this is fanciful, but it's not. It's already in. The WA legislation, uh, and I'd encourage people to have a look at that. It's there. Uh, in fact, we might even, uh, do a segment on this hoodie, uh, um, and, and outline it all. But I think it's a really good initiative and I, and I think people that have, uh, links to, uh, service organizations, whether it be, uh, the SES, the RFS, the.

Country fire authority or whatever, uh, whether they're, uh, reservists or military people, whether they're paramedics, if print this out, go in uniform, up to your police station and hand it over. Yeah. Uh, if you're a Qantas captain, you're a virgin captain, a virgin first officer, a flight attendant go up there in uniform hand the thing over, uh, and.

Let them know, um, that, you know, they're, they're, they're, they're, uh, they're going to be part of, uh, well, I, I dunno how you describe it. Anything other than, uh, what the Nazis did. Uh, this is Nazi. Like no doubt about it. It is, it is without a doubt. And, um, uh, it has to be seen in the, in the cold, hard light of what it actually is.

It really does. Well, Johnny, it's, uh, it's been good to catch up again, mate. I'll, I'll, uh, we'll get this one edited and out there tonight. Uh, Miley Rin on Wednesday night, uh, professor Robin Con Kofi has contacted us, uh, regarding her concerns about, uh, remedies with nicotine and, uh, snake venom and all kinds of other stuff that she's heard about.

She's written a paper on it, apparently, which has been peer reviewed, so we might get the insight on that as well. Those people who were doing and. George Cassick, uh, he's gonna come on as well at some stage. Uh, he's, he's the guy that's been running around, uh, all the pharmacies, um, yeah. And asking them, uh, that's a great initiative.

Uh, pharmacy whisperer. Yeah. That's really fantastic.

I love what he's doing. Yeah. We need to get Anita Huffmeister back on too, to talk about the VAX bus tour. Apparently they, yeah, that was quite successful as well. Your fines too, hoodie. A few fines. Yes. Uh, our, uh, our little mate in, uh, he'd actually be, he'd actually, he'd actually be a good buddy for Alan Joyce, wouldn't he?

That little, uh, grub that runs Katoomba council. What a grubby little, what a grubby little individual He is woke willingly overlooking known evil. Uh, geez. It makes you laugh, Johnny. Oh, it's a worry. Anyway, we better get this one edited and out there, John. Uh, we're closed with a prayer, eh? Sounds good. Dear Lord, father in heaven, we thank you Lord for, uh, for our health and we thank you for the, um, for the mission that you've given us to do, Lord.

And we just pray that we reach more and more people. We pray for the events that are coming up around the country. To try and get our government and, uh, the people of this country to wake up. And more and more people are. And Lord, we just pray that everything that happens happens in accordance with your will in our lives.

Uh, father, we ask this in the precious name of Jesus. Amen. No, amen. You've often been hurt to say you just couldn't make this stuff up. Couldn't make this stuff up. Good to be back in the saddle with you, John. And, uh, don't forget Australia, what you did yesterday got you to today. Let's do it with compassion and with ease.

Stay outta the trees. And Miley TR on Wednesday night. We look forward to that and more to come on Club grubby. We'll see you next time. Bye.
