Club Grubbery - Raw transcript of interview:

2025-09-01 Graham and John speak with George Kesic

Well, good day everyone, and welcome to another episode of Club Grubby. Johnny, you've got your Kelly t-shirt on today, mate. What's that in Oor of aol? Oh, no, I just thought I'd, uh, I, I'd, uh, give it a run hoodie. Uh, we haven't spoken with Brad from the Kelly for a while and I was thinking about him, uh, and I thought it'd be good just to remind people to head up there and get a counter lunch and have a beer.

Yeah, good idea. The Kelly Hotel in Singleton great, uh, great place to be. And, uh, that wasn't a paid sponsored announcement either. It's just, uh, we just love the work that the Kelly do and they have done for a long time. And our special guest today is No Stranger to Podcast, and that's George Cassick. How are you, George?

I'm great. Thanks ho. How are you? I know you're great, but how are you?

Nice. Um, I'm feeling great. Thank you. As well as being great.

That's really good mate. Uh, we'll touch off on a couple of issues before we go to the main reason we got you on, which is great work you're doing. Uh, you're getting the nickname of the Pharmacy Whisperer and, uh, well deserved. But, uh, John, there's some strange stuff going on in Victoria.

Um, over the weekend, three a w uh, put out a story about. A 14-year-old boy who was part of a gang that raided a seven 11 with machetes. Uh, the police managed to capture him and he went before the courts. Uh, he was out on bail already for other offenses, and even though he was caught, uh, right to left and the police opposed bail, the judge gave him bail again, the magistrate.

What on earth is going on in the state of Victoria? We must be scratching our heads.

There are no words for that hoodie. Um. This whole thing about the machetes has just been another stunt. Um, but you know, here we have, uh, somebody caught red handed, uh, with, uh, one of these implements that's been banned across Victoria, and I don't think there's been any handed in, has there?

Uh, I'm not, I don't think it's been a, uh, a, a raging success. But, uh, clearly they're still on the streets, but the magistrates are happy with that.

Well, you know, George, you gotta ask what, what it says about the state of Victoria. I mean, um, uh, they're happy, they're happy to, uh, the government is happy to get the police to fire rubber bullets on peaceful protestors who were protesting, had every right to be out there protesting, especially into the palace state of Victorian, uh, government was at that stage and still is.

I don't think it's any better. It's getting worse. Uh, and here they are here. The police are asked to do all these rotten things and stupidly they did them. And then when they need support in getting, uh, getting these gangs sorted out, the magistrates pull this sort of a stunt. I mean, you've gotta wonder, haven't you?

Well, look, um, you can't do anything to, you don't wanna hurt the feelings, do you? So you can't actually arrest them and put 'em away? No, no. That, that would be, uh, nobody would've that and look the bins. It's a, it was a flawed idea. The only flawed bit about the bin is the fact they've got the bins at the police stations.

So, I mean, that's putting people up obviously. 'cause there might actually be a cop there. Probably asleep 'cause um, they're all off somewhere else. Probably arresting people, putting stuff online. Um, but you know, if you've got the bin there and you drop your blood soaked machete off, you might get spotted and arrested.

So they can't have that. I think they should have put 'em like down, like the um, the defects. They should have put 'em everywhere down the street. Then there's more chance of handing them in.

Yeah, that's right. That's right. The def FBS there everywhere, aren't they? And of course everyone knows how to use a DEF fb, don't they?

Well look, even if you don't, um, well in the UK now to get your driving license, you've got to prove, you know how to do AFib, how to use one. It's in the actual written paper now. Oh, yeah. So, which is, uh, scary, isn't it, when you think about it. But look, the DIB as well, I found out the other day I was with a mate of mine.

We were in DY and there was a, a defect at the side of the road and he said, you know, they're all locked. I said, what? He said, yeah, you've actually got to ring up to get someone to come and open it for you. I said, well, does that work? Supposing you're just dropping dead there and somebody wants to open it, they've got a ring for the ambulance to come with the key to open it.

I don't know how that works.

Unbelievable. I know, John, tell me about it. What could possibly go wrong? Johnny Lauder, paramedic, former paramedic of 25 years.

They in police car? I mean, isn't it ridiculous? I mean, here, here we've got a case in, uh, the UK where you've got have, uh, proved that you can use one of these to, to get a driver's license.

But in New South Wales, uh, there was one in, uh, every general duties police car, but they, I, I think they were, they were going to remove them, uh, because the police said it wasn't their core business. Uh, so I mean, yeah, you just can't make this stuff up really. It's just ridiculous. Core business, but I've, I've got a new idea.

This came to me yesterday. It could be a bit of a money spinner actually. There's, um, there was an attack, I think it was New South Wales. There was a delivery driver knocked off his bike and he was stabbed. It says over 12 times, I'm assuming 13, but it says more than 12 with a screwdriver. So that means they're gonna be banning screwdriver.

Similar. So I thought we could have a screwdriver bin and I could, I had to instigate that and I get a grant from the government. I won't spend 325,000 per bin. That's a bit excessive. 250,000 I thought, for each bin. And we need at least a thousand of them all over the state. I mean, there's a lot of screwdrivers around, right?

Yeah, that's right. Absolutely. There is. I've got a shed full of things. Oh boy. I'm, I'm, I, I shouldn't have said that. I'll be branded even more a domestic terrorist now, John.

Just leaving Ache home though. Leaving

Ache home when you indeed. Uh, look, everything, uh, everything's shaping up for this big event on the 31st of August.

Um, Australians are gonna be hitting the street on mass. That's pretty obvious. And, uh, channel seven, uh, did a story on it, uh, where they featured Beck Freedom. And, uh, very interesting article that they, they seemed to indicate that the people were gonna be coming out as an antidote to the pro-Palestinian rallies that blocked the Harbor Bridge.

Um. I think they're missing the point. This, this has got nothing to do with Palestine Israel. This is, um, this is all to, and it's got nothing to do with racism. This is about a country that needs to get its act together for the people who live here who've, uh, who are being done out of housing, they can't get, for example, we, we've got a family friend in, uh, in Perth, a young lady flying fly out minor who had a, an apartment, uh, very nice, kept it very nicely, and she was asked to leave.

Get outta the apartment because the apartment was being allocated for migrant housing at double the rent, double the rent, and she couldn't afford to pay it. So these are the things, what we're seeing going to happen on the 31st of August. Gentlemen, I want your opinion, I think is a reaction to the government that has been poking the bear for far too long.

We're talking about a government that is failing to read the mood of the people. And it's gonna be at their peril. Um, 'cause this, this thing is gonna be a runaway train in no time. And, uh, all the, all the indicators are there. People will be going all this, um, all this talk about it being infiltrated and everything.

I think there's gonna be far too many people, uh, to, to worry about the infiltrators. I think they're gonna be very heavily watered down by the number of real Aussies they're doing their thing. And, um, so, uh, it, it's, it, it's got all the makings of being bigger than Ben. Her. What do you think? Um, yeah, look, um, I'm not sure.

I'm not sure. Initially I thought, yes, I'm, I want to go on this, but then. Like you said, there was a lot of talk about being infiltrated Nazis and all that stuff, um, and no one seemed to know who'd organizing it or why it was being done, so I, I got a bit twitchy about all that. Um, I, I do think there's gonna be a lot of people there who haven't been on any matches before.

Yeah, who went on the freedom stuff and won't know anybody in the freedom groups, which is a good thing that they're actually out there wanting to change themselves. So I think it's the step in the right direction. Um, but I also think it's gonna get twisted. It obviously, think about the way it was portrayed on the channel.

Seven's talking about it. It's not gonna be good. Right? They're not gonna be talking about it in a good way. It's like the Four Corners a few weeks ago, which was about people like us. It was about, um, freedom fighters and sovereign citizens and all that saying we're clogging up the courts and the council chambers.

Of course, it was a hatchet piece, um, to make us look like crazies, as it always is. So the fact they're already talking about this match, so they, they must be a bit worried 'cause they're giving it some time on the tv, but it's not gonna be positive what they're saying. So I'm actually really interested to see what happens if there's any, any violence at all or anything like they're gonna just.

Ramp that up and really push that angle a bit. But you're right, I don't think it's response in response to the Palestinian thing. Um, which again is quite weird, the fact that they're allowed people on that march and allowed to burn our flag and nothing happens and we can't put up an Australian flag, which is quite bizarre if you think about it.

'cause then we're. We're classed as um, far right if you like, Australia. When did that happen? I thought that was a good thing if you like it on country, but apparently not. You know, and we're in a weird times. It's still a, a wacky world. Um, and everything that used to be up is now down, so you can't even tell people you like Australia anymore.

It's quite weird how you've gotta be careful.

Gotta be careful, John.

Well, that's true hoodie. I, you know, I, I think ultimately people are just sick to death of what's going on. Uh, and, and I, I agree with George. I, I'm not certain that it's got anything to do with, uh, with outside influences, overseas, stuff happening.

I mean, I think that, that, uh, you know, carries through in places and, and, and look, you're never gonna stop that. But, you know, ultimately, uh, people just wanna see, uh, the, the world restored to. You know, a balance where people are, are, are good people and doing the right things and, you know, we don't have any of this death and destruction unnecessarily, which we're seeing.

Uh, and, and then, you know, you look at Australia, I mean, we're losing our identity with the very fabric of this country has been flushed down the toilet. I mean, you're waiting two and a half hours for an ambulance in Wagga, uh, on a football field with a broken leg. Uh. Last week, uh, the Rural Fire Service was attending, uh, mental health emergencies, uh, uh, because there was no ambulance for 40 minutes.

I mean, this is the sort of stuff that's going on day to day. People can't get the hips replaced. Uh, that's what they're concerned about. That's what they're really upset about. They're, they're, they're worried they can't turn the heater on, uh, because they can't afford the bill. Uh, and, and they're sick to death of people coming here.

And not assimilating in this country, and not putting in and not having a go, uh, and just taking in this country and its people for granted. Uh, and they're the sort of people like Donald Trump is doing in the, in the us They're saying out, you're gone. Uh, round them up and p off. We've had enough. Uh, and I think that's where we're at.

Uh, this COVID legacy, this COVID hangover. Uh, and all this other nonsense that we've been stuck with. I mean, look at, look at Albanese. He's just paid $900,000 apparently to upgrade the uh, greens room in Parliament House and the Australian newspaper. Uh, took a couple of photos of it and now the, the journalist and the Australian newspaper's been banned by Albe from attending Parliament House for a week because they put these photos out.

I mean, this country is completely bloody mad and we've been run by psychos.

Yeah. I, I don't think I can add to that. I, yeah, you nailed it. You absolutely nailed it. It's great. And, and what's weird is like, think of America, what's happening there. Just think of the, um, the backlash to actually getting rid of criminals who were illegals.

You know, normally in a insane world you'd be like, well, that's great. We don't want these guys from coming from another country who murder in pillage here living. We want to get rid of them, but people are fighting tooth and nail to keep 'em in the country. I mean, how, what, what, um, parallel university is that from, I, I cannot ever remember anything.

I thought every decent person wanted less crime, you know, better living conditions, all that. But over there they are fighting tooth and nail for the opposite. And I'm like, when? How?

Well look here. I mean, average Australians have been putting. Been put, uh, through hell to, to get basic rights like a, a a a, uh, an aviation security card like myself.

I mean, took, it took months to, for me to get it. And I mean, I'm a law abiding citizen, but the, the federal government albanese just let all these criminals loose. Didn't even, didn't even put them on, uh, on whats, there was rapists, murderers just from other countries. Oh, off you go. Oh, they won't re-offend.

Of course they won't. I mean, fair income.

I, I think the big thing for me that really stands out and it, it really stands out like the proverbials, is the fact that, um, hardworking Australians are sleeping in their cars and tents in, in council reserves because they cannot, a, afford to rent a, a place to stay.

And even if they could, the chances of them getting it are so slim because people are bidding out, bidding each other to pay higher and higher rents for houses. Uh, when you've got volunteers like Daniel Sinia and people like that in Brisbane who are driving trucks around at their own expense, delivering goods and chats and food to people sleeping in their cars.

When we've got a situation where child protection is going round to these reserves and taking people's children away from them adding to the trauma because they can't afford to rent or cannot find a rental, even if they could, and we are bringing in how many a hundred, 1500 people a day. 1500 people a day.

That's, that is, that is an absolute shocker. And the thing is, if you're gonna, if you're gonna have immigration in this country, have the infrastructure to support it, there aren't enough jobs. There isn't, people are struggling to put bread on the table. They can't afford electricity. And who knows what's gonna happen to the price of fuel soon with everything going on crazy in the world at the moment.

And that's why people have had enough. And you know what? Those people who are asking me, are you gonna go or am I gonna go? Whatever You guys have to do what you think is right in your heart to do and, and you don't need us to tell you what to do. It's, I think it's great that you're not gonna have the usual voices at the rallies if that, if that's gonna be the case.

I think it's great because you people who are watching this, we're just giving you information what you do, and that's up to you. For goodness sake, uh, if you're gonna do something, do it and, and, uh, do it for all the right reasons and make sure you keep it nice. Uh, don't give the mainstream media anything to put a label on you and do everything you can to make sure that this is compassionately and properly and respectfully staged, and you'll win the hearts of a lot more people.

Uh, and that's what we've gotta do, George. We've gotta get a tipping point in Australia where more and more people are waking up and we don't do that by being rat bags.

That's right. Yeah. Um, look, shouting and screaming will only get you so far. And the other side are really good at doing that. Um, they just think you shout loudest, longest, and be the angriest and you're gonna win.

Um, and we've kind of gotta get, um, above that. Gotta play above that. 'cause sometimes, um. When I was doing the pharmacy thing before, I'd heard stories of some people going in and actually shouting at the pharmacist and getting really angry so that that doesn't, that's not a good look. So when I go in, I just smile and I'm very pleasant.

Um, and there's absolutely no point at where I will raise my voice for anything. So that, that's the way you do it. You've just gotta do it. And also a lot of times you've gotta do things with a laugh. You've gotta smile and laugh, um, and wave while they're running and raving. So I think that works better than actually shouting back.

You know what I mean?

Okay. So let's talk about this. You, you're being called the pharmacy whisperer. I, I dunno whether that's been, put a label that's been put on you or whether we've come up with that here. Um, I,

I think, uh, Mike Gigi, um, originally came up with that, um, he thought, which I thought was quite good.

Yeah. So that, that is really good. So tell us your approach. You go into a pharmacy and you do what?

Okay, so this has actually evolved. I'll put that my c and d project hat on, literally. So it's called the c and d project, cease and Desist. Right? So that's just the, um, for Sarah. I believe you met Sarah about six months ago.

She, it's her brainchild, the, um, going into pharmacist from South Australia.

Yeah,

look, it is evolved. Originally we would, some of us would just go, there's about 85 people signed up, maybe more now around the country who were doing the same thing. I think there's four of us doing the bulk of the work, but I think there's around a hundred people all over Australia doing it or signed up to want to be part of it.

So originally what we were doing was we were just going into pharmacies filming them and just talking to them, like saying, you know, are you still doing the jobs? And why are you doing it? You know, you know you're gonna get, um, you're gonna be liable if something happens. So that was the first kind of phase of it.

Then Sarah came up with the idea of giving the cease and desist out. So basically the idea behind that is you'd go into a pharmacy again, approach the pharmacist and say, look, do you realize you're gonna be, um, liable if someone dies or get sick? So my approach to that is. I go in and um, and I'll say to them, and I'll start by saying, are you aware?

And usually they'll say yes or no, whatever. And then you continue the conversation from there. Now, the thing is, I make them, I let them know straight up front that I'm doing them a favor. I say to them, look, I don't want you to get into trouble. I actually want 'em to go to prison. But if I don't tell 'em that, of course.

'cause that could get the backs up. So I say, look, I'm doing you a favor. I don't want you to get into trouble, but if you keep doing this, this is what's gonna happen and this is why. And I show them the cease and deist and I said, you're gonna get into trouble because. No one's given informed consent. No one, because you have to tell 'em about all the adverse events.

And we've now got a sheet which has got the 1,265 Pfizer adverse events, which we've been giving out as well as the cease and desist. And I show 'em that, and a lot of them haven't seen. I said, look, you probably haven't seen this, but this is on Pfizer's website, so there you go. So. That's, that was my approach.

So that was kind of the second phase. And I, I visited like 130 pharmacies and gave out, I think it was 72 cease and desist, and the other pharmacists weren't doing it anymore. So a lot of them, at that stage, it was like a 60 40 split. And this is over the last year I've been doing it. Um, and the 40% don't, don't get too excited they're not doing it because they've suddenly grown a conscience.

They're not doing it 'cause there was no money in it. Um, a lot of the chemist warehouses, they weren't doing it anymore 'cause people were not doing the boosters, which is great. Right. Which is a win. Of course. It's for us. So I think the uptake of the boosters were like 5% or something ridiculous. So. The ones that were still doing it, um, had some interesting conversations and one of the, one of the best ones was, um, top Ride.

Uh, there's a, there's about four pharmacies in Top Ride in Sydney Top Ride Center. And I'd been to a few of them and doing the video thing and I'll trying to try to get into the bottom one and give them a cease and de and I tried two or three times I'd rung up and said, oh, the pharmacist isn't in today.

They're just come on a Monday or whatever. So I went back in. It is not here. They'll be at two o'clock. I said, right. So I went back again and I'm standing at the front and they said, yeah, yeah, someone will be with you in a minute. And I'm like, okay, great. So I'm standing there. And the lady walks past me and goes out, the one who says, we'll be with you in a minute.

And I'm looking at all the pharmacists and they're all busy, right? They're all very busy. And I really don't like going into places when the, when they're busy, I like it to be quiet. So I can just say, do my thing and then leave. So I'm standing there and I'm getting a bit more nervous and um, and it seems to be taking a while, right?

And I'm just thinking, oh, they must be really busy. The same lady comes back in across me and says. They'll be with you in a minute. I says, all right, great. So then two minutes later, this woman. Slinks in next to me with a guy behind her, and it's the manager with security. I'm obviously too, too trusting a person.

They kept me, stalling me while they got security, right? So then the woman says, I'm the manager and um, and we want you to leave now. And I said, oh, why? What have I done? I ain't done anything wrong. Oh, well you, you're causing any disturbments? I said, I don't know how. I just wanna give this to the, one of the pharmacists.

It's just a piece, some information. And she says. No, no, we want you to leave now. And by the way, by the way, she says you were upstairs a few weeks ago and you were filming one of our other pharmacists without their permission. And I said, no, I wasn't. And she said, I don't believe you. I said, I don't care.

She said, well, um, I want you to wipe that, um, interview. I want you to wipe that off your phone that you've got. I said, um, it's not on my phone. She said, give me a phone. I want to have a look at it and I'm gonna wipe it. I said, no. I am not gonna give you my phone. So she looks at the security guy and says, can we make him give us the phone?

And he says No. And then he says, if you want to take it further with the police, you've gotta get his details. So she says, give me your details. And I said. No. And so she says to the guy, can we get his no? He says to her, you can't get anything off him if he refuses, that's it. So she says, right, we want you to leave now and you're banned forever.

And I went, oh, that's terrible. I was distraught when she said, I'm banned forever from that chemist. I thought, oh my God, what's the, what's he coming to? I could never come back in here. So I'm walking out with the guard. And I said to him, I said, look, it's not your fault, mate. No problem. It's, it's cool.

It's cool. So we go outside and he says to me, what's all that about? And I explained it and he said, oh yeah, look, they're stupid. They can't ask for anything off you if you don't want to give it to them. And he said, um, you know, and you weren't doing it wrong anyway. I said, well, I know. And, and that was it.

But that, that's how bizarre that was. That um, they were saying, give me this and gimme that. And you can't come in here, but look. That, that was powerful. So if you, if you're worried about rejection, don't be doing what I do. 'cause it's, you're gonna get a lot of it and you're gonna get a lot of hostility, right.

And I'm like, Hey, that's cool. Just do your, I'm doing my thing and I'm off. Um, and when I first started doing it, I, I used to get quite nervous, you know, to go into places, but now I'm like, you know, I just walk in and say what I need to say and get out. Um, but now we're in stage three. It's changed. What I'm doing now is, you know, since the new government.

Um, directive came out where it's now too dangerous to give the, the, um, poison shot to children under 18, right? It's too dangerous, and it says on the directive, children, children were never in danger. Right. So now I go around to the pharmacists who have given a cease and desist to over the last year, and I show them this new directive.

So first I ask if they're actually still doing children right? And some of a lot of them are. A lot of them are 'cause they don't know about it. 'cause the government hasn't actually bothered to tell them 'cause they don't want 'em to stop. So they've put it on the website and it's up to them to go look right.

And, but the crazy thing about that is what I do is I go in, I say, are you still vaccinating children with with COVID? And they say yes or no. And if they say yes, I say, well, this is the new directive. Do you know this? And I show it to them and I say, look, it says children under 18 shouldn't be getting it too dangerous.

And children never been in danger. And I say, keep that. And some of them say, and I say, are you gonna do it anymore? They said, no, no, we're not. I said, well, that's good. Some of them do that. But, um, here's, here's the crazy thing about that. They're not supposed to give 818 year olds if they're healthy.

They're not supposed to give them the convict boosters, right? But if they're sick, fill your boots. You can give them as much as they want. If the boosters and I say to some of 'em, I go and say, but. But that's insane. I say that doesn't make any sense. You are saying if you are healthy, it's too dangerous.

But if you've already got issues, you can have it. And I'm like, but, and one guy, I saw him, I went into this pharmacy in Linfield. He was a really nice guy. Um, and I met him before and he seemed like he'd, he'd listened and look at, read the stuff. And, and I went in and he said, look, no, no. Look. Um. And he went through this about, look, if they, if they're autoimmune suppressed, we can still give them it.

And I said, but no, no, no. I said, doesn't make sense. Don't you see that? I said, oh, sorry, I've, I've not explained it right. So he said the same thing again in a different way. And I said, but that's just insane. And I walked out. But, um, I tell you it is, um, and actually these 60, 72 I went back to, I did it in three weeks.

'cause I thought, I'm on a mission. I've gotta get this out there. They've gotta stop giving it to kids. They've just gotta stop doing it.

Yeah.

So that's why we do it. We've just gotta, we want it to stop.

Mm. Well, I can tell you, George, um, I, I've spoken to a guy who went into a pharmacy in Sabba. Uh, he walked up to the pharmacist and said, I, I'm just checking, is it, is it still possible for me to bring my 14-year-old son in to, uh, receive a COVID booster?

I said, yeah, yeah, you can just bring him in at any time. We can do it. And he said, oh, really? And, and the pharmacist said, yeah, I'm surprised. And she, and, and he said, why is that? He said, well, I'm just, I've got a copy of the vaccine handbook here. And look, it says that he said, I'm surprised you're still able to do it because the vaccine handbook says no.

The pharmacist looked at it and said, crap, when did that come out?

That's right. And said, straight up, straight up, oh no, we're not gonna, we're not gonna be doing, any kids. Not gonna, and they had no idea. And, you know, that, that is a great tactic. That is just, that's not confronting anybody, you know, that's just, it's, it's just such a simple way to get the message across because a lot of these pharmacists and doctors, they're too busy to read all the garbage that comes outta health.

Uh, and they're not up to speed with it. Um, great tactic. John, what do you reckon?

Yeah, it's, it's, it's working Woody, uh, there's no doubt about it. I mean, uh, you know, George has gone into 70 of them. Uh, but we, we dunno how many other people have, uh, you know, s seen what George has doing and, and just casually, uh, done what your friend did in, in Coffs Harbor.

I mean, the, these are the small wins, but I, I suppose that the real question for me is, is why. Are these, uh, these pharmac, uh, pharmacies, uh, and, and pharmacists unaware that they're actually, uh, going against the TGA a's guidelines? How, how is it that, you know, this stuff was freely communicated, uh, by Gladys Ian and every other premier at a conference?

Every day at 11 o'clock? Uh, get the booster. Get the booster. This is what it does, you know, every health. Uh, chief health Officer was out, but now, I mean, here they're saying the stuff's dangerous. Uh, and, and it's not approved for kids. It's not recommended. Uh, but nobody knows. They haven't communicated it.

And I think that's the real issue. I.

I think, um, look, I think there's a reason for that. Do you remember, like you say, when they wanted everybody to take it, right? They were, there were ads on tv. There were the conferences, there were emails to all the families all the time. 'cause everybody's gotta get it.

But once the, once the scaling back. Dropping stuff. It's very quiet. It's like everything that, um, all the narrative is front page news. It's the story on the news. It's big letters at the front when it's changed or canceled. It's, it's page 15 in the telegraph and it's that big and it's quiet. It's everybody's whispering.

No one's shouting it because they want you to think it's still okay to do it. It's like, um, I dunno if you remember that far back, but when we had. It was one of the times we were stopping the masks allegedly.

And every month you'd have to look it, look it up in the New South Wales Health as where there were no more masks going on.

And, and it finished I think on in October, the something, and people were still wearing them till, and I'm like, but, but they're not doing it anymore. But no one knew 'cause they didn't get told. So the idea is they wanted people to start doing it themselves. So it's the same with the pharmacists and it, and it's very.

It's very haphazard with the pharmacist. Like some of them know, some of them are still doing 12, 12 to 18 year olds. Um, and they're like, and I'm said, and they, I wanna ask how old? I say 15. And most of them say, oh yeah, we can still do it. I said, well, no, it's not supposed to be. It's like, this is, it's too dangerous.

And there was one guy that just, just takes the cake and he was in, um, he was in Linfield. I went in and I said the same thing to I've just said, uh, and the lady behind the counter says, oh. I'm not Sean. He says, oh yes, look. He says, I'm only laughing 'cause I know what's coming. He says, um, if they're under 18, no boosters, but we can give them the original two doses.

I'm like, okay. And then he says, once they're over 18, they get one booster and that lasts 'em until they're 13. And I'm like, oh, what really? And then he says, and then it is, it is one a year from then on, and I'm said. Really? Is that right? And he says, yeah. And I said, well, thank you. Have a great day. And I walked out, I'm like, what the hell?

And this guy was the man guy. And I'm like, what is wrong with these people?

They don't even know what they're saying.

Well, well, I think unfortunately a lot of it is driven by dollars. Uh, the, these, this is a cash cow. I mean, there's always been a struggle between, uh, gps. And, and pharmacists about, uh, delivering, uh, services.

I mean, these pharmacists would've thought, oh, they've won the lottery when they were given permission to actually start injecting people, uh, at the pharmacy and bypassing the doctor. Uh, because it's, it's a, it's a magnificent way for them to, to boost their revenue. Uh, so it's in their interest. And this is the problem.

I mean, I, I, I got told, uh, uh, not so long back that even, um, the, uh, primary Healthcare Network, which is like a subsidiary arm of the, uh, Commonwealth Government, uh, they were giving out a couple of thousand dollars to any pharmacy to put up a COVID booster. Um, $2,000 just to put the poster up.

Mm.

Uh, so, you know, you, you can't look beyond that.

And I mean, it's the same with the shingle shot. I mean, these, these gps are fighting over themselves at nursing homes to give these, to give these, uh, injections out to residents. Not because they, in my opinion, believe that they're, they're, they're, uh, doing a good thing. It's because there's, there's, there's hundreds of dollars in it for the, for the doctor.

Yep. And one thing that we're trying to do on the cease and desist project, now I've got 10 lined up to go and visit this week. I've gotta find new ones. I've gotta go further afield, right? Um, I've done all the suburbs within like 40 minutes of me, so I've gotta go further afield. Um, but one thing that Sarah's trying to do now, the next stage is she's trying to get into nursing homes.

'cause it's a bigger bang for your book, right? Where you go in and you get onto the manager. Showing all the data and get them to sign something to say they're not gonna do it anymore. So she's working on that where anything where you can, um, get to a lot of people in this in a quick hit, that's what she's working on.

But the trouble with the nursing homes is. The staff there don't actually do it. 'cause I think they get outside, like there's a couple of nurses will come from a health center or something and come and do all the Yeah, that's right. And do all the inmates. Inmates.

And so I'll tell you what goes on because I know what goes on.

They'll come and the doctors, the doctors will come in on a Sunday, um, because they can bill Medicare the most and they come in there and they'll, there'll be one, one doctor, one GP likely sees the bulk of the patients in these facilities because. The doctors are too busy to come down there. Uh, and so there'll be one or two practice doctors that'll come in and they, they'll, they'll go around and they'll do a round on a Sunday or a Saturday, and they'll see these patients and they'll make minor adjustments to medications.

Uh, 9 99 times out of a hundred don't even need doing. Um, and they'll, they'll then, you know, that's a long consultation. Bang, there's, there's money. And we give them the. We give 'em a shot. Yeah. Uh, you know, this, this is what goes on. I mean, these, these healthcare facilities, um, nursing homes, they're, they're being run as coronary care units.

Uh, you know, you're not allowed to go in there and enjoy, enjoy the, the last years of your life comfortably. I mean, they want, they want you to go in there and be like, uh, like an experimental pin cushion. Uh, there, there, there is just. No reason for any of this. Um, you know, these elderly patients that they're on, uh, they're on, uh, they're often in there because, you know, they, they, their quality of life at home is, is so poor that they need assistance, uh, and they need care.

But, you know, why, why do we send them to hospital every time they fall for a CT scan? I mean, no neurosurgeon's gonna operate on a hundred year old person, so why send them up to the hospital? Uh, you know, and they've got dementia. They're outta their environment. They, they're scared. They don't want to be there.

They don't know where they are. Hospital staff end up being tied up looking after combative dementia patients, uh, you know, when they should be in their own environment. People should be allowed to, to, to live comfortably in, in their nursing homes without being, you know, made Guinea pigs for the health system.

Hmm. Absolutely. And, and, uh, I wanna go back to, I wanna go back to that, um, you know, why isn't the government publicizing making more of an issue outta the change to the, uh, uh, the immunization handbook? And I think one of the big reasons is if they come out and make that broadly known, a lot of people are gonna say, what you, you were forcing us to get our kids vaccinated.

You said it was safe and effective. Now you're saying it's not. What's going on? This is all CYA Cover your ass. That's, yeah, that's a predominant thing. That's what they do. Uh, and, and, and you know, once again, we've said it a million times while they're playing this CYA game, we are not getting remedy to fix people up from the side effects of these vaccines and people are dying.

You know, I'm, I'm doing a lot of stuff with Professor Ian Bright, hope. We've got a little thing called health chats that we do once a week. And, um, the, the, the, the number of letters we're getting from people wanting to know how to treat their young children, younger children, like 18, 20, uh, with who was, who had this rapid onset cancer.

Yeah. They're all getting cancer, leukemia, and all sorts of other things. And, and, uh. And, and brain tumors and, and this is just unheard of at this level. Yeah. And, but because the government's, all the doctors are saying, well, we don a, we can't work out what is why it's happening. Oh, it might be the vaccine.

Oh no, it's not the vaccine. We know it's not the vaccine. We dunno what it is. Whatever that's happening, the research that's needed to repair the damage that's been done by this con is not getting done and people are dying. I mean, that's, that's where people are held to account. Yeah, look, I've got some, I've got some stories about the cancer, um, which is, it is just prevalent.

It's like everywhere now. Um, excuse me, but first, um, I was gonna tell you something. Yeah. The thing about why of the governments not shouting it from the rooftops about children, to me, the most important thing in that whole document, um, is the bit where it says, excuse me, children were never in danger.

That, that to me is like, oh my God. If everybody knew that, you would think there'd be, there'd been outcry. You would think that, I mean, well, from what we've seen, probably not. They'll go, oh, really? Oh, but that was massive at the time. Remember, your child is gonna kill next door's, granny. 'cause they've gotta get the shot.

And kid, all the schools were closed because it was dangerous. But kids never got sick from COVID. And we knew that at the time, but they were all forced to get it. Otherwise the cat got to play school. Can't go to the dance and all that. I mean, that's, that's the thing. I think they try to really keep quiet that they were never in danger.

I don't know how you backtrack from that. Um, probably, oh, well now we've seen the studies over five years. Yeah. Where thousands have died and now you can say, oh yeah, now we've worked out. Um, but cancers, look, how do you, first of all this is actually, um, will be interesting to you, very poignant. This is my next door neighbor.

Right. I've seen the guy a couple of times on the street, said, hello, live just across from me. One day I stopped, we're having a chat and he says, oh, he said, I used to be a pilot for Qantas. He said, um, yeah, I'm retired. I'm retired about eight years at some. I said, oh, well have you heard of, um, Graham Hood?

And he said, yes, I have. It's a name I haven't heard in a long time. I said, okay. And the reason I brought you up, excuse me, I'm laughing too much. The reason I brought you up was. He said to me, um, oh, I said to him, who's that young man I see sometimes coming out of your house? He's got a, he's got a limp and he drives a very nice car.

And he said, oh, that's my son. He said, he's got, um, he's got all these really terrible things wrong with him. And he says, um. And we know it's a vaccine injury and my ears picked up then, right? Because you don't say anything to people until you get a feel for where they're at. So, um, and you c certainly don't stop talking about stuff like that.

And he says, yeah, vaccine injury, really terrible. Um, and I've met Ash since then, he son, and he's just, you won't believe he's got things that no one's ever seen before. Loads of stuff. And he basically, his life is lying on the couch watching TV now, and he is only 42. Right. And he was made to get the job by his ex-wife who said, I'm not gonna let you see the kids.

And I hate him that a lot. Right? So then he got sick and he knows and he is got like seven different specialists. He's had loads of surgeries, nothing's working. I've recently just given him some um, DMSO, which has got great wraps and he is using that a little bit and that is doing something for him, right?

He knows about Ivermectin and everything else. So it's very cluey. And then the father says to me, oh, my wife. She had five shots and she's got, she had cancer and, and it was terminal. They gave her six months. I'm like, oh my God. And um, 'cause the doctors kept telling her to get the shots right. So she got five then she was given six months or something to live.

So she went to see the guy who's Australian of the year, whose name I can't remember. But he is done a lot of good work with motor neuron disease. Right. He used to be a soccer player or an a FL player or something. And, um, he's got Australian of the Year, so she went to see him and he is got a protocol.

Obviously there's a crossover point with the drugs. There must be the repurposed, as are other drugs, like a certain horse paste, um, can be repurposed. So she used his protocol, which included the drugs he's using and chemo and, um, radiotherapy did all that after she finished the protocol, she's sitting in the waiting room.

Three doctors came in and they were crying. And she said, what is it? They said, you are completely clear. You have no more cancer. It's gone. So I'm like, oh my God. And that's what she was saying. Oh my God. So she's had another lease of life, but the jab did it and she knows it. And just one more thing about that, um, a lady rang me a couple of, about a month ago, said she wanted to come to my self-defense classes, and I said, fine.

Yeah, come along. I told her when it was, I texted her to remind her when it was on and she said, oh, look, I've had some bad news. I'm sorry I can't come. I've just been told I've got lymphoma. I. Cancer. And I said, oh, I'm sorry to hear that. She said, yeah, it's kind of outta nowhere. I haven't been sick, I've been fine.

I said, all right. I said, look, if you feel well still come to the classes 'cause it's a health system as well as a self-defense, so you should be all right. Anyway, she rings me the next week. She said, look, the news is even worse. She said, I'm told, I've got stage three straight and this woman's, I think in her thirties, and I'm like, oh my God, I'm sorry.

I said, let's get together and have a coffee. I'll talk to you. So we got together and um, and I wanted to just ask her about other health issues before I said, um, 'cause I wanted to give her some hope at least, right? So she's telling me, um, oh, they said maybe it's my vaping and uh, maybe these other things might, I've got the cancer.

And she says, I know it's not. And I says, well. And what about stress? She said she's had a couple of years where she was really stressed, but this year's been better, obviously not now. And I said, um, you know, I'm hearing this a lot from people and how many can I ask you if you've had how many injections?

She said, yeah, I got three because I was in the beauty industry, um, beauty therapist. And she said I had to get that. And she said. You know, me and my partner were think, wondering whether it was that. I said, well, in my experience, I would say probably is. And she said, and she knows about Ivermectin. She mentioned it to the, to the gp and they went, nah, nah, that won't do any good.

Nah, it might make you feel a bit better. No, good. Don't, don't worry about that. Um, and then this, this is the best bit when she's on the phone to her gp, who she's been with for a long time, who has given her this. Earth shattering news that she's stage three from nothing. Then her gp, who she's always gotten really well was, oh look, I think you'd be really good to be in our vaccine trials at the moment.

Do you wanna do it? Ah, I'm like, what? And she says, exactly. She said, I was like. I don't want to do it. I don't want to do it. And the woman says to her, oh, it's okay. Don't decide. Now let, let us know. Let, she said, can I think about it? She said, yeah. And her partner says to her, do you want do it? And she says, no.

She said, well, tell 'em you don't want to do it. But I thought, talk about kicking someone when they're down. So I'm having a coffee with this lady and I said, look, you're gonna be all right. She was gonna start chemo once a week for a long time, and then be on drugs forever. And I said, look, there's always something you can do.

You're gonna be okay. Here's a few thoughts and things to look at. So I told her about Ivermectin and Femazole, how it's had fantastic results. I told her to look up Dr. William MACIs. He's the guy that's had the roof. I said, but don't Google him. 'cause he'll say he's a quack, right? But, so I look him up somewhere else and I told her about, um, the Australian of the Year guy said, look into that.

I've told you about infrared light healing and fasting, which I do. Um. I have a business called Infrared Light Healing when I hire out the boxes. But I was gonna say to her, if you can do this, I'm just gonna give you a box. I don't want any money, just use it. Um, so she, I think she felt a bit better after I talked.

'cause I think sometimes you just want to be able to talk to people, don't you? Right. And so when I said to her, you're gonna be okay anyway, I put a thing together for her cancer team. I spoke to her after her first. Um. Kim March, he said, I feel terrible. I feel, I just feel so weird. I can't do anything.

I've cooked dinner. I've gotta go to bed now and lie down. And I said, look, ask your team about the infrared light. Um, what I'll do is, and I'll put some things together where you could ask the team about questions about whether you could use it with radiotherapy on a chemo patient. And I said, and this is a protocol, how you can use it for chemo.

So she gave it to them. She came back to me, she said, look, one of the first doctors said, now you can't use it. But the top guy said, yes. Go for it. The way you want to use it is great. And I thought, look, as long, if it just makes her feel a bit better on a daily basis, it's good. So I just dropped it off to her a a couple of days later and she's using it now, but that, and another good friend of mines just got cancer from nowhere.

So I'm like, you know what I mean? It, it's just scared and it is coincidence, of course. Coincidence, I'd say that, uh, it was Neil, was it Neil Danaher. The Australian of the Year.

Um.

He played a FL would you mind? I did, yeah. I, I'm not sure, I'm not sure I should know his name. And he did, he got it with a, a lady as well.

There were two of them. Um, but look, if you can get those sort of results, it's gotta make, give people a chance, honey. 'cause you wanna have a chance, especially if you know it's the, the spicy juice and you've gotta somehow get it outta your system. Um, but the cancer thing I'm hearing at the, at the forest as well, we're hearing lots of that.

But I did have a good result yesterday at the, for, we were at Forest of the Fallen yesterday. There were two pharmacies who would turn up, who were awake. I couldn't believe it. Two pharmacists. And we know pharmac, we know they said they looked at the forest and they said, I explained it. And they said, look, if it was the actual numbers, the beach would be all covered, wouldn't it?

And the whole suburb, I said, I know, but we only put so many out here. But they, they were just beside themselves about people still doing kids and all that. And I'm like, so, but it was so refreshing to actually meet some pharmacists that were awake, you know? 'cause they don't see it much.

Yeah, well we're gonna be interviewing Anita Huffmeister and uh, Rosemary Marshall a bit later in the day, so that'll be another one just to give us a wrap up of the VAX bus.

Yeah. Tour. Yeah, I've heard it was um, d tough. I know. RFI Rosie will tell you she's struggling still with it. 'cause the stories were horrendous. Um, yeah, we don't get the same. We don't get the same impact at the forest because, uh, they're only short interviews. Like, we'll talk to people for a minute or two and then they go, but it, but it's still in your head and you've gotta be able to separate the two.

But if you're talking to people for hours on end, it's, it's, it's gonna be hard to let go of that. Um, yeah, it's, yeah. But it, but it was interesting at the forest yesterday, it, one interesting thing was a lady came back who had seen maybe three months ago, and she, um, her story was that she'd. She'd had to get the shots to be able to see her children.

Remember I said there was, that was like a theme I'd heard a lot of and she didn't want to do it. She did not wanna do it, but, and she got really sick after getting the shots, but she did it for the kids. And, um. She had two and she didn't get any more. But one thing she insisted on with a her ex-husband was the kids are not getting the co convict jab, but he wanted them to get flu, so she had to negotiate.

I mean, can you believe that she had to negotiate? But she says they're not getting the convict shot, and she's so glad she didn't. Anyway, she came back yesterday. And she said, do you remember me? I said, oh, yeah, yeah. So she came and she had the girls with her two daughters and the lovely little things.

And she said, look, can you explain it to them? Because they were, they were reading all the, the stories and stuff and she said, can you explain it to 'em in a way that won't be scary, that they'll get an idea? And I said, oh, I'll give it a go. So they came over, I said, hello girls, and we're rubbing bit, but chat said.

Do you know what this is? And this, this, well, we're not sure. I said, well, these are people who took some medicine that they thought was going to help them, but it's made them sick, and some of 'em have passed away. Not so they kind of gave them an an idea of what it was. And anyway, but I'm like, I was, I was so pleased to see that lady again, and she's actually okay now.

But just that, that's the insidious part of all this, right? Where families have been. Not forced, but coerced into brainwashed, into forcing other family members to do something against the will that's then making 'em sick. And even the thing at Christmas when we got banned, I mean that by someone on tv, bloody Chy and Natalie Bar telling you to do it, and people jumped at it.

That's what disturbed me. They jumped. They jumped. They didn't need a long time to think about it. Oh, let's do it. Oh, I never wanted them to come. Anyway. Let's, let's tell 'em they can't come.

So, um, television, I ever saw that whole thing on Christmas. That was just, I,

I know, I know. That's, that's, it was just, just crazy.

And I used to say to people, and just think of it, and it goes back to the, um, Palestinian thing on the bridge and everything. If I used to say to people. If you did what was done to us, if you did it to gay people or did it to black people, or you did it to people with disabilities, Sydney would be burning.

Nobody would stand for that, right? There'd be, it wouldn't be pro peaceful protests. You'd be burning buildings down, but because it was done to your family, to your friends, to your work. It's okay. It's okay. Oh, they must be dirty. They must be, but you know what I mean? That that was how bizarre that was.

But the insidious thing, it's still, it's still there. You know, people aren't gonna forget how they were treated by family members, by workers. And even though mandates from a lot of jobs are gone now and people are able to come back. That's not gonna sit well. And I don't know how many people would go back, like John, I don't know if you'd go back in a heartbeat.

I don't know. You might, but I, if people, you know, everybody I've worked with, they just stood by and said, see you, um, or called you stuff. I'm like, yeah, I don't know. I don't know. What, what do you think, John? What would your thoughts be on that? Oh, well, look, I, I think I would go back because I, I look, I think they need to, uh, they need to understand that, uh, you know, they, they can't do it.

Um. You know, and ultimately, I mean, whe whether, whether I lasted there a long time, I don't know, but I certainly would go back, um, just, just to demonstrate that, you know, they, they, they shouldn't be allowed to do that, uh, to people. And, and, uh, you know, what, what they've done, I mean, the whole premise of what they've done, I mean, Dr.

Kerry chant gave evidence in a Supreme Court to say that transmission. Was the reason that essentially all these people were being sacked and I mean, it was a lie. Yeah. Uh, so I don't know when you, when you've got, you know, affidavits from the chief health officer, how they can't be now retested on, on those, uh, on on those.

It, it, it's ridiculous. Yeah, the police, we know the police look at all these police, they want to go back to work and they just won't let them. Um, Yasmin Catley, the librarian police minister, she just doesn't want them to go back to work.

Right. What about the firies in sa in, um, Victoria? They're still mandated, aren't they?

I think the Fireies No, no, they're, they're back now. Are they? Oh, good, good. They had a win about, uh, three weeks ago, so they've, they're all being reinstated. Thank God for that. But we've still got 50 odd paramedics in Queensland, police in New South Wales. This is not over by a long way. No, no. Not over by a long way.

And new people in having to do the jobs. So of course you've lost all that experience and all that, um, knowledge, yeah. Integrity and everything else I And what you replaced it with and the integrity.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. People who gave up the, their dream job out of integrity. I mean, you, you can't afford to lose that kind of integrity in an organization.

Anyhow. Yep. We better wrap this one up. Uh, George, it's been really, really great having you on. Um, we should do this again. We should have a catch up. Yeah, sure. Love it. Thank you for having me. No, it's great to have you on, mate. And well done all the effort. You're doing your forest to the fallen. You're doing all this stuff at the pharmacies.

Keep whispering to the pharmacist, mate.

I will. Don't worry. And I do my show on a Friday night, Mike Gigi calls that entertaining the troops. It's called the wacky World of the WY verse. On a Friday night at six o'clock. So it just talks about the madness in the world and what is going on, and it just, uh, a take on it with a bit of humor.

Yeah, that's, we, we can't take ourselves too seriously, you know? That's well worth it. So, uh, let's, let's bring this to a close with a prayer and then close in comments. So, dear father in heaven, we just want to thank you, Lord, that we're, uh, able to discuss these issues in a lighthearted but determined way, father God, because people are waking up.

And, uh, governments will be held to account by the people. And it's inevitable that that's gonna happen, Lord. And it is a very strange government indeed who can't see that happening. So, Lord, we just pray that you'll be with us, all, that we'll be compassionate, caring about our fellow man and, uh, regardless of their race, color, or creed, and that we will stand in the light of truth because John 8 32 has told us clearly, you shall know the truth, and the truth shall set you free.

So God and leaders, we pray in Jesus name. Amen. Amen. Johnny la you've often been heard to say, you just couldn't make this stuff up. Yeah. Couldn't make this stuff up. And that's so true. Don't forget Australia, what you did yesterday got you to today. Do it one day at a time. We'll be okay. Just gotta stick together and keep loving on each other.

So stay of the trees, everyone, and we'll see you next time. Thanks again, George, for being on, uh, club Grubby. Bye for now. Thank you. Bye.
