Club Grubbery - Raw transcript of interview:

2025-10-08 Graham and John speak with Senator Ron Johnson...

Good day everyone. Wednesday the 8th of October. Johnny, how you going mate? Couldn't be better. How you going? Hoodie.

I'm going. Well, mate, it's been, uh, it's been a bit of a gap. We've had a gap for a few days in, uh, broadcasting, but uh, this interview is gonna be an absolute ripper. Senator Ron Johnson and uh, I think this is his third appearance on Club grubby.

Great to have him back on.

Wow. It says a fair bit, doesn't it? When you can get a sitting, uh, US senator that's, uh, you know, so well admired and loved in the us. Uh, come onto a, a little old program in Australia three times.

Yeah, that's right. That's right. And if we look a bit dodgy, it's because it's, uh, pretty early in the morning and, uh, as we pre-record this interview, but, um.

Johnny you are at home in, in tme and I'm up in Ailey Beach at the moment. And, uh, Michelle and I are heading off, uh, to the Brook passage, towing the caravan up there in a couple of days. And we're gonna be, uh, fishing with some good hoodies, heroes, mates of ours, Rob and Shane. So, uh, we're looking forward to a bit of a break.

Yep, yep. I'll catch you,

Baron.

That'll be so much fun. Woody.

So, what's been happening, Johnny, with, uh, with things in Australia? It's, it's. Quite interesting to see that, uh, Albanese said he won't be appearing much in public anymore due to threats made against him.

Well, he is closed his office. Would he? Uh, I I think it's, um, uh, been y you know, it's ab he's that's been in, uh, in Merrickville for quite some years and, and they've closed it up.

I think the church, uh, that was near, um, was. Was really upset at the, uh, at the volume of protesters that were there. And I, and I think it, it demonstrates, um, that, that people are not happy with what's going on hoodie. Um, but I, I, I think the threats are an excuse. Uh, you know, ultimately I think we're a country that doesn't go down that pathway.

But, um, I suppose as the Prime Minister, they take all these things, uh, seriously, but, uh. Yeah, it's a, it's, it's, it's a joke, isn't it? When you can, when you can hide behind that as the, uh, the head of state, um, and just get in your airbus and head off for another trip.

Yeah. I mean, it's just obscene in a way because, uh, we've been saying for months and months now, John, that the reason these things are happening is because the government refuses to listen to the people.

They, they don't read the room. And we're not a country where our leaders, uh, are threatened. The world is getting, you know, crazier by the minute. We know that. We can understand that globalism has its drawbacks for sure. Uh, but you know, this, everything we do has gotta be nonviolent. It just has to be nonviolent.

There's no need for violence. There's no need for threats to anybody. I mean, uh, we've had our threats over the years, you know, and, you know, life goes on. People have just gotta calm down. But by the same token, uh, this is, this seems to be, uh, playing right into his hands. And, uh, it gives him an another, you know, excuse to hide down and bunker down.

And I mean, you've just gotta face facts, uh, albanese that you're not listening to the room. And a lot of the people are growing more and more unhappy every day. Mm-hmm. And, uh, your support base is on the way. And, and you can fix that by start listening to the people and taking some positive steps.

They're sick of being taxed to death. They're sick of. All the woke agendas that you're pushing, they think are being divided, and they want you to listen to them. So for goodness sake, listen to the people and that that should be a warning to every politician. Listen to the people. It's just nuts.

What's, I can't believe, Woody, that they're not looking at what's going on in the uk.

I mean, that, that's gotta be a barometer for what's going to happen here. Uh, uh, you look at his Stan over there, I mean, he's absolutely on the nose. Nigel Farage, you know, he's, he's a, he's a heartbeat away from being the Prime Minister. Uh, the sooner the better.

It's, it's just crazy, isn't it? That, uh, they don't, they can't read the room.

I, I think you're right on that. They've got no understanding what, what normal foot traffic goes through and they're pushing this digital Id like there's no tomorrow. And, and we've seen already in the last 24 hours or so that, uh, my gov has gone down, has been hacked. Yeah. Um, I mean, you know, the security around our digital ID is just non-existent.

It's absolutely non-existent. We're racing ahead of ourselves. This is just absolute foolishness. And yet they keep persisting. They keep persisting, and they're not listening again. So what's the latest on Key Star? 'cause I've been outta the loop for a couple of days.

Well, I, I, I just, uh, from what I'm reading over there, it just appears as though he's, uh, getting more and more, uh, unpopular in, in, in polls.

Um, you know, there seems to be, uh, a number of mps that are, uh, you know, obviously becoming concerned and. Who knows what'll happen over there. It's just, uh, it is a basket case, isn't it? It's just, I I, I, I just hope it happens here. That's, that's all I can say. Um, yeah, that's right. We need it to happen here.

But, uh, look, you know, in, in, in there, um, in the UK you've got, you've got, um, you've got Nigel Farage, and I mean, he, he's a, he's a real, he's the real deal. Uh, you know, we've had the pleasure of meeting him. But what have we got here? Um, I mean, even One Nation, um, you know, I, you know, I'd like to think that, um, you know, we've got somebody who can do something and look, I think Pauline's party appeals to, um, lots of people, but not enough.

Um, and until we do some sort of reforming here. And, uh, everyone get in the same camp. Um, and by that I mean, you know, one nation and, and, and, uh, all the other, uh, movements get in, get in the one office and sort out how we're gonna move forward. I, I, I, I just don't see any viable option.

I was, um, Michelle and I were having Breck in, uh, airly Beach yesterday and a lady came up and said that she was from Wagga and said, good day.

And, uh. She went to the meeting with Jared Rennick the other night there. She said it was very well attended. He's getting a lot of traction. Yeah.

Yep. Yeah.

And deservedly so, you know, I mean, uh, he's, he's saying all the right things for all the right reasons. So, uh, anyhow, a lot of questions will be answered, but the, of course, the questions we're most interested in the moment, at the moment is, uh, those will be asking Senator Ron Johnson.

So let's go to that interview now. Um, we, as we welcome Senator Ron Johnson to Club Grubby. Republican Senate, Senator from Wisconsin. Senator Ron Johnson, welcome back to the program. We really appreciate your time this morning. I wanna get straight into the first question we have for you, and that is, um, the, the, the work that's being done by Robert F.

Kennedy Jr. Uh, your Secretary of Health over there, a big announcements were promised in September. A lot of people were. I guess kind of hoping that the mRNA platform was going to get, uh, the attention it deserved. But everything seemed to go towards Ty Tylenol and paracetamol, and the connection to autism, which is really very, very interesting news.

How do you see, uh, your Secretary of Health progressing with the matters that are on the table in front of him at the moment? Because he really is pushing it, isn't he?

I, I say he is taking a very step by step approach. Uh. Science has been corrupted for quite some time. It's going to take a while to return credibility, integrity to science.

Uh, we're gonna do additional research. He's gonna have to fund it. So I, I, I kind of view this, I know that a lot of people, you know, are expecting. Just immediate change. It, it just doesn't happen that way. Uh, so he, he, again, it's a step-by-step approach. Uh, I think he's looking at what studies already exist, and there is information out there of a possible link between Tylenol, uh, of certain vitamin deficiency.

Um, and so, you know, that sets, that's opening up people's eyes. It's opening up the aperture. It's, it's starting the conversation. You know, it, it wasn't. You know, a year ago where you couldn't even ask the question, what's causing chronic illness? What's causing autism? Could, could there be environmental factors, uh, involved in this?

Now I think everybody just assumes there are, and now we're gonna search for 'em. And so again, I, I think as, as, as much as I'd like progress to be moving, uh, faster, uh, we are making progress and I think that's a good sign. Hmm.

Senator do, do you think, uh, what, what's the reaction been, uh, worldwide in relation to this?

Because obviously Tylenol took, took front and center in relation to the autism, uh, but. Uh, there, there was mention of, of listening to the mothers, there was the 40 to 70%. Uh, OO of mothers are saying that their, their babies have been injured by, uh, by vaccines, uh, in, in, uh, in anecdotal work that's been looked at.

So, what's, what's, what's the reaction over there in, in, in the States and around the world?

Well, again, the, what Bobby Kennedy's up against are, are powerful interests. They, they've been here for decades. Uh, th they'll never wanna admit they were wrong. Uh, they've ignored vaccine COVID injection injuries for far too long, so they're not gonna all of a sudden fess up.

So this is gonna have to be brought before the public. The public's eye is gonna have to be opened. Uh, again, I think the, probably the most significant. Uh, revelation there was that 40 to 70% of of mother's parents believe their child was injured by the vaccine that opens people's eyes. I, I held a hearing on, you know, voice of the vaccine, injured.

You know, all, all these things are cumulative. Mm. Uh, and so the things you just simply can't deny. We had Rasmussen poll here that, uh, more than 50% of the American public believe they know somebody who, who lost their lives because the COVID injection, um. So, you know, those of us who've been warning the public about these things, I think we can take some credit.

But the fact of the matter is people are witnessing this with their own eyes. And now that you have people like Bobby Kennedy and credit to President Trump, now I, I thought his, his, his comments, we said, you know, we're, we're just pumping these, those beautiful little babies full of. You know, you know, like their horse, I mean, it, it's, it's Trump's style, but it's very effective.

It gets people to kind of wake up and, and recognize, yeah. Does this make any sense? Mm-hmm. So I think making progress, um, and I'm hoping, uh, more and more people will be open to the fact. Again, I, I don't think. Tylenol is the be all, end all answer. I I don't think Bobby Kennedy thinks that, yeah, it may be one factor.

It, you know, again, in the end it may be multiple factors, might be multiple insults to, to children. But, you know, as, as, uh, you know, I, I saw in one documentary, there's one thing that, that we know that's impacting people. That, that we absolutely know is designed to impact the immune system that's vaccines.

Now there may be some that impact the immune system beneficially. Why would we discount the fact that maybe just maybe when you're impacting the, especially a little baby's immune system, 50, 60, 70 times. Maybe, maybe that's too many, maybe it's not beneficial. Maybe it's actually harmful. So again, this is, to me, it's obvious.

Mm-hmm. It's been obvious since my eyes are opened up, uh, during COVID and my first conversation with Bobby Kennedy. Uh, the good news is once your eyes are open, you can't close 'em.

Just a supplementary on that because I, I know, uh, it did, um, the president, uh, has been very strong on this. There's no doubt about it.

I think the, the language that he used, if you looked into that, uh, the media were obviously, you know, handpicking, cherry picking, uh, uh, what they wanted to hear from it in relation to the Tylenol. Uh, I mean, what do you say, senator, about the, the, the, the uncomfortable look, uh, and, and I could see it in, uh, the secretary's eyes when, when there was announcement about fi um, with Pfizer, I mean the CEO being in the Oval office.

I mean, that, that, that, that looked, uh, it looked a bit awkward.

Well, there are multiple goals. You know, president Trump wants to bring down the cost of pharmaceutical drugs. Pfizer's a big pharmaceutical con company. Yeah. And so, you know, I, I guess you, you, you, you, you work with them. Yeah. Uh, and, and you try to get them to make concessions.

So again, I I'm not there in the Oval offices. I'm not making these decisions. But at the same time, give President Trump credit. Yeah. You know, I know he's proud of operation Warp speed. You know, I know he and his heart would like to believe that that saved tens of, tens of millions of lives. Okay. Maybe hundreds of millions of lives.

Yeah. Um, but the fact is we now have the, the ACIP committee. They're asking some pretty tough questions. They're not getting adequate answers. It's, you know, for anybody following it, uh, pretty put putting people like Pfizer, Moderna pretty tough spot here. Uh, they'll keep pushing the envelope and the president is still supporting Bobby Kennedy, not only in terms of childhood vaccines, which I believe that the president, in my own conversations with him.

Um, I think he certainly suspects childhood vaccines in terms of chronic illness and possibly alti autism. Um, he's got an open mind apparently to the COVID injections as well, and I think that's a good thing.

That is a great thing. Senator. I was in, uh, the US in March of this year and I had the privilege of appearing on stage with Charlie Kirk in Phoenix, Arizona, and, um, I spent, uh, over an hour with him backstage having a really great conversation.

Um, I was drawn to the man and it, it appears sadly, that America does have a history of killing. Its, uh, its brightest stars, um, and snuffing them out. And, uh, the tragedy has been effective around the world and bringing people to, to faith and so many other issues. People are waking up to, some things happening.

How has the Charlie Kirk effect impacted the climate of, uh, life in the USA?

Well, first of all, martyrdom is a real thing. Yeah. Uh, it is current, not just in America. It's around the world, you know, for literally the millennia. Uh, so Charlie Kirk was a martyr. He was an extraordinary young man. I, I met him pretty much right outta the blocks.

Uh, I didn't realize he was that young when, when I heard he died at the age of 31. You know, I started doing the math and go. I, I met him when he was 18, 19 years old, and he was already developing this extraordinary organization with, with no experience, obviously, very charismatic, very knowledgeable, highly articulate, and as you said, you know, not only were you drawn to him.

Millions around the world were, and so he, he, you know, they may have snuffed his life out, but they're certainly not snuffing his message out. That's pretty much the, the reality of martyrs is, is their, their message grows, grows louder, and it, it resonates more. And, and I think the most significant thing in America is, you know, we had the George Floyd death, you know, tragic death, you know, we all condemned it, but the result from the left was.

What they called peaceful protests. Hundreds, you know, developed into riots. 2000 law enforcement officials injured a couple dozen people dead, billions of dollars worth of property damage versus when Charlie Kirk was martyred, the reaction was prayer vigils. And that, that difference speaks volumes in terms of what side is inciting political violence, uh, what side is condoning it, um, versus the other side that.

Wants to clinging to basic principles. You know, Chris c Christian principles, the values, you know, love your neighbor, uh, Charlie Kirk's wife, uh, forgiving the assassin and his memorial. I mean, that is how people lead that, that is how people learn and that's the kind of example that leaders need to set.

Do you think it's polarized the US even more now? Uh, there's been a great division around the world between the, the woke left and, and what people term the extreme right. And, uh, even in Australia, the divisions are categorized by terminologies that we've never heard of before. And they seem to be, uh, the forces that be seem to be wanting to create even greater division by amplifying all this stuff.

Has it had that effect in the us?

Listen, we're, we're horribly divided, we're horribly polarized. This didn't exacerbate the problem. I think if anything, it opened people's eyes and, and maybe there may be a little bit more coming together. Yeah. Um, so no, I don't, I don't, I don't think it made matters worse.

I really don't. I, I think it has potential making matters better.

Excellent response.

Senator with the, um, with the current, uh, agenda being, um, um, carried forward with, with, uh, with, with time running out in this term, um, how do you see, uh, things moving forward, uh, with the Republicans return to power under a new president?

Well, what we have going for us is that the, the left is just bat you what? Crazy. I mean, it is just, it, it's not abandoning these. Incredibly unpopular positions. You know, the whole issue of transgenderism about boys competing against our girls, you know, biological males, and then invading their private spaces, their locker rooms, their bathrooms, their showers, I mean.

It is, it's, it's a perverse viewpoint and most people view it as perverse. Unfortunately, with the radical left, they have the mainstream media that have normalized a lot of this, the open borders, the, you know, the, the horrific murders and rapes, the drug trafficking, the, the sex trafficking. You know, most, most Americans don't support that, but the Democrats aren't backing away from it at all.

And so I, I think that's probably an ace in Ace in the Hole for America Plus. Uh, president Trump against, against the resistance of Democrat elected officials in these cities who apparently don't care about the safety of their own citizens are resisting. President Trump's offer help, but he's doing it anyway because he's protecting federal law enforcement, federal property, and he's making those cities safer.

And I think probably the people, whether they voted for him or not, in those cities, those Democrat. Governed cities for decades are probably highly appreciative. I think that will, uh, possibly be down to the, uh, benefit of Republicans as well in the mid time term. So, and now we've got, obviously Chuck Schumer shut down here.

Uh, people do not like shutting down the government. I mean, I'm not a fan of government, but I think it's stupid to shut it down. So the house passed a pretty, pretty well, pretty clean continuing resolution. They left town. You know, we in the Senate keep voting for it. Republicans, democrats keep voting it down, so it's very obvious who wants this shut down, who's playing politics with people's lives?

So, I mean, I just don't see anything. The Democrats are doing anything smart politically.

Hmm. How close are you to resolution on the shutdown?

Well, so, so I, the latest rumor, I think we've voted five times now to just on the house bill, to open the government, and they've, Democrats have voted it down. We've had three.

Members of Caucus with them vote with us. So we need, I think, another five more, you know, four or five more. Um, but we're, we're hearing there's gonna be a No Kings protest on Sunday. Now, you know, assuming Donald Trump's a king, we can't have kings in America. Uh, so we're kind of hearing rumors. The Democrats don't think they can back down till after that.

What I'm sure they'll all turn peaceful protest no matter what happens. But I, I, I can't tell. I I, I've gotta believe the, the pressure is, is developing on them because they are being blamed for this. Because they should be blamed for it. Yeah. Uh, pretty soon soldiers will miss their first paycheck. Uh, the, the, some nutrition programs are, are running out for mothers and their infants, uh, for just general.

Uh, the nutritional supplement programs, that type of thing. So, uh, pressures gonna amount on the Democrats who are currently being blamed for the shutdown.

Yeah, it's a bizarre situation to observe from over here. And, uh, I want to get to President Trump's visit to the UN because it seems in Australia, and I'm sure in most other Western countries around the world, president Trump is seen as a bit of a pariah.

His visit to the United Kingdom. Clearly put Kia Starer on, on the back foot as it did many politicians in the UK and in Australia. It seems like the Trump administration, if it was a person, is being treated like a conspiracy theorist, and it's, it's interesting to see how the media play that his visit to the UN was a real sock in the eye for a lot of the globalists who are, who are watching these things.

How do you, how would you summarize that visit to the un?

I often call myself sort of the, the kid who said, the emperor has no clothes inside our conference. You know, president Trump is that globally? I mean, he goes in the UN and he says what people acknowledge, but they're just afraid to say it. So he goes in the UN and says, what are you guys doing for peace?

You know, I, I, I've helped bring to, you know, to conclusion a number of these conflicts around the world. You, you guys don't call, you don't write, you don't offer any assistance. You, you, you're, you're pretty well worthless now, other than you're taking up some prime real estate in, in New York, you, you're crossing the world a bundle.

Uh, you're run by the global tyrants. You know what, what good. The UN and I think most level-headed people, tailor the UN and go, it's a pretty accurate assessment. Uh, when have they stopped conflict? Yeah. Uh, you know, when they have all these different, you know, sub little groups on human rights run by the worst human rights abusers, the, the organization's a joke.

And so Trump goes in there and he just tells it like it is, uh, in, in his very unique way. And again, that that's why people love him. It's also why people hate him.

Hmm. Senator, we've been, uh, uh, sharing a Facebook post, uh, of you exposing, uh, corruption from the previous, uh, administration. Can you, can you fill us in a bit more about that?

Oh, well, um, the, the most recent revelation is that, uh, eight senators and one house member, uh, had their phone records, uh, taken by the FBI. Or extracted from the, the phone companies. Uh, this was done kind of circumvented the normal process for reviewing such a serious constitutional, uh, breach of our separation of powers.

But, but prior to that, in August of, uh, 2020, when Senator Grassley and I were investigating Hunter Biden and his laptop and all of his business dealings, and we also had an unsolicited briefing by the FBI's Foreign Influence Task Force. It was mainly meant to drive us off the trail. Uh, and it was leaked later on in, in the media in, in May of 2021 to smear me to impact my election.

So again, the, the, the point I'm making is the FBI has been a corrupt entity. It has been run by left, left leaning partisans. Uh, many of them remain in their burrowed in, uh, they're certainly not coming clean. Uh, and they have a, had a greater impact, you know. Partisans of the FBI Department of Justice.

People like James Brennan or uh, John Brennan, James Clapper, Peter Struck, Lisa, page me all, all these casts of characters. James Comey, when you take a look at the destruction that they have WR within the Body Politic of America, our political system, China and Russia could only dream of having a fraction of the destructive impact of that group of people that were.

Serving and supporting of President Obama and President Biden, uh, you know, a bunch of radical leftists. Again, radical left ideology. It doesn't build anything. It doesn't do any good. It, it destroys nations. It, it steals your freedom. Uh, I just wish more, more people around the world would wake up to that reality and, and stop voting for, you know, people that sound good, but they've got an ideology that's just basically destructive.

How do you see Cas Patel playing out in the leadership role in the FBI? Is he, is he gaining some traction? That must be a very difficult job.

Let me describe how difficult It's so, so he had a bunch of leftists in those, in those department of justice, FBI, that quit 'cause they simply couldn't serve President Trump.

Right? Then there are some leftists that the Trump administration had to terminate. They're still terminating him. Uh, the problem is there's still a bunch of leftists that are burrowed in the, the permanent deep state actors. And because of the law fair that the left is engaged in, not just against President Trump, we've got a.

High integrity judge who served for two months defending President Trump in his elector of the election, uh, dispute. Um, very audible, very high integrity. He's being destroyed through Lawfare, uh, by our Wisconsin Democrat, attorney General. So it doesn't take very many people like Judge Roufus to be persecuted that way.

Virtually bankrupt through Lawfare Donald Trump before other people. Take a look at that and go, you know. I sure would love to serve President Trump, but yeah, I don't know. Do I want to give up my career? I got student loans I have to pay off. I, I think I'll, I think I'll just remain in private practice.

So Cash Tell Pam Bond are having a real difficult time filling out the, the open positions. Uh, you know, the people that we need in Congress to get into the FBI records and find. Some of these, uh, documents that just prove corruption. So, uh, again, the the deep state is deep, it's pervasive. Uh, it does not give up its secrets easily, no matter who is the president of the United States.

Look, it's, it's, these are very, very dramatic times and it appears governments are becoming more and more powerful and, uh, people are more afraid of governments than, uh, they they should be, and the government should be afraid of the people. You are clearly a libertarian. Do you see that? Uh, kind of smaller government ever coming to fruition, or are we just stuck with what we've got?

Okay. You blanked out a little bit, so you wanna quick, uh, summarize your question again?

I think it's pretty clear that, uh, you're in favor of smaller government and, and that makes you a libertarian, I guess, in so many ways. Do you see that gaining traction in the future as people become more and more aware of how pervasive government has become?

Oh, I, I wish it would. The, the problem is, and this is globally, people love the benefits that government bestows on them. Uh, they, they listen to the siren song, minority. You, you have most Americans, they, they, again, they love their free money from the federal government. We don't have an education system or a news me that connects to the dots.

That, uh, the, this massive death of spending creates inflation devalues the, the currency. It makes things more expensive, so you just can't even keep up based on your increase in wages. So again, we don't teach economics, not in our education system, not our news media. So, again, again, I wish, I wish people realized.

Take a look at the, the situation. Couple numbers. In 1930, almost a hundred years ago, the federal government consumed about 3.5% of the American economy. 3.5, uh, today it's approaching 25% that the high watermark was 24.4% under Barack Obama. Is it working? I mean is, I mean, I, I grew up in the fifties. You know, I'm, I'm glad I did.

It was, it was a wonderful time. I mean, you felt safe. You, you didn't feel threatened all over the place. You could go into some of these big cities and New York was. You know, a, a wonderful place to go. Not, not a place that you'd be threatened or where a Ukrainian immigrant would be have's throat slashed on the subway.

So you have to look at the US and go, are are we better off? I mean, are, are we more cohesive as a society? You know, what, what is civil discourse Like? So on, on many, you know, what's our educ system like? I mean, our, our, our education metrics are tanking. So all this big government is, it's not improving people's lives, it's not improving society from my standpoint, it's just mortgage, our children's future.

So, um, again, I blame big government. I think the root cause literally is the size, scope, and cost of government. It's influencing our lives. It's negative influence on, on our lives and on society. But unfortunately pe people wanna believe that, oh, all, all it takes is just more spending. Everything's gonna be coming up roses.

It's just not true. Hmm.

Well, I know you've gotta go to a vote. Sorry, John, you're about to ask. Oh, I was just gonna quickly say, uh, Senator, uh, the, the Moderna factory in Australia, one of the greatest things that, uh, president Trump has just done is imposing a hundred percent tariff on, uh, pharmaceuticals and, uh, this, this Moderna factory that's been, or two of them actually in Australia, that have been funded by the Australian government to make mRNA platform drugs.

Uh, let's hope that they end up going outta business and, uh. I don't want to create an international incident here, Senator, but if you get a chance, uh, if you run into the president in the lunchroom, uh, maybe you could just let him know that, uh, our Prime Minister, uh, Anthony Albanese is worse than any of those types, those godzillas that he was speaking to at the un.

Uh, he's more left than, uh, he, he, he would put a windmill on every hill if he could. Uh, he, he, he will destroy this country. He's going about it systematically, so if he gets a chance to take him down in the Oval Office, he's got our full support.

I'll, I'll, I'll pass along. But I will say on the mRNA technology, you know, it, it could be a promising technology if properly used.

But properly used would probably be somebody who has terminal cancer. And this could be, you know, a targeted therapy to those particular cells. Uh, they, they never perfected that for cancer. Uh, it always failed in those trials. The fact that they unleashed this on the entire population, and of course they're unleashing it in veterinary populations, that kind of stuff as well.

So. Uh, again, we, we need to keep, uh, raising the, uh, alarm bells in terms of be concerned about this particular platform. We need a lot more research and we need, uh, high credibility, high integrity research, which I don't think we've had so far.

Well, we know you've got a race off to another vote. Uh, Senator, we do appreciate your time.

I would just want to close with a prayer, if that's okay with you.

I'd appreciate it.

Dear Lord, father in heaven, we thank you for the time that had been allocated to us, uh, to speak to a man who's, uh, clearly has the interests of the people at heart. Lord, we pray that you strengthen him. We pray that he's effective in the work that he's doing and also that he is safe.

Father God, as we approach the complexities and perplexities of the world we're living in, may you God and lead us in the way of Jesus, we ask in Jesus holy name. Amen.

Amen. Thank you much, you guys. Bless you, Senator

Johnson.

God bless you guys. Take care.

Thank you for your time. Bye-bye. Wow. Where we have it, John Senator Ron Johnson.

And I apologize there may have been a glitch in the internet, uh, during that interview and I hope it, uh, didn't affect too much. I don't think we lost too much. No, no. It was only a few seconds Woody. Yeah.

So what we thoughts on that interview mate?

Well, once again, you know, he's, uh, he's, he's very honest.

He's very upfront and you can tell that he's motivated to, uh, to not only serve the American people, but uh, to do right in the world. I think he's, he's a, he's a, he's a, he's one of these beacons of hope. He's, uh, he's, uh, always there or thereabouts, uh, calling out, uh, nonsense. And, uh. Woke agendas. And, uh, but he's very sensible.

Uh, and you, you can see that in, in, in, in what he does. And, you know, the conversations we've had with him, uh, I think he's a, he's a beautiful man and, uh, a man of integrity. And I, I, uh, I'm just so glad that he's in there and, uh, able to support the president doing some of this great work.

I'd love to be a fly on the wall here in Australia.

If you ever came here and, and, uh, sat down and had a beer with John Ruddick. Okay. They'd get on. Well, I think they, they would, they'd get on really well. Anyway, Johnny, we'll, uh, we must away and, uh, to everybody watching. Um, we're sorry about the disjointed schedule that we're running on at the moment.

We're not going anywhere, but, uh, we all need a bit of a break and, um. Uh, Michelle and I are doing that at this end. Johnny's still working tirelessly at the other end, keeping content up, and uh, we will be coming at you once or twice a week over the next month and then full bottle again back in November.

But, uh, Johnny is always great to have you on mate. And, uh, we keep plotting on, keep plotting on Johnny. We do.

Anthony Albanese, we'd love to have you on the program. I don't think he's gonna, we promise. We promise you'll be okay. You'll be all right, elbow. It's okay. Don't worry. It's okay. Uh, and we go back to what we said pre the interview, John.

I mean, listen to the people for goodness sake. It's not that hard, you know, just hear their concerns and address 'em, and stop hiding and stop running away and stop hiding behind. Rainbow flags and welcome to country and all that other rubbish. Just let's get on with the country's business. Well, uh, this was a very strong internet connection, uh, the last few days, and for some reason today it's dropped right out.

Uh, so there you go. You just, you've often been hurt to say, you just couldn't make this stuff up. You couldn't make this stuff up. Sorry about the technical glitches. We do what we can and, uh. You know what? It's a great country. Please don't, don't, uh, resort to violence. There's no need for threats. There's no need for violence.

If we can't return to, uh, you know, peaceful discourse in this country, then we're going down the road that the left want us to go down. Um, they want us all to be violent. Johnny. Interesting. The other day there was a survey done about, uh, generational shift in, I think it was the US. Uh, in days gone by, like in, in, in, uh, our generation, uh, conflicts were solved by negotiation and conversation, and now people are quite happy to kill anyone they don't agree with.

And that's, that's really frightening. The findings of that survey were very, very frightening. So let's not go down that road, everybody. Let's keep it peaceful. Love you Johnny. Great to, uh, great to share a screen with you again mate. And, um, stay outta the trees everyone. We'll see you on Club grubby in a few days.

Bye for now.

Thanks guys.
